And he indicates Saturday night that at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London he will offer Canadian assistance to Commonwealth countries less fortunate than Canada.

In his first address to the nation on CBC radio and television networks on the eve of his departure for the conference, opening in London Wednesday, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"As your representative at this family council it will be my privilege to carry your good wishes to the other members of the Commonwealth, to express your confidence in the future of the family, and particularly to say that Canada is privileged to extend a helping hand to those members who, through no fault of their own, have fared less well in the material things than we have."

LIKE ANY FAMILY

He said the Commonwealth, with its diversity of members—nations, is like any family. It has its disagreements and misunderstandings. However:

"It will be my privilege to tell them that we want to continue to stand together as a family, for better or for poorer, for richer or for worse, in good times or in bad times, in success or in adversity, by God's grace, in friendship and harmony with all the world, and especially the United States of America."

Mr. Diefenbaker thanked the Canadian electorate for putting his Progressive Conservative government in office and for the renewal of good government.

Speaking briefly in French for Canada's province, Mr. Diefenbaker said he will, as soon as possible, "renew the personal conversation from that province "and particularly of the French-speaking conference."

He did not elaborate, but said Friday he expected to report on more minister from Quebec when now has two—Justmaster-General William Hamilton of Montreal-Notre-Dame-de-Grace and Solicitor-General Leon Balcer of Trois-Rivieres, Que.

Family of Five Escapes Injury In Plane Crash

NEWMARKET, Ont. (AP) — A family of five escaped with minor injuries Sunday night when their small amphibious aircraft crash-landed in a field near here.

Clifford T. Bolton, 36, of Toronto's suburban North York, said he was attempting to land his Seabee in a canal off the Holland River when it ran out of gas.

The aircraft plagde off a six-foot ditch, somersaulted and landed upside down in a cloud of dust.

Mrs. Bolton, 35, suffered two broken ribs while Lee, 10, Dianne, 8, and Patricia, 5, suffered minor injuries and were released from hospital after treatment. Mr. Bolton was not hurt.

John Ruppert, working in a field saw the crash and took the family in his car to this town, 18 miles north of Toronto.

"The screams were terrible," he said, "they're lucky to be alive."

Scooter Tour Of Canada Ends In Girl's Death

CALGARY (CP) — A motor scooter trip by two English girls from Toronto to Vancouver ended in tragedy Saturday when the scooter went out of control on nearby Cochrane Hill and started one of the girls to her death.

Patricia Fitzgerald, 18, was killed when the scooter hit the guard rail and turned over.

An Ontario man, Rupert Buchanan, who was on the two-seater scooter with Miss Fitzgerald, was severely injured.

Miss Fitzgerald's partner on the tour, Shirley Coulbet, 23, was riding in a car ahead and heard of the accident from the RCMP at Banff.

The girls had planned to remain here until the Calgary Stampede and then continue to Vancouver. Details of the accident were scanty. Hospital authorities would not permit visitors to see Mr. Buchanan.

Queen, Prince Trying to Break Down Rules

LONDON (AP)—A London newspaper has suggested that the Queen and Prince Philip are trying to break down rigid court rules against conferring with divorcees.

Robert Edwards, writing in The Sunday Express, cites as evidence the Queen's "public and intimate association" with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and his wife, both of whom went through the divorce courts before their marriage.

The American couple entertained Elizabeth, Philip, Princess Margaret and other members of the Royal Family at a lavish country house party during the fashionable Ascot horse races last week.

The next day the Queen invited the actor-producer and his wife to join her circle of friends on the lawn inside Ascot's royal enclosure—normally barred to divorced persons.

Edwards says the official court outlook is dictated by church leaders "who insist that divorced persons must be treated as social outcasts not fit to tread the turf at Ascot or hold office at Buckingham Palace."

He says there is overwhelming evidence that the royal couple both object to the "narrow and hide-bound" ing" of divorcees. Edwards notes that Elizabeth and Philip have several relatives whose marriages were dissolved—including five of Philip's first cousins.

First Russian Warships Pass Through Canal

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP)—Two Soviet destroyers and an auxiliary tanker steamed southward through the Suez Canal Saturday. They were the first Russian warships to pass through the waterway since the First World War.

Egyptian Canal Authority officials quoted the Russians as saying the vessels were heading from Sevastopol, on the Black Sea, to Vladivostok, in the Far East, and may spend some time in the Red Sea.

Speculation immediately arose whether the voyage was intended partly as a show of strength. The Red Sea is the scene of one of the more difficult problems in current international affairs—the dispute between Egypt and Israel over access to the Gulf of Aqaba.

Egypt and Israel, whose territories overlook the spot, claim the right to close the Tiran Strait entrance to Israeli shipping bound for the port of Elath, at the head of the gulf. Israel insists on free access.

Zoli Will Again Try to Form Italian Govt.

ROME (AP) — Acting Premier Adone Zoli has agreed to make another attempt to form a government and end Italy's worst political crisis since the war.

President Giovanni Gronchi called in the 69-year-old Zoli Saturday and told him he was refusing to accept the resignation he submitted June 19. Zoli had been premier 22 days when he resigned.

Zoli, bitterly anti-Fascist, quit because he won a vote of confidence only with the support of neo-Fascist votes. Gronchi asked Zoli to go before parliament again with his one-party Christian Democrat government and ask approval.

Shakespeare Festival Draws Mixed Reaction From Press

STRATFORD, Conn. (CP)—The third American Shakespeare Festival opened here Saturday, and drew mixed reaction from the first newspaper critics.

The festival was started two years after a similar venture was begun in Stratford, Ont.

Brooks Atkinson, writing in the New York Times, calls the Connecticut festival's first-night performance of Othello a "shining, immaculate but thin performance."

He says the sets by Rouben Ter-Arutunian "are the most inventive part of the new production. The "simple devices ingeniously carry the drama into the places the text defines."

"Jean Rosenthal . . . has flooded the scenery with pulsing mellow light that makes the stage modern and lovely."

Of the actors, he says Earle Hyman "has in the last few years played Othello often enough to know the part thoroughly."

Alfred Drake "plays Iago with grace, irony and fluency." Jacqueline Brookes "expresses the pride, fervor and womanly guile of Desmona."

Richard Easton, Canadian-born actor who has played with the Crest Theatre in Toronto and the Stratford, Ont., Festival Theatre in Ottawa, made a "first rate" Rodrigo.

Separate School Board to Weed Out Protestants

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto separate school board has indicated that lack of space may force it to weed out pupils whose parents don't pay separate school taxes.

Board officials said Sunday about 2,500 pupils were attending separate schools while taxes were paid to public school authorities in cases where the father is a non-Catholic or where one child is attending public school kindergarten while the others go to separate school. Such children are helped by school support but the children have been accepted in separate schools.

"Things have reached the point where we will have to educate just our own taxpayers," said the board's honorary treasurer, J. C. Culnan.

In a letter to Cardinal McGuigan, read in area parishes Sunday, the board announced it would discontinue kindergartens to make room for more pupils.

Mr. Culnan said the space problem was caused by a doubling in separate school attendance since the Second World War and the high cost of land and building in central districts.

Mills Expected To Hike Prices

CLEVELAND (AP) — United States steel mills are expected to increase prices of many by next week, when steelworkers get a wage increase, and many observers predict the price increase will mark the beginning of another round of inflation.

The magazine Steel, a weekly trade publication, predicted Sunday the price increase will average $5 to $6 a ton of steel. Steel makers have kept silent on what the increase, if any, will amount to.

The magazine said the wage increases, provided for in the three-year contract signed by the United Steelworkers union last year, probably will range from 7 cents per man per hour. This would mean an increase of $10.36 a ton in steel production costs, Steel said. It added the entire cost increase probably will not be passed along to steel consumers.

For one thing, the wage boost from last year will be somewhat lower than last year's increase, when the average base price of steel went up $8.5o a ton.

Highly Unlikely General Election Will be Called Or Forced During Year

OTTAWA (CP) — The political pot may keep boiling but observers feel it is highly unlikely that the top will blow off this year.

They see little likelihood of another general election in 1957, though the gap between the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals is narrow and Prime Minister Diefenbaker rules with only a minority government.

In fact, some top-rank Liberals see no possibility of their party attempting to stage a comeback perhaps until the spring of 1958.

In some ridings it will take months to strengthen weak political organizations and to find candidates.

But perhaps the biggest factor is money. For any party it takes millions of dollars to run a campaign on a national scale. Those close to the scene say coffers of the various parties were virtually emptied by the May-June campaigning. It may take months to replenish them.

EDGE OF VOLCANO

But all through those months the parties will be treading the edge of political volcanoes. Margins are so narrow that any one of the Parties could happen in the next Parliament.

Just when the first session will be called has not been made known. Mr. Diefenbaker said only Tuesday he intends to get a vote of funds which to continue government administration. The present supply, voted in March, will last almost in April, runs out in October.

The Conservative leader could possibly order a session earlier with the aim of another election immediately thereafter. But even so the election couldn't be held before October.

He couldn't call a session of parliament before Aug. 8, when Commons' seats are returnable, according there closed as members of Parliament. He would have to give between 55 and 60 days' notice of a general election proclamation.

BE ADVANTAGE

Some political observers say it would be to Mr. Diefenbaker's advantage to move quickly towards another election in the hope of gaining a clear majority on the crest of his June 10 success.

Currently, the Progressive Conservatives have 109 of the 265 Commons seats; the Liberals 105; CCF 25; Social Credit 19; Independents 2; Independent-Liberal 1; Liberal-Labor 1; Independent-Progressive-Conservative 1; vacant 1; de'erred 1.

If the CCF and Social Credit voted with the Conservatives there would be no possibility of the Liberal government being defeated. But the prime minister would have to resume to obtain these parties' co-operation to stay in power. And undoubtedly he would press some compromise in his program.

This kind of compromise could frustrate the implementing of Progressive Conservative policies. Mr. Diefenbaker might be driven to obtain greater strength and independence by seeking another mandate.

Girls Enraged By Union's Plea On Their Behalf

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Girl sales clerks are in a rage against the sexy image thrust upon them by cartoonists as flat-footed, spindly - legged, dumb blondes.

Zealous union leaders got them into the situation when they tried to get the girls more money to compensate for sales staff "dull feet" and "duck's disease."

The union contended that all the standing and walking which sales girls do gives them "Marilyn Monroe curves developing in the wrong places," thus diminishing marriage prospects. Thus, the union said, the girls were entitled to compensation for "loss of glamor."

But the sales girls don't want the money at the risk of their reputations. Reporters canvassing them found they felt the real threat to their marriage prospects came from the resulting publicity.

"Our curves are in the right places and we don't waddle," one indignant sales girl told a newspaper.

Cigaret Thefts in Ontario Partly Solved by Arrests

TORONTO (CP)—A squad of provincial policemen and officers from Sudbury and Toronto Sunday reported recovery of $13,000 in loot and two arrests in their attempt to solve a series of cigaret thefts throughout Ontario. Burglars have taken loot worth more than $100,000 during the last six months.

A cache of cigarets stolen in Sudbury was found during the weekend in an abandoned shack near Burks Falls, 44 miles south of North Bay. Detectives in Toronto Sunday charged two men with stealing them.

Police said thieves cached the cigarets during a 600-mile drive in the company truck they used early Thursday in the $15,000 burglary of J. A. LaPalme's tobacco warehouse in Sudbury.

The truck was traced to Vandorff near Toronto, then through Newmarket, Barrie, Huntsville, Burks Falls—where the cache was found—and finally back to a side road five miles from Sudbury, where it was abandoned.

Charged with breaking, entering and theft were Bruce Woodcock, 24, and Thomas Kelly, 21, both of Toronto. Police said more arrests are expected.

The Sudbury theft occurred after earlier thefts in Peterborough, Huntsville and London. Police said they do not believe one gang is responsible for all thefts but because of their prevalence the three police departments joined forces.

Working together are Det.-Sgt. Ovide Gauthier and Det. Bruce Greenfield of Sudbury, Provincial Inspectors James Harris and Fred LaPerriere, and Detectives John Webster and Charles Gordon of Toronto.

LONDON (AP) — The Sunday Dispatch says Britain plans to bolster the Commonwealth defence force by giving tactical atomic bombs to Canada, Australia and New Zealand. The story says "this would mean that Britain would keep the H-bomb while the three Dominions would have the A-bomb."

Highly Unlikely General Election Will be Called Or Forced During Year

OTTAWA (CP) — The political pot may keep boiling but observers feel it is highly unlikely that the top will blow off this year.

They see little likelihood of another general election in 1957, though the gap between the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals is narrow and Prime Minister Diefenbaker rules with only a minority government.

In fact, some top-rank Liberals see no possibility of their party attempting to stage a comeback perhaps until the spring of 1958.

In some ridings it will take months to strengthen weak political organizations and to find candidates.

But perhaps the biggest factor is money. For any party it takes millions of dollars to run a campaign on a national scale. Those close to the scene say coffers of the various parties were virtually emptied by the May-June campaigning. It may take months to replenish them.

EDGE OF VOLCANO

But all through those months the parties will be treading the edge of political volcanoes. Margins are so narrow that any one of the Parties could happen in the next Parliament.

Just when the first session will be called has not been made known. Mr. Diefenbaker said only Tuesday he intends to get a vote of funds which to continue government administration. The present supply, voted in March, will last almost in April, runs out in October.

The Conservative leader could possibly order a session earlier with the aim of another election immediately thereafter. But even so the election couldn't be held before October.

He couldn't call a session of parliament before Aug. 8, when Commons' seats are returnable, according there closed as members of Parliament. He would have to give between 55 and 60 days' notice of a general election proclamation.

BE ADVANTAGE

Some political observers say it would be to Mr. Diefenbaker's advantage to move quickly towards another election in the hope of gaining a clear majority on the crest of his June 10 success.

Currently, the Progressive Conservatives have 109 of the 265 Commons seats; the Liberals 105; CCF 25; Social Credit 19; Independents 2; Independent-Liberal 1; Liberal-Labor 1; Independent-Progressive-Conservative 1; vacant 1; de'erred 1.

If the CCF and Social Credit voted with the Conservatives there would be no possibility of the Liberal government being defeated. But the prime minister would have to resume to obtain these parties' co-operation to stay in power. And undoubtedly he would press some compromise in his program.

This kind of compromise could frustrate the implementing of Progressive Conservative policies. Mr. Diefenbaker might be driven to obtain greater strength and independence by seeking another mandate.

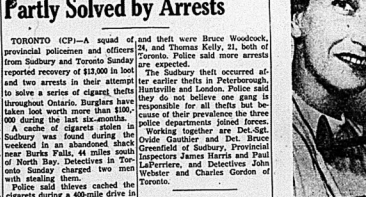
Smuggling Ring Selling Nickel In United States

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Telegram says a counterfeiting, theft and smuggling ring with headquarters in Toronto and Buffalo has sold in the United States more than $100,000 worth of nickel stolen in Canada.

The paper quotes a private investigator as saying law authorities on both sides of the border and Canadian insurance company investigators have failed to learn the identity of those behind the ring.

Nickel anodes, usually weighing 40 pounds, were stolen from 10 manufacturing firms in or near the Toronto area. Nickel bars were hauled in loads of one or two tons, the Telegram says. Investigators, expecting to find truck tire marks, found only tracks of car tires.



The story says police found the nickel was shipped via Windsor, but when they moved in for the kill, the crossing point was switched to Buffalo. City police in Toronto refused to comment.

Nickel can be purchased in Canada for about $1.50 a pound and sold illegally in the U.S. for as much as $5 a pound, the story adds.

Believes Youths of Today Superior to Those of Twenty Five or Thirty Years Ago

CHICAGO (AP) — Let's stop talking and teh - tching about youth, and listen for a little while.

Listen to a slip of a girl who says older folks have let life become too soft.

Listen to a stalwart young man — probable leader of the future — confidently predict his generation will profit by our mistakes and do a better job.

Listen to a lad who sold a novel two years before he was old enough to vote.

I've just finished listening to high school and college students from a dozen cities and towns. They range in age from 15 to 21 and come from families in all economic brackets but the very rich and the very poor.

INTERESTS WIDE

As I listened I compared the youngsters with those I had met — first as a student and later as a reporter — since the late 1920s.

A popular goal before the 1929 crash was to make a maximum of money with a minimum of effort. That was replaced later by a grim determination to grab hold of life someplace — any place — and shake a living out of it.

The interests of the youth of today are as wide as the world. They talk of the Middle East or Red China in somewhat the same familiar way their dads speak of baseball. In either case, it's a matter of common knowledge.

But the most impressive thing about those I interviewed was that almost all of them know what they want to do, and many plan careers that will serve society.

They want security and jobs they will like. The reason is that, in this era of men like Jonas Salk and Albert Schweitzer, they seem to seek achievement and satisfaction rather than riches.

The up-and-coming youngsters worry about an atomic war. But, otherwise, they are assured, well equipped for ever-improving fabrics for learning, and ready to cope with the problems of the future.

NOT PUBLICIZED

How, in a word, do they compare with the youth of 25 or 30 years ago? In my notebook, they are superior.

These youngsters don't get into the news. They don't steal cars, carry switch-blade knives or engage in gang fights, nasty raids or public pinling for Elvis Presley. They represent the unpublicized, and largely unknown, body of normal junior citizens.

There's Jane Anderson, an effervescent girl of 17 with sandy hair and a sunny smile that reveals part of a front tooth is missing.

"Life is too soft," she said.

She told how she had observed youngsters sitting in front of TV sets and riding to and from classes in cars. She was impressed about what she had heard about the toughened Russian Olympic athletes.

"We should stress athletics more in this country to keep in good condition," she said.

Jane is in fine shape. She's president of the girls athletic association at South Shore High School.

Another example is Kenneth Howard, 21, of Oak Park, Ill. He's a Northwestern University senior who wants to be a city manager and already displays executive ability. He spoke, in a matter-of-fact way, about how his age group will handle the problems of the future.

"I think we'll do a better job," he said, "because we'll benefit from the accumulation of knowledge and the mistakes of the people before us."

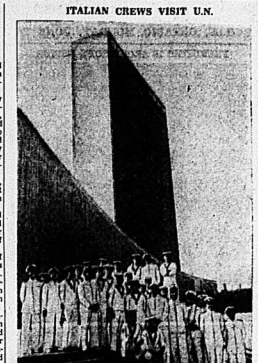
"I went back as far as I could," Onushko said. "The flames were coming fast then. It was pretty hot. I could see someone trying to get down to the door and I tried to get to him. It was no use."



Others who escaped were John Kimdrat of Moose Jaw, Sask., and Salvatore Dradeno, 28, of Vancouver.

Record Roadbuilding Year In Prospect for Dominion

OTTAWA (CP) — This will be another record roadbuilding year, the Canadian Good Roads Association forecast today.

An association survey showed that all governments will spend $961,000,000 for road and street budgets this year, a 20-per-cent increase from the total budget of $715,000,000 in 1956.

Provincial highway budgets account for $604,000,000, or 70 per cent of the total. Municipal budgets $485,000,000 — last year. Ontario heads the field with a budget of $236,000,000, followed by Quebec with $119,000,000 and British Columbia with $70,000,000.

The association said that on the basis of contract reports, municipal governments will spend $167,000,000 on urban streets, an increase of nine per cent over 1956. The federal government plans to spend $71,000,000, compared with $62,000,000 in the previous year.

At the same time, the association released some statistics:

This year, there were 4,400,000 vehicles, about double the number in last year. Ontario leads the field with 1,600,000 vehicles, followed by Quebec with 1,000,000 motor vehicles in 1950.

The average Canadian vehicle travelled 9,018 miles during 1956, up from 8,834 miles in the previous year.

Since Poznan Riots Poles Have More Freedom, Food

WARSAW (AP) — In 12 tense months since the Poznan riots, 30,000 Poles have won a lot more freedom and a little more food.

The local brand of communism has been purged of all the terror and some of the bureaucratic nonsense.

Time and again people will tell you: "Things are just the same." Every objective observer knows things are not the same. But until they get a better living and better homes the Poles will remain uneasy and skeptical of every promise of improvement.

The workers who streamed through the Poznan streets last June swept away secret police atrocities, spy mania, radio jamming, brutal "work discipline" and forced participation in futile mass demonstrations. Poles can say — though not write — what they think without fear of reprisal.

POLITICAL PRISONERS FREED

The parish priest is back at the village school teaching scriptures. Poles have taken over top posts in the armed forces — posts formerly held by Russians. Thousands of political prisoners have been released and no political arrests have been reported.

Russian school books have been scrapped. Travel abroad is easier, though still far from easy. No longer does a Pole who fought in the West or with the anti-Communist resistance have trouble finding a job. Universities have won academic freedom. Western papers can be bought on government newsstands.

But hundreds of thousands still live crowded three, four, five and even 10 to a room. Despite wage increases officially estimated at 20 per cent, a man's pay still will not feed a wife and two children.

The daily journey to and from work still is an exhausting nightmare of scrambling, kicking and shoving to get a place on an overcrowded streetcar.

QUEUE FOR FOOD

People still queue for food when socialized retail trade hits one of its periodic distribution snarls. They still queue for hours when a store gets an allocation of such rarities as portable radios, good quality cloth or some other minor luxuries common in Western Europe.

In many a close-packed village people still draw their water from the same stream that carries refuse. The rows of little children's graves in village churchyards show the penalty of this kind of poverty.

A bar of chocolate still costs more than half a pint of vodka. Scores of thousands are without work, fears of unemployment stalk thousands more.

Thus, for the average Pole, life may seem little changed and signs of hope few. But, government officials say — and there is no reason to doubt their figures — that people are eating more meat and more butter than a year ago.

Leafs Back Into Top Spot; Royals Lose

By The Associated Press

The defending champion Toronto Maple Leafs have backed into first place in the International League, but they'd better not get too comfortable because Richmond Virginians are only .003 percentage points behind.

The Virginians vacated the top spot Sunday by dropping a double-header to Rochester Red Wings, 4-2 and 6-5, and Toronto moved into the lead despite an 8-5 loss to Havana Sugar Kings in a single game. Richmond, which had held the lead since May 29, has lost eight of its last 10 games.

In other games, Columbus Jets and Buffalo Bisons split a double-header, with Buffalo taking the opener, 1-0 and the nightcap going to the Jets, 6-2. Miami Marlins edged Montreal Royals, 3-2 in a singleton.

Richmond seemed to have the nightcap won for Jetty Jim Pott. The Vees carried a 4-2 lead into the seventh, but the Red Wings replied for four runs in the inning and then held on as Richmond gained one run in its half. Lynn Lovenguth, who picked up his third decision in 10 days and his fourth over Richmond, was the winner in the opener.

The Red Wings won the nightcap when an apparent game - ending doubleplay ball took a bad hop over shortstop Tommy Carroll's shoulder, giving Tony Kumar a double. Moe Mazzallo's two-run pinch double, Tom Burgess' run-producing single and an error by second baseman Jerry Thomas gave Rochester its winning margin.

Havana's Emilio Cuccho challenged up his 5th victory of the season although he gave up two home runs and four doubles to the power-laden Maple Leafs. Toronto used four pitchers in an effort to stop Havana's 12-hit attack. Ed Blake, who was rocked for two runs on three hits in the first inning before Jack Criminal could bail him out, was charged with the loss. The Sugar Kings pounded Criminal for four runs in the fifth. Toronto's Mike Goliat and Lou Morton his two-run homers.

Cal Abrams supplied most of Miami's hitting and running punch as the Marlins dropped the Royals deeper into the cellar. Abrams got the Marlins off to a two-run first inning when he doubled to left and scored on Whitey Herzog's double. Frank Herrera then hit the third double of the inning to score Herzog.

The Royals got those two back on Bobby Del Greco's two - run homer in the third. Abrams opened the fifth by beating out a hit to third and continued to second as Harry Schwegman threw wild. He then stole third and scored on Don Landrum's single.

"I'd throw him out for those remarks but his vocabulary fascinates me!"

England Beats West Indies

LONDON (Reuters) — England beat the West Indies by an innings and 36 runs in the second test match at Lord's cricket ground Saturday when they dismissed them for 261 in their second innings.

West Indies scored 127 and England 424 in their first innings.

Final scores were — West Indies 127 and 261, England 424.

Minor Baseball

Deucon Quakers squeezed out a 10-9 victory over Army and Navy on Saturday to maintain their undefeated record in the peewee section of the Belleville Minor baseball association.

They blew an early 8-0 lead and had to score a single run in the sixth to break the 9-9 deadlock.

Don Devereaux went the distance on the mound for Deacon's. He gave up four hits and struck out 17 batters while walking 12.

Fred Robinson toiled for Army and Navy, fanning seven and passing 12 while allowing six base hits.

Jim Hurst pounded a double and single to lead the winner's attack while Devereaux tripled and scored the deciding run on his own behalf. Peter Whitney, Robert Smith and Gordon Pinder added singles.

James Carmichael, Stewart, Rose and John Onderdonk hit safely in defeat.

Canucks Whip Americans in World Soccer

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's World Cup soccer team found a new way to beat the heat Saturday night and made it pay off with a first-round 5-1 win over St. Louis Kutis of the United States at Varsity Stadium. It was the first time Canada has played in World Cup soccer.

Seventy-five degree heat and humidity sapped the strength of both teams in the first half and their play showed it, but the Canadians inhaled six litres of oxygen each at half time and reappeared as fresh as at the start of the game.

The all Canadian - born team worked up a 2-1 lead in the first 20 minutes and backed by the oxygen took complete control in the second half. Kutis wilted badly in the heat.

B.C. SQUAD INTACT

Grouped with Mexico and the United States to form the North American zone in the qualifying rounds of the World Cup, Canada pinned its hopes on the British Columbia squad that beat Tottenham Hotspur during its recent Canadian tour.

The Americans, national amateur and ten champions, opened the scoring after 25 minutes on a penalty kick by centre forward Harry Keough. Canadian outside left Norm McLeod scored five minutes later when the U.S. goalie misjudged his drive. Inside left Brian Phillips was on hand to bolt in a pass from Gordie Jos for the second Canadian goal.

Stronger positional play in the second half brought the Canadians two more goals from centre forward Al Hughes and inside right Googie Stewart. Hughes wound up scoring.

The Canadians and their oxygen tank left Saturday night for Mexico City and games with the Mexican all-stars June 30 and July 4. On the way home they tackle St. Louis again, although the Americans now are out of contention.

Elgins Take Lead From Oaks

By The Canadian Press

The Intercounty Senior circuit's two top pitchers Oakville Oaks' Ernie Bouchard and St. Thomas Elgins' John Ambrose, met in a 12-inning round battle Saturday night and when the marathon was over the league's top spot had changed hands.

Bouchard's pickoff pitch toward second base sailed into right field, allowing Bill Jamieson to score the only run of the game. The 1-0 victory vaults the Elgins half a game ahead of the Oaks, who went into the contest with a half game lead.

Until the 12th, Bouchard, who now has a 3-1 record, had handcuffed Elgins batters on four hits. Ambrose pitched a five-hitter, striking out 13, to pick up his third win.

LISTOWEL CLIMBING

In another Great Lakes-Niagara contest, Hamilton Beavers piled up an 8-0 lead and squeezed out on top, 8-7 in a battle with North Tonawanda Chicks. Hamilton is alone in second place in the six-team loop with six wins in eight starts.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)— Wimbledon celebrates its 80th birthday today wit 500 players from 39 countries beginning a two-week battle for the coveted Wimbledon crowns.

The All-England Croquet and Lawn Tennis Club in 1877 invited 22 men from the lawns of England's country homes to compete in a game that had been invented only four years previously by Major C. Wingfield of the British Army.

OFF TO A START

At the moment indications point to six teams facing the barrier with five probably finishing in the stretch, when the Eastern Ontario Senior "A" League bugles sound the "They're off" this fall.

Belleville, Kingston, Cornwall and Whitby were definite starters, they assured the circuit confab held in Whitby Sunday afternoon while the Pembroke Lumber Kings also filed official entry. The league, however, put clinchers in the Pembroke entry by asking a $1,000 bond from sponsor Walter Lesnet.

The Whitby Dunlops will parade their European strength in the league schedule up to the latter part of January when they leave for the world tournament. All points will count in games played against the Dunlops.

The Ottawa Canadiens will probably be starters, although nothing of a definite nature was assured since, it was stated by Manager Sammy Pollock that the club was being taken over by a group of Ottawa business men. The team, he told the meeting, will operate as in the Eastern Senior League and the Laurier Cup junior "A" series. The Quebec League operations for next season were dropped some time ago.

The next meeting of the league was set for July 30 and Belleville will be the hosts. It is expected a tentative schedule will be drawn up at this meeting. The league will start official operations October 25.

According to Belleville McFarlands manager Drury Denyes, who represented the club at the confab, everything was harmonious with little or no argument on any special point. Ontario Hockey Association president Lorne Cooke, now recovered from his recent illness, chaired the meeting and will likely draw up the tentative schedule.

A lot of sideline talk centred around the Dunlops trip to Europe next February where they will represent Canada at the world hockey tournament scheduled for Oslo, Norway. While Manager Wren Blair made no definite announcements as to what players will be selected to augment the champion Dunlops, he hinted rather strongly he would like to get Ralph Backstrom of the Ottawa Junior Canadiens and Casey of the Toronto Marlboro juniors. However, nothing definite has been settled as yet.

The practically assured entry of the Pembroke Lumber Kings and the recent decision of the North Bay Trappers to go south next winter, dealt a heavy blow to hopes of the Northern Hockey Association for something better than a three-team loop next season. The early rumors that Ottawa and Hull may ice teams in the NOHA have been classed as nothing but idle rumors by eastern Ontario sportsmenminists.

KINGSTON READYING

This department "cracker-barrelled" with Reg Walton, president of the Kingston CKLC hockey team, while sojourning in Kingston General Hospital last week, and Reg made no bones about the fact that the CKLC's are laying the foundation "for the best year yet in senior 'A' hockey."

"First of all," said Reg, "we have secured Stan Cook as coach, and that is one of the important steps. We have had trouble in the coaching department in previous years, nothing of a serious nature, but it seemed things just didn't click for us. This year, with Bun, one of hockey's most famous figures at the helm, we look forward to smooth sailing in that department."

Kingston, like Belleville, Cornwall and other centres of the Eastern Senior "A" league, has felt the resurgence of fan interest, and in accordance with the trend, the latest is that it is building a bigger and better team for next season's activities.

"We have had several inquiries from players who want to try out with the club," Walton said, "and the majority of them are good players. We are seeking more local talent and with a strong nucleus of last year's squad we hope to build a contender for the group championship!"

Kingston, he said, will quest the services of a top-flight goalie, two sturdy defencemen and five forwards to round out a potential squad. Holdovers from last year's team include Joe Levandoski, Don Bellringer, the only local talent; Bukachelski, Moore, Chiarelli, Partridge, and Dick Kolanen.

Hamia Meets Bassey for Feather Crown

PARIS (AP)—Cherif Hamia of France faces Hogan Bassey of Nigeria tonight for the world featherweight boxing championship in the first clear-cut world title fight Paris has seen in 20 years.

Hamia, 26-year-old native of Algeria now installed in Paris, is the European champion at 126 pounds.

Bassey, 25, operates his fistic affairs from Liverpool, England. He is the British Empire champion.

Hamia already had beaten the three leading contenders available in the U.S. so he qualified automatically to contest the title last year when Sandy Saddler retired because of injuries.

Bassey earned his way to the final by defeating Miguel Berrios of Puerto Rico.

Hamia is the choice of most Paris boxing experts.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Censor, owned by Mrs. E. P. Taylor, scored a three-length victory Saturday in the $10,000 Canadian Maturity Stakes at New Woodbine.

Canadian Champ, expected to give Censor a battle, yielded the lead to his rival after six furlongs, tired badly in the final 200 yrds and was beaten out of second place by Aren which closed a big gap.

In the $7,500 Woodstock Stakes, Pink Velvet beat the odds-on favorite, Lyford Cay, very narrowly. However, Lyford Cay, owned by Avelino Gomez, protested that Pink Velvet had shut him off three furlongs from home.

A section of the crowd booed lustily when the foul claim was announced. After viewing the film patrol motion pictures, the stewards upheld the claim of foul and awarded the race to Lyford Cay, Pink Velvet placed second while Howbuck was third.

Lyford Cay, shut in the Queen's Plate two weeks ago, paid $2.50, $2.10 and $2.10. Officially he has been unbeaten in his four starts this year. He will compete in next Saturday's running of the Prince of Wales Stakes at New Woodbine and then will invade the United States.

Mickey Eyes Triple Crown With Sensational Efforts; Braves' Adcock Breaks Leg

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mickey Mantle's batting splurge is the big news in the American League as New York Yankees' slugger takes dead aim at an unprecedented second straight "triple crown."

Since the start of the stormy White Sox series in Chicago two weeks ago, the switcher has been mashandling pitching at a .500 clip. He now leads the majors with a .392 batting average, tops both leagues with 21 home runs and trails Washington's Roy Sievers by one with his 51 runs batted in.

Mickey drilled a triple Sunday with six hits in the double-header with Chicago, witnessed by the season's largest crowd, 63,707 at Yankee Stadium. The Yankee star also made a tremendous catch against the wall.

Just when Dick Donovan appeared ready to become the first pitcher to shut out the Yankees who had a three-hitter going to the ninth inning of the second game—his defence failed him and Mantle's double put the jinx on Mickey's 21st homer with two on unshingled in the fourth and brought Paul Lapalme to the rescue. The lefthanded knuckleball pitcher survived some wobbly fielding to strike out Yogi Berra, get Elston Howard on a pop fly and fan pinch hitter Darrell Johnson to end the 4-3 game.

NINTH FOR SHANTZ

The Yanks won their 10th straight 2-0, in the opener, a ninth victory for Bobby Shantz and his eighth in succession. The little left-hander was helped by a 16-hit attack against loser Billy Pierce, Gerry Staley and Lapalme.

The White Sox, by winning the second, remain only a game behind the Yanks. They came to Yankee Stadium Friday with a 13½ game lead.

Cleveland clubbed Washington pitching for 21 hits, 14 in the first game, with a pair 14-2 and 7-5 for Early Wynn and Mike Garcia.

Frank Malzone and Ted Williams put on a hitting show at Boston as the Red Sox trounced Kansas City 10-4 and 10-1. Malzone collected five hits and Williams hit his 18th and 19th homers.

Baltimore shaded Detroit 5-4 on Jim Brady's ninth-inning homer. Bay Moore had three of the Orioles' 13 hits while going the route with a 4-hitter.

SATURDAY GAMES

In Saturday's American League action the Yankees powered into first place with a 6-5 13-inning victory over White Sox. Yogi Berra homered to win the game off Lapalme.

Cleveland beat Washington 7-1 with a six-run burst in the fourth inning. Mike Fornieles scattered six hits as Boston turned back Kansas City 5-1 and Detroit edged Baltimore 2-1 in 13 innings on Al Kaline's game-winning single.

Farley Wins First Fight

TORONTO (CP)—Phil Farley of Scarborough defeated Bud Masterson of St. George's 2 and 1 Sunday in the final of the first flight match of the fifth annual Lambton invitation golf tournament.

A total of 166 players competed in the qualifying round Friday. The field was split into 11 flights for match play.

All players eliminated Saturday were eligible for a medal round this morning.

Results in the consolation flights Sunday included.

H. Bennett, Kingston defeated Harold Firstbrook, Lambton.

On Saturday, Farley defeated Gerry Magee of Lambton, the pre-tournament favorite, 6 and 4. Farley fired six birdies and didn't lose a hole to Magee.

Bill Clarke of Woodstock downed R. H. Amell of Lambton 5 and 4.

STONE QUITTING RIDERS

OTTAWA (CP)—Halfback Avalon Stone, 26, a four-year stalwart with Ottawa Rough Riders, says it was "just about certain" he will not report to the Big Four football league team this season.

A former Jeff Russel Trophy winner as the league's most valuable player, he said: "I've been thinking of staying in the States for some time and now I've just about made up my mind on the strength of another offer." He declined to name the club but said it was in the National Football League.

Start Match Finish It 112 Years Later

BURES, England (Reuters)—A cricket match was completed here Sunday 112 years after it opened.

In 1845, the top-hatted cricketers of Great Bentley, Essex, travelled by horse and wagon across the county border to this Suffolk village.

They ran up 301 runs in their innings against the hosts and retired to the local inn to quench their thirsts. They soon became more engrossed in the ale than in the game.

When someone suggested it was about time the Bures boys went in to bat, they replied airily: "Oh, we'll finish the game in 100 years time."

STORY DISCOVERED

And there the match stood—forgotten until two years ago when an account of the game was discovered among the papers of a Bures villager who had died.

The men of Bures reminded Great Bentley of their forerunners' promise, and the Essex men agreed to finish the game.

The great Bentley team again travelled to Bures in horse-drawn carts, wearing top hats, ties and beards.

On Bures village green, under the shadow of a 13th century church, the host team got their chance to bat.

Excitement was more than satisfied. Bures piled up 302 runs, with only eight of their 11 men retired.

Second Week Baseball Probe Starts Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Baseball celebrities go before Congress today to speak for their fellow players and the fans' right to a penny to see them perform.

With Robert Roberts, Eddie Yost and Jerry Coleman as attractions the House of Representatives anti-trust subcommittee prepared for a capacity crowd to open its second week of hearings on the legal status of professional sports enterprises.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Emanuel Celler (Dem.-N.Y.) wants to sound out the players in its study of whether baseball and other professional team sports should be regulated under the anti-trust laws. The Supreme Court has exempted baseball but held that football is subject to antitrust jurisdiction.

Bob Feller, the ex-Cleveland Indians pitching-star king, and Stan Musial, famous St. Louis Cardinal infielder-outfielder, are due to testify Tuesday.

$9,758 FOR $2

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A $2 wager won $9,758 for a bettor, whose name was not disclosed, at the Portland Meadows horse race track Saturday.

The double-double payoff is the largest ever made here.

In a double double wager, the bettor must pick the winners in the fifth and sixth races. Then he turns in his tickets for bets on the seventh and eighth races and pick the winners.

HOW TO BUY A GOOD USED CAR

What About Automatic Shift?

Automatic transmissions are becoming increasingly popular on all makes of cars and many require "standard equipment". Here are several methods of checking the operation of this wonderful mechanical device.

First of all, look beneath the car for any oil leak. A transmission oil leak is not only costly to repair, but if it has been neglected for some time, serious damage may have occurred. While driving, shifts should be regularly spaced and smooth — without any motor racing or jerking.

It's not only the first cost of a used car that counts, but how much it will cost later for parts replacements and repairs. Because we KNOW that the quality of our cars is high, we confidently GUARANTEE YOU SATISFACTION. .....

Quebec's Pro Golfers Trim Best From Ontario Links

By W. R. WHEATLEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec professional golfers rolled up a fat lead in the doubles and took the singles in even more convincing style Sunday to defeat Ontario's eight-man team 27 points to nine in the interprovincial golf championship.

The last singles match of the day—between the two provincial champions—drew most of the gallery of close to 3,000. Jack Kay of Montreal Mount Bruno squelched Murray Tucker of Toronto Rosedale by a three - hole margin on each nine.

Points were awarded on the Nassau system — one point for each nine and one point for the full 18 holes of play. At stake were the interprovincial team championship and the Dow Trophy. Prize money totalled $2,000.

The tournament had its unusual last year and both times the Quebec pros have won, playing on their home territory.

Doddsville Golf Royal Quebec and Arnold McLean of Ste. Therese Hilltop defeated the duo of team three points over Gordon De Laat of Toronto Weston and Archie Kerr of Hamilton Glendale.

Pat Fletcher of Royal Montreal and Bob Dean of Cornwall, whose club is in the Quebec pro association, pair of the day in the tournament. They were down three holes after the first nine to Joe Noble of Toronto Thornhill and George Clifton of Toronto Maple Leaf. Dean then birdied nine the Quebec pair gathered speed, helped by Dean's sharp putting, and took the last two holes to win two of the three possible points.

De Laat gave Ontario hope in the afternoon by taking three points in his match with Hunt. That was the only singles match in the whole show there points.

The last four singles matches all fell to Quebec. Dean took one of them. He was one up at the turn over Clifton and piled up five more holes on the home nine.

Don Bowden, the NCAA half-mile champion, who had a time a mile to his credit, finished third in the relatively slow race behind Bob Seaman.

Lincoln recently ran the mile in 3:58.9.

Jaguars Take Top Honors In Road Race

LE MANS, France (Reuters)—British-made Jaguar sports cars took all four top places Sunday in the fastest-ever Le Mans 24-hour endurance road test.

Briton Ron Flockhart, last year's Le Mans winner, took first place again in a 3.8-litre fuel-injection car, co-driven by Ivor Bueb.

Their average speed of 113.84 miles an hour beat Flockhart's record over a hard, dry track set a course record.

Ninian Sanderson fought blistered hands to come in second in the 3-litre Jaguar, entered as was the winner by Ecurie Ecosse, a private Scottish racing group.

British-made Lotus cars came in first and second in the small-cars class, where performance counts more than distance covered. First prize in this category, long monopolized by French cars, went to Cliff Allison and Keith Hall in a Lotus Climax.

Except for a collision between an Aston Martin and a Porsche-Spyder that killed driver Tony Brooks and Italian Umberto Maglioli, and 13 minor accident injuries — the race was relatively trouble free this year.

INSIDE BASEBALL For Future Stars

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Major League Scout and Instructor

Every player should know how to bunt and when and where to bunt. Your manager or coach probably will tell you when to bunt, particularly if he wants to advance base-runners with a sacrifice bunt.

However, studying the opposing team may indicate that the bunt should go toward third base if the third-baseman is a slow fielder or has a weak arm, or both, and this would be doubly true if the pitcher is left-handed and is slow to field. Even if you can't bunt safely on this pitch—even in the "squeeze play" situation—because a pop fly is likely to be the result and a pop fly probably would end in a double play, it's still a good practice to bunt against a left-handed pitcher and with a right-handed hunter since the runner has a better chance of breaking for home plate without being seen by the defensive team.

City and District Sports

Still undefeated after nine innings, Bata Shoemen with .667 marks the story of the Point Anne City Softball League this season. They added a pair of victories to the string this past week and are perched high atop the Belleville and District softball league standing with a seven and a .000 percentage.

Tied for second spot are the Gayer's Marines and Frankford-Bata Shoemen with .667 marks. Belleville Mercehants hold down fourth with .571 followed by Trenton and Marines at .286, Belleville Bobcats with .143 and Madoc winless in six contests.

Extra-inning action featured the games last week. The Bobcats lost a heart-breaker to Frankford-Bata 9-8 in 11 innings while the Merchants and Marines fought to a 4-4 12-inning deadlock. Dr. Bruce Hunter pitched prodding the overtime decision, last another touch one to Trenton by a 6-5 score.

Mary Gay Leads Tourney

CALGARY (CP) — Mary Gay, former Kitchener golfer now residing in Calgary, took a one-stroke lead Sunday in the 36-hole Calgary Ladies' golf challenge trophy with a 75. A 75 in the first round over the Shaganappi course and in second place with Elsie Milligan of Jasper, Alta. The final round will be played Tuesday.

Miss Milligan, who returned to Calgary Sunday morning after reaching the finals of the Ontario ladies championship at Toronto, led Miss Gay by one stroke after the first nine. But she slipped over par on three holes on the back nine while Miss Gay finished with a one-over-par 35 to take the lead.

WISE ADVICE

"When you're in doubt, take the lesser club and smack it as hard as you can."

"That's exactly what I did, too," said Harney, who toured the back nine holes in a four-under-par 31 and won the big money by three strokes. He finished with a nine-over 275.

Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., the defending champion, could have pocketed $10,700 with a repeat victory, settled for second place and won $5,350.

Bob Inman of Detroit was beaten out of a second place tie when Finsterwald dropped a 25-foot birdie putt on the final hole. Canadians' Showing Poor

Al Balding of Toronto fired an even par 71 on the final round to end up with previous cards of 67-73-74 and finished with a 285 total. He captured first prize of $2,000 in a special $5,000 award put up by Canadian Pacific Railway for the tournament sponsors for the Canadian professionals competing.

Balding was three strokes ahead of Stan Leonard, of Lachute, Que., and Vancouver who received $1,400. Leonard had rounds of 67-80-74.

Lyle Crawford of Vancouver finished in a tie for fourth total made up of 72-73-73-72. Gerry Kessering of Kitchener and Toronto shot 73-68-75-72—291 and won $200, while Gordon Brydson of Toronto and Barry Goodfellow of Toronto tected $200. Young Boston Golfer Wins First Big Pro Tournament

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Because he borrowed a hot putter and remembered the wise words of PGA champion Jack Burke Jr., young Paul Harney had his first big golf victory Sunday.

The 27-year-old pro from Bolton, Mass., put on a stirring finish to win $5,700 top money and the Carling Trophy in the $37,000 Flint Open Sunday and his first major victory in three years on the tournament tour.

Harney's putting was sour when he came to this 72-hole event and he borrowed one from a PGA official. The results were good. When he shot a one-over-par on the front nine of the final round, he remembered what Burke told him not long ago:

"When you're in doubt, take the lesser club and smack it as hard as you can."

"That's exactly what I did, too," said Harney, who toured the back nine holes in a four-under-par 31 and won the big money by three strokes. He finished with a nine-over 275.

Room one bidding was like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 D	1 NT
Pass	2 S	All Pass

Opening lead from North was diamond trey. Dummy in east played the king that won. Trump ace was cashed. A low trump was ducked by south and west finessed the ten that lost to ninth jack.

A north low heart return was ducked by dummy. South won this with the queen and cashed diamond queen as well as trump king while he was in. North then got three aces, downing the bid two tricks.

Instead of one no-trump, east could then have doubled for takeout. West could have brought it for one spade. This is something he should make without too many mistakes.

Room two handled the bidding like this:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 C	Pass
1 NT	Pass	Pass	Dbl
Pass	Pass	Pass

Detroit Wings Raise Prices

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings have announced a price increase of 25 to 50 cents for tickets to their 1957-58 hockey games.

The Wings said the new prices were caused by increased overhead similar to that felt in all other sports and entertainment.

Since the double by east was not at the first opportunity, it is construed as a penalty double. However, declarer took a spade, three hearts, 2 diamonds, a club; making one no-trump doubled.

Funny thing about these masters in thi world match. They did not double most of the hands they defeated. And many of the hands they doubled were not defeated.

You can see that each room was wrong in something. Even in the opening bid. Maybe they should have played dominoes.

22 to July 23 (Cancer)—

Auspicious rays. Be alert to advantages, sound offerings that increase your assets, further your interests generally. Fine for familiar matters.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—

Cut needless red tape, going around the bush instead of straight to the heart of matters. Accomplishment may not be confined to monetary gains. You can increase knowledge, improve the quality of your efforts.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) —

Caution is advised in making contracts, estimates, all legal affairs. There may be some trials, errors today but through them, you may find your best self. Well managed endeavors, good work will pay.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) —

Be brief and to the point, but not blunt. Don't brush over seemingly "small" items or details for therein may lie important messages, ideas, plans that fit in to make a whole picture more valuable.

October 24 to November 22 —

(Scorpio) — This day requires forethought, astute handling of chores. Common sense, patience and amiability will bring gratifying results.

November 23 to December 21—

December 22 to January 20—

(Capricorn) — How satisfactory a day this will be depends largely upon how you view obligations and upon your willingness to meet things philosophically. You have fine potentials for success, use them.

January 21 to February 19 —

February 20 to March 20 —

You born today are conservative, tactful, unusually thoughtful and considerate of old folks, children and the unfortunate. Your are also versatile and entertaining. With all these fine attributes, you are, nevertheless, variable, restless and may constantly seek new ——— occupations, or at least, may try to alter your ——— el is educational and delightful at due times and if you can afford it, but you also need to establish a more or less permanent residence and occupation so that your later days won't be fraught with anxiety and needless extra striving. Pray for steadiness, inner contentment. Birthdate: John Horne Tooke, English philologist.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was eating his breakfast to himself, and ma said, Goodness, William, I mean really, you should see the expression on your face. What's all the grimness about? she said.

I dont believe in berdening other people with my trubbles, pop said. The World has got trubbles of its own, he said, and ma said, Now William, I'm not the werld.

Yes you are, my dear, as far as I'm concerned, pop said, and ma said, Then the World is opening its arms to you. So what's wrong? she said.

Well, you know I'm a home lover, especially when it comes to a place for eating meels, particularly since I'm blessed with a justly famous cook, pop said.

Meening ma, and she said, Well my health dont need to worry on my account. Do I ever force you out to a resterant agenst your will? I may use a little gentle persuasion occasionally perhaps, but your final werd is always the ultimate law, I admit I injoy a little change from the kitchin once in a proverbial blue moon, she said.

That's where the grimness comes in, pop said. Your gentle persuasion is the only thing that ever gets me out to a resterant, but I've heard very good reports about that new place on the Avenue, and I'm on the verge of suggesting that we go out and eat there tonight, but if it's a flop I'll only have myself to blame, and if there's anything I dislike it's blaming myself, he said, and ma said, William, I think you're crazy and silly and wonderful.

And she jumped up and gave him sutch a sudden kiss it's a wonder he didn't spill some coffee.

H-Bomb Fallout Further Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atomic scientists told President Eisenhower today the United States can produce a hydrogen bomb about 95 per cent free of radioactive fallout.

Three University of California physicists, visiting the president with Chairman L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission, reported the progress on producing a "clean" H-bomb.

Strauss told reporters that strides have been made since June 5, when Eisenhower reported that fallout had been reduced by nine-tenths from that of earliest H-bombs.

"By the time he made that statement, we had gone about half the way to ten - tenths," Strauss said.

The scientists are Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, Dr. Mark M. Mills and Dr. Edward Teller.

PLANE WARNS OF FIRE

BRIDGEWATER, N.J. (AP)—A plane circled low over a burning chimney here Friday and warned the occupants of the house that there was a fire. Mr and Mrs. Richard Williamson heard the plane and ran out of the house to look. That's when they saw the blaze. It was extinguished quickly.

McMASTER CHANCELLOR

HAMILTON (CP)—E. C. Fox, former chancellor of the University of Toronto, was elected chairman of the new board of governors of McMaster University when it met for the first time Friday. The meeting ended the 70-year control of the university exercised by the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, and completed the amalgamation of McMaster and Hamilton College.

Honor Father Of Fluoridation

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dr. W. L. Hutton of Brantford, Ont., referred to as "the father of fluoridation in Canada," today was given an honorary membership in the Canadian Dental Association at the annual convention of the CDA board of governors.

Former CDA president Dr. K.M. Johnson said Dr. Hutton, Brantford's medical health officer, had made outstanding contributions in the public health field.

Brantford was among the first Canadian cities to adopt such public health measures as pasteurization of milk, small-pox vaccination and toxoid for diphtheria, Dr. Johnson said.

Brantford was the first city in Canada to fluoridate its water supplied. In 1955 Dr. Hutton was honored as "the man of the year" by Brantford civic authorities. The same year he was honored by the Detroit Dental Society for his contribution in the fluoride field.

Would Postpone Repaying Loans Made by Russia

HONG KONG (AP)—Gen. Lung Yun, vice-chairman of Red China's national defence council, has proposed that the Peiping government postpone "for 25 to 30 years" repayment to Russia of loans made during the Korean War.

The former warlord and governor of Yunnan Province has come under scathing attack from the leadership of his own revolutionary committee for a series of anti-Russian and anti-Communist statements in recent weeks.

The Peiping People's Daily says the committee on June 18 charged him with making "wicked and false accusations" in saying the Russians removed large quantities of machinery from Industrial Mukden in the end of the Second World War.

STIRLING — Mr. McCormick Belleville, has been busy painting the interior and exterior of the Stirling post office. The varnishing of the counters was completed Wednesday evening.

KILLED DURING STUNT

HALSTEAD, England (AP)—Albert Heys watched contemptuously as stunt man Stan Lindberg made three 60-foot dives into a tiny tank of water at the annual village fair. "It's simple, I could do it myself," Heys told bystanders. A few minutes later the 50-year-old factory worker whipped off his coat, scaled a ladder to the diving platform, jumped off, hit the side of the tank and was killed.

Caught in Field, 19 Farmers Hurt By Hail Stones

CHICAGO (AP)—Violent weekend storms inflicted new misery and damage on rain-plagued Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Twenty Mexican farmers were caught in an open field Sunday near Port Stockton, Tex., when a vicious storm began showering them, with hail, stones "bigger than baseballs." Nineteen were injured, 16 of them requiring hospital treatment for cuts and bruises. The injured were described as resembling in appearance victims of "a drunken brawl."

Frank Stocker was caught in the same storm. He pulled his car to the side of the road and had his wife and son lie on the floor when the hail shattered his windows. His car was nearly ruined.

The hail caused considerable damage to cotton crops in the area.

A cloudburst dumped three inches of rain at Midland in west Texas. Downpours in Oklahoma caused some flooding.

The rains apparently were the final blow to many wheat farmers. Some were reported giving up the harvest.

NO ATOM AUTOS

PERROS-GUIREC, France (Reuters) — Radiation excludes all possibility of building atom-powered automobiles, says Francis Perron, France's high commissioner for atomic energy. "To protect drivers against the radiation of a motor of a few horsepower, a protection screen weighing 80 tons would be necessary," he told an industrial congress here Sunday.

Jail Breaker Is Recaptured

LONDON (Reuters) — Alfred Hinds, audacious jail breaker who escaped custody at law courts in central London today, was recaptured tonight in Bristol, 120 miles away.

Hinds was nabbed while sitting in a lounge at Lulsgate airport, waiting to board a plane for Dublin.

Passengers recognized Hinds, and a call to police headquarters brought cars racing to the airport.

Hinds led police an exciting chase through the corridors of the court and dashed into a crowded street to freedom.

Guards were taking him from the cells to the courts to hear an action he was instituting against the prison commissioners.

Diefenbaker Plays Iron Man On Parley's Eve

Takes Hectic Schedule In His Stride in London

LONDON (CP) — Iron man John Diefenbaker, seemingly as fresh as the day he started his victorious Canadian election campaign, today continued the round of social and official engagements attached upon the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

He appeared to be taking it in stride.

Bright and early he invited reporters to his seventh-floor suite in the Dorchester Hotel, announced the appointment of the former Progressive Conservative leader, George Drew, as Canadian high commissioner in London, parried a few supplementary questions and went off to his first appointment.

He first saw the Earl of Home, Commonwealth relations secretary, and then had a chat with Robert Menzies, Australian prime minister.

TO SEE QUEEN

His afternoon program included an audience of the Queen at Buckingham Palace. Tonight he is scheduled to attend a dinner given by the Commonwealth Press Union, holding its annual general meeting.

The Canadian leader, a crowded schedule for his 10-day stay in London.

"I feel fine," Diefenbaker beamed at reporters today. The prime minister and his wife were among the few passengers unperturbed when their RCAF plane hit an air pocket after leaving Ottawa Sunday. Bob Bryce, secretary to the cabinet, was knocked out by the impact. In the cabin, the wives of two delegation members landed atop a male delegate, lying prone on the floor of the plane.

"We thought that was diplomatic chivalry of a high order," an official recalled. "It seems funny now, but it didn't then."

LONDON (CP) — Economic themes are expected to dominate the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers opening Wednesday.

Several of the 10 countries are likely to come to the conference table with demands for investment capital. Some account of suggested reappraisal of sterling area financing may be sought.

Canada's proposal for a Commonwealth trade conference, presented by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, is expected to be placed before the premiers at an early date. British ministers are understood to feel that such a conference should probably be deferred until after the European common market and free trade area become an accomplished fact.

Ghana and India are among the countries expected to place emphasis on the need for capital.

Kwame Nkrumah, prime minister of the new West African state, says his great concern is to get other industries to ease his country's dependence on the cocoa crop. Close to her heart is the Volta River project, involving an eight-year program for hauling 20,000,000 tons of earth — 4,305,000,000.

Canadian aluminum interests have participated in surveys said to show that the project is economically feasible.

Voting Barred, Negroes Plan Store Boycott

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP)—Passage of a legislative act excluding Negro voters from this Alabama city has brought talk of a mass boycott by Negroes of local white merchants.

Said one Negro leader, William P. Mitchell, an employee of the Tuskegee Veterans Administration Hospital:

"I guess you could say our people feel that if they can't vote in Tuskegee they won't trade here either."

Mitchell and other Negro spokesmen said an undetermined number of people have already begun to withhold patronage from downtown stores. No one knows how extensive the boycott will become remains to be seen.

A mass meeting has been called for tonight at a Negro church, presumably to discuss the impending new law. Handbills announcing the rally spoke of a "white man's conspiracy."

Negroes outnumber white residents in this approximately 7-to-2 ratio in Tuskegee, a city of 6,800. A serious boycott could have a crippling effect on the city's commerce.

Tito Launches New Attack on Moscow Bloc

BELGRADE (Reuters) — President Tito launched a new attack on Russia and Eastern Europe today, accusing the Moscow-bloc countries of "subalicious" criticism of Yugoslav politics.

The Yugoslav Communist leader said the leaders of these countries were on the one side calling for co-operation and friendship while on the other they accused Yugoslavia of revisionism, anarchism and capitalism.

"Such a method is unfriendly and insulting," Tito told 1,800 cheering delegates at the Congress of Workers Organizations. "We shall not allow ourselves to be seduced by words."

Tito's most surprised foreign observers at the congress, attended by representatives of trade unions scattered from Britain to China and other Communist countries.

Tito said last month that a Soviet - directed campaign against Yugoslavia had ended and that relations were "getting better and better." He said then that there was "great hope" for the future.

U.S. Drops Charge of Espionage Against Guided Missiles Expert

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Colonel John C. Nickerson, Jr., today pleaded guilty to 15 charges that he disobeyed orders in disclosing U.S. guided missile information.

Nickerson's surprise plea came a few minutes after the U.S. government dropped its espionage charge against the missile expert at the opening of his trial by general court martial.

One result of the government's action and the Nickerson plea will be to shut off any possibility of a full-scale review of the U.S. missile program. Originally, Nickerson faced 18 charges of disobedience of orders, perjury and espionage.

The maximum sentence which could be imposed on Nickerson un-

SAUDI ARABIA ENRAGED OVER SYRIAN SMEARS

Threatens to Break Damascus Relations

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The Egypt-Syria axis swung still further from the rest of the Arab world today as Ruling Saudi Arabia's threat to break relations with Damascus.

But observers here believe some face-saving solution will be found to avert an open break with the Saudis, enraged over Syrian press attacks on King Saud.

Saudi Arabia's ambassador to Damascus warned Syrian President Shukri Kuwatly today that the break would come unless Syria ended a violent Syrian press campaign begun when Saud backed Jordan's King Hussein.

The attacks centered their climax last week when the Damascus paper Alel Alaam said a former Egyptian foreign minister and 10 Egyptian army officers were being held in Cairo charged with plotting President Nasser's death. The paper claimed the accused at saying Saud was behind the conspiracy.

Alel Alaam said Saudi authorities had denied any connection with the plot but added the fact that they connected Saud with it at all pushed Saudi Arabia's image. Close to her heart is the Volta River project, involving an eight-year program for hauling 20,000,000 tons of earth — 4,305,000,000.

Kuwatly called an emergency Cabinet session and his envoy delivered his ultimatum. Later Foreign Minister Salah Bitar appeared in Syrian streets to escape from further attacks on King Saud.

PEACE' TALKS STARTED

Premier Sabri Assali said contacts were under way with friendly officials "to clear clouds looming over our countries' relations," and that "we hope these contacts will lead to restoration of unity with Arab lands in the face of dangers surrounding them."

The Syria-Egypt alliance drew the fronts of Jordan and Lebanon together in resist subversion, determination to resist subversion, keeps of prime ministers will receive special recognition. The Queen has graciously consented to the construction of flag poles on Downing Street, and flags of the 10 countries will flutter in the breeze.

The formal meetings are held in the cabinet room at 10 Downing Street, home of Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan, who will preside over the conference for the first time.

At the visiting premiers are committed to a full list of social functions.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker of Canada, for instance, will address the Commonwealth Correspondents Association at a luncheon meeting Friday and will be principal speaker at a Dominion Day dinner given by the Canada Club.

Another visiting premier, Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, addressed the CCA Monday. He pleaded for a breathing space for his fledgling country, which attained independence only three months ago. People should not expect too much too soon, he said. Diefenbaker, who arrived Monday by air from Ottawa, spoke in somewhat similar vein at London Airport, saying he was too new in office to answer some questions reporters fired at him.

Diefenbaker and Nkrumah, rejoined as two of the most intriguing figures at the conference, were scheduled to lunch together today.

The Canadian prime minister will be guest of honor at Buckingham Palace and went to Downing St. to see Macmillan, whom he had not met previously. Their interview took place in Macmillan's study, comfortably-furnished first floor study.

The Canadian leader's busy schedule today also included an audience with the Queen at Buckingham Palace, a call on Lord Home, secretary of state for Commonwealth relations, and also with some of the other visiting prime ministers.

Defence Minister Pearkes, who flew to London with Diefenbaker, had an appointment with Duncan Sandys, his British opposite number.

Busiest Week in History Is Facing Commonwealth

LONDON (CP) — That strange and almost undefinable institution, the British Commonwealth of Nations, is in the midst of possibly the busiest week since the term "commonwealth" was first used some 70 years ago by the Earl of Rosebery.

Item: Representatives of Commonwealth countries are gathering for the opening Wednesday of the eighth post-war conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

Item: Top newspaper men from the family of nations are in town for the annual general meeting of the Commonwealth Press Union, which is holding morning and afternoon meetings from Monday through Friday.

In an action believed unprecedented in the long annals of Commonwealth conferences, the meetings of prime ministers will receive special recognition. The Queen has graciously consented to the construction of flag poles on Downing Street, and flags of the 10 countries will flutter in the breeze.

The formal meetings are held in the cabinet room at 10 Downing Street, home of Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan, who will preside over the conference for the first time.

St. Laurents Vacate Official Residence for Prime Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—The St. Laurents moved out of 24 Sussex Drive over the weekend.

The three-storey official residence of Canada's prime minister was vacated by Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent Sunday night. His wife left Friday.

No official statement has yet been made by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his wife as to when they will move in, although it is generally believed that the redsake greystone building, on four acres at the edge of the Ottawa River, ready for its new occupants when they come back from Europe in about 10 days.

Mr. Diefenbaker arrived in London Monday to attend the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference opening Wednesday. His wife, Olive, is with him.

Meantime, a trustee of the private organization which provided Stornoway, in suburban Rockcliffe, as an official residence for the Leader of the Opposition leader, said Mr. St. Laurent has indicated he will not take up residence there.

The George Drews are still occupying Stornoway, a 14-room house they have lived in for the past seven years. The trustee said they are staying there under a "suitable" financial arrangement.

The Drews bought a house in Toronto after Mr. Drew retired last year because of ill health. Mr. Diefenbaker, after becoming Opposition leader as Mr. Drew's successor, continued living at a hotel.

The mansion at 24 Sussex was provided, at a cost of about $500,000, by Parliament as the official residence of the prime minister. It is completely furnished and all operating expenses are paid by the federal treasury.

It was opened in 1951, the year the St. Laurents moved in. By choice, Mr. St. Laurent confined the official entertaining and expense of operating 24 Sussex during his stay there.

The house is on a high bluff at the edge of the Ottawa with a view across the river to Quebec across the river to the north in Quebec. It is just around the corner from the government House, residence of Governor-General Massey. There are some 20 rooms and 10 bathrooms in the mansion.

Stornoway, a three-storey, grey stucco mansion, was bought and renovated in 1950 at a cost of $71,000 by a group of Canadians who voiced no official association with any political party. Now admitted by a trust company, it is available to the official Opposition leader.

But he must furnish it—it now is furnished by the Drews—and pay taxes of about $1,200 a year on it.

Mr. St. Laurent returned to his Quebec City home after leaving 24 Sussex to spend the summer there and at his summer home at St. Patrick, Que. He is expected to take an apartment when he returns to Ottawa for the next session of Parliament.

The government acquired 24 Sussex in 1943 from the late Gordon C. Edwards for about $140,000. The mansion was renovated at a cost of about $325,000. Furnishings cost about $105,000.

During the St. Laurents' stay, 24 Sussex was run by a staff of

GROMYKO SAYS U.S. USES TALKS AS SMOKESCREEN

Correspondents Given No Chance to Question

MOSCOW (AP)—Foreign Minister Gromyko said Monday that the United States is using the London disarmament negotiations as a screen to continue and intensify the arms race.

In the first press conference called by a Soviet foreign minister since Nov. 30, 1953, Gromyko denounced that the U.S. either put a stop to "aggressive and incendiary" statements by its political and military leaders or tacitly admit its aggressive intentions.

Gromyko took his text chiefly from recent testimony by Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme NATO commander in Europe, in which the American general told a closed session of the U.S. Senate foreign relations committee that the Russ faces sure and "absolute" destruction from the air if she attacks the West.

NO QUESTIONS

Correspondents were given no chance to question Gromyko, who left the seventh-floor conference room in the Kremlin foreign ministry immediately after reading his statement.

Gromyko dismissed the U.S. position that its participation in NATO and other military alliances are purely defensive. He said these arguments could not be considered other than aggressive and incendiary" statements of Norstad and other U.S. leaders and obviously were aimed at "hulling the vigilance of the people."

The Soviet official said the North Western Europe that establishment of unified command and measures to arm the West German Army with atomic weapons proved the "groundlessness of U.S. statements" on the defensive nature of American military policy.

Gromyko, noting that Norstad said NATO planes could "destroy everything of military importance in Russia," added sarcastically: "He-reference forces that planes can fly in either direction . . . even the biggest hotheads among NATO militarists should be clear on this point."

Triamcinolone Newest Member Of Drugs That May Cure Arthritis

TORONTO (CP) — Triamcinolone is the simplest name there is for nine alpha fluoro, 16 alpha hydroxylated steroids.

Triamcinolone is the newest member of the family of drugs used to help relieve the symptoms of rheumatoid arthritis.

It is one of many recent drugs that, it is hoped will ease, if not cure, the disease that has permanently crippled as many as 300,000 Canadians and afflicted many more.

Delegates to the ninth International Congress on Rheumatic Diseases meeting this week in Toronto heard about it Monday from Dr. Richard H. Freyberg of New York.

The chief advantage of triamcinolone is that it gives the same relief as such better-known drugs as cortisone, without dangerous side-effects.

Dr. Freyberg estimated the new drug would be effective in treating 75 per cent of chronic rheumatic cases. Its chief advantages are that it does not cause retention of sodium, which results in tients receiving cortisone on a low-salt diet, and it does not cause softening of the bones.

However, patients receiving triamcinolone have a tendency to lose weight, and it causes headaches and slight bleeding under the skin.

Dr. Frank Hart and Dr. E. G. L. Bywaters of London, England, reported that a study of 100 arthritics showed common aspirin to be as effective as cortisone for treatment as cortisone.

Dr. Hart recommended that classical arthritic care splints and physiotherapy—should be practised by all doctors in addition to any medication given.

Dr. Bywaters said Monday that sufferers from rheumatoid arthritis may have the arthritic parity because of personality. In three separate papers, four U.S. doctors said their studies indicated a definite personality pattern among arthritics.

The four were Dr. Norman O. Rothernich of Columbus, Ohio; Dr. Sidney Cobb of Pittsburgh; Dr. Sanford Gifford and Dr. Theodo-pa-dore B. Bayles of Boston.

Drew Appointed To London Post By Diefenbaker

To Be High Commissioner Effective on August 1st

LONDON (CP)—Canada's Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced at a press conference today that George Drew, former leader of the Progressive Conservative party has been appointed Canadian high commissioner in London.

The appointment is effective Aug. 1. The post has been vacant since last May 8, when the former high commissioner, Norman Robertson, left to become Canadian ambassador in Washington.

Mr. Drew succeeds the high commissioner, has been acting-high commissioner in the interval.

CASUAL DISCLOSURE

Diefenbaker, here for the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers, made the announcement almost casually at a morning meeting with newspaper men in his seventh-floor suite at the Hotel Dorchester. The news took the reporters by surprise. Although Diefenbaker jokingly said there has been some comment "authentic" in Canada about the possibility of Drew's appointment. Drew, 62, ran from Guelph, Ont., was premier of Ontario before he took over as federal leader of the progressive Conservative party.

Gromyko dismissed the U.S. position that its participation in NATO and other military alliances are purely defensive. He said these arguments could not be considered other than aggressive and incendiary" statements of Norstad and other U.S. leaders and obviously were aimed at "hulling the vigilance of the people."

The Soviet official said the North Western Europe that establishment of unified command and measures to arm the West German Army with atomic weapons proved the "groundlessness of U.S. statements" on the defensive nature of American military policy.

Gromyko, noting that Norstad said NATO planes could "destroy everything of military importance in Russia," added sarcastically: "He-reference forces that planes can fly in either direction . . . even the biggest hotheads among NATO militarists should be clear on this point."

HEALTH RESTORED

Asked today about Drew's physical fitness, Diefenbaker said:

"His health is completely restored. As a matter of fact I never have I seen him looking so fit as he came from his recent holiday in Europe."

There was a touch of irony in Diefenbaker's announce of Drew for the extremely important post in London. In 1941, Drew defeated Diefenbaker for the party leadership.

Drew is well known in London and will be a popular figure here. His name has been mentioned in connection with the vacant diplomatic appointment for years even before the result of the June 10 election swept the Conservatives into power. It was generally felt that his appointment would be conditional upon a Conservative victory at the polls.

Diefenbaker was asked whether Drew's appointment confirmed the fact that Drew is not a career diplomat.

"All the considerations have been weighed," he said. "The conclusion determines the whole question."

Final Meeting of Council Held Before Summer Recess, Little Business on Agenda

Belleville city council wrote finis to the work of the first half of 1957 as Monday evening they held their final meeting before the summer recess.

There was little business of importance on the agenda and the meeting was wrapped up in little more than an hour. There was intimation, however, that a special meeting of council would be called during the latter part of July.

The tender of the H. J. McFarland Company Ltd., the lowest of six received, was approved for surface treatment of Bellevile street. The amount of the tender was for $36,675.

Council had estimated $38,000 would be necessary for surface treatment of streets this year and it was unanimously approved that the balance of the money in the budget should be used to treat other streets in addition to those called for in the tender.

The Hugh Murray Company was awarded the contract for the construction of a retaining wall and railing on the east side of the micipal parking lot on Pinnacle street. The cost will be $1,200.

Aldermen Ralph Graham as chairman of the parking committee noted that cars were being dumped onto the site of the old lock factory in order to get the property ready for use for parking as quickly as possible.

MORE

FREE PARKING FOR TIME

He said that unfortunately the parking would be free until the old lock factory basement is stalled, adding that the lot would not be opened until decision had been reached on whether the building at the rear of the lot was to be turned over to the recreation commission.

Alderman Gerald Hyde introduced a recommendation calling for sewer and water to be run to the Bell Telephone property if it would be in the neighborhood of $700.

There is no doubt in my mind that the building will be ultimately turned over to the recreation. Get the mains in and the paving done and get using the parking lot," he said.

Alderman Graham however, said it would be inadvisable to put in the lot until decision had been reached as to the disposition of the building. He was to be torn down exits and entrances to the parking lot might be changed.

Alderman Frank Grandame wanted to know why the parking committee had decided that the lot was not to be paved until decision was made on the building. He said he had not attended any parking committee meetings.

Alderman Graham replied there had been four or five meetings of the committee called and that notices had been sent out to members.

Alderman Les. Digby couldn't see the point of spending $700 on sewer connection now when the lot was not to be paved immediately.

MOTION DEFEATED

Alderman Doug Moxam felt the sewer should be run to the new concert hall building, which he said was a good building and in any event would not be torn down.

The motion to install the sewer now was defeated.

Council also turned down a by-law which would have established a rush hour no parking area on the east side of Front Street south of Upper Bridge.

Merits of the by-law were briefly discussed prior to its defeat on a recorded vote with Alderman Les Digby leading off the debate.

He declared that the traffic situation was not as bad at this point as had been indicated and in any event the bulk of the rush hour traffic travelled across the Upper Bridge from Dundas street. He said he couldn't see the need for a rush hour route at this point.

Alderman Moxam also opposed the by-law but for a different reason. He said merchants in the area should be considered.

Alderman Robert Temple also opposed the measure stating that the parking ban would be an injustice and that merchants in the area deserved consideration.

Alderman Graham, however, said the idea was to aid traffic going north across the bridge rather than traffic continuing along Station St.

Rush Hour no parking would allow traffic intending to proceed along Station Street to peel off earlier and proceed by traffic waiting to cross the bridge.

The by-law was defeated on a 7-5 vote. Approving were: Mayor Forrester and Aldermen Collins, Graham, C. L. Hyde and G. B. Hyde. Opposing were: Aldermen Digby, Grandame, Moxam, McCabe, Temple, Tice and Whalen.

NOTICE OF MOTION

The city electorate at the next municipal election may be given the opportunity to vote on whether they approve of the city manager form of government and whether they feel council should be reduced to six members and a mayor elected by annually,

Alderman Gerald Hyde gave notice of motion that the matter would be brought in for decision at some subsequent meeting of council. There was no discussion.

Tenders will be called for the replacement of certain sidewalks with ating City Manager Drury S. Denyes and City Engineer Charles Mott authorized to open tenders and make recommendation to the next meeting of the council.

Mrs. Carl O'Neil appeared as spokesman for the Churchill Heights delegation asking that something be done about the playground in her area. She said the playground was in a disgraceful condition. Mayor Jane Forrester promised the matter would be taken up with the recreation committee.

Council will also investigate whether city-owned property at the easterly end of Hastings Drive should be retained. Ald. Roberton Collins said the lots were growing up to weeds and suggested that some of the good building lots if the city was not retaining them for a useful purpose.

WANTS ADDITIONAL SEWERS

Ald. Doug Moxam called for plans for construction of additional storm sewers in the city, noting that there were 90 streets with no storm sewers.

On many other streets there were only catch basins leading into sanitary sewers. This was the reason, he said, for sewers backing up following heavy rains.

"We are going to get in an awful mess unless we get going on this soon," he said.

Mayor Forrester commented that Ald. Moxam's enquiry was related to a project to install sewers which had been submitted to council by the city manager. The report, she said, was a full one.

Pharmacists Key People Between Doctors, Patients

Courtland Miller, well-known Belleville druggist, introduced the Central Ontario representative of Parke, Davis and Company, Jack Wilson, to the Rotary Club yesterday.

Mr. Wilson, a 1948 graduate of the University of Toronto, told Rotarians that Parke, Davis and Company is one of the largest pharmaceutical manufacturing firms in North America. He said that a few years ago the products of the druggists of today were unknown in their profession, but because of the advances of scientific research and the discovery of many new products, the pharmacy profession has been launched toward a rapidly expanding future. Pharmacists are the key people between doctors and patients, he told the duties of a corner drug store lie life-saving, pain-killing or health-giving ingredients — it takes highly trained people to measure out the exact prescription as ordered by a doctor.

To illustrate the close connection between doctors and pharmacists, Mr. Wilson showed a film "Going Our Way?" which was produced at the expense of Parke, Davis and Co. The film described the problems faced by a young doctor as he tried to form a practice in a small city of comparable size to Belleville. At first, although he was well-liked by the citizens, he was at odds trying to make a success of his career because the people distrusted his abilities as a doctor. However, eventually, after giving physical examinations to the high school football squad and saving the life of a prominent judge, he was accepted and his practice flourished. The picture ended with the doctor describing to a group of students the various occupations that work hand in hand in making drugs and their by-products.

Former Sidney township farmer, Walter Ketcheson, whose interest in gardening paid handsome dividends and created a beauty spot at the Continental Can premises on Dufferin avenue, Rock gardens and flower beds attended by Mr. Ketcheson for 17 years have drawn favorable comment from flower lovers near and far. Walter Ketcheson Makes Premises Into Showplace

TRENTON (Special) — Walter Ketcheson, horticulturist and flower lover who developed the grounds at the Continental Can premises into the showplace of Trenton, is retiring when the last blooms drop off this fall. The genial grower retired as warehouse manager of the local plant two years ago but continued to attend to the gardens at the front and along the south side of the can company's building.

During his 17 years growing flowers and shrubbery Mr. Ketcheson donated hundreds and hundreds of bouquets to local and neighboring hospitals, lodges and service clubs. "He's made a lot of people happy by his thoughtful gestures," remarked a friend.

According to Mr. Ketcheson his ancestors came to America on the Mayflower. Later they made their way into Canada with the United Empire Loyalists and received a land grant of 1,000 acres in Sidney township halfway between Trenton and Belleville. Many years that followed the name of Ketcheson became prominent as one of the pioneers of the district.

Walter Ketcheson carried on farming in Sidney township for years. He moved his family to Trenton when he found employment in the Liquor Control Board's store here. His three sons, Horace, Stanley and Douglas, are active service overseas in World War II, the two former returning to live in Trenton and eventually settling down in Oshawa as service police with the hydro. His wife was killed in an unfortunate highway accident near Picton, December 16, 1939.

On retirement Mr. Ketcheson will continue to live in Trenton.

Retail Merchants Discuss Parking Lots for 300 Cars

The Retail Merchants Association of the Chamber of Commerce met today to discuss the proposed parking lots on Pinnacle St. and the east side of the river, planned to provide parking for approximately 300 cars.

One of the parking areas would be constructed on the former Belleville Lock building property, with two others located in the areas at the rear of the stores on the west side of Front Street above and below the foot bridge.

J. B Corke is chairman of the retail section. Co-chairmen of the parking committee are Cleo Colling and Dave Lunn. Mr. Colling outlined the general proposal and Mr. Lunn discussed the financial aspects of the scheme.

The plan put before the voting public and city council is not the same plan as one now being considered. The present plan is a self-liquidating scheme that will be settled through the revenue received from parking meters. It will take ten years to retire the loans from the individual merchants and businessmen and the city's investment portion, on a pro rata basis. The costs of producing the lots are based on purchase price and actual construction costs, grading, paving and metering.

A new pledge form will be drawn up and sent to the Front Street firms which would benefit from the parking lots. The new form will incorporate specific details which will be more binding on city council and the merchants and businessmen.

The group hopes to receive pledges totalling $65,000. According to Mr. Corke the pledges could be in before the plan is taken to the council.

A motion made by Ted Schwab and seconded by Steve Angus received unanimous approval from the 46 persons present at the meeting. The motion read "that we record the names of those present today and approve the actions of the committee to date and continue having in mind the suggestions that have been made today."

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Catherine Forbes, 45, told magistrate's court Monday she stole 1,196 grocery items from the YWCA kitchen where she worked so that she could save them to open a store.

She pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and was sentenced to one day in jail and fined $400. Wholesale value of the goods involved was $389.90.

Robt. Ingram, 19, of Stirling, Killed As Car Upsets

Robert Ingram, 19, of Stirling, was fatally injured, and another Stirling district young man, Jewell Ray, 21, is in critical condition in Belleville General Hospital after their car went out of control and rolled over several times on Highway 14 north of Stirling late Monday afternoon.

The Ingram youth suffered a brain injury and died in hospital shortly before eight o'clock this morning.

Mr. Ray also suffered brain damage, severe facial and scalp lacerations and injury to his right foot.

The accident occurred two and a half miles north of Stirling near the home of Ray's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Ray. The late model auto, owned and driven by Ray, was southbound when it went out of control. The vehicle went to the west shoulder, then swerved across the highway to the east shoulder and rolled over several times down the ditch, returned to the road and came to rest on its wheels in the centre of the highway. Both youths were thrown from the vehicle.

Provincial Police who investigated said the cause of the car going out of control had not been determined. Provincial Constable D. G. Lebow of Madoc investigated.

The Ingram youth, son of Mrs. Helen Ingram, Stirling, is the third member of his family to die violently within the past three years, and the second to die in an automobile accident.

Red Shield Appeal Meets With Success

Mr. Frank Domenico, general chairman of this year's Salvation Army Red Shield Appeal, today announced that the campaign will be an assured success. Although there are still some returns to come in, present indications are that the work of the Salvation Army will be carried on to the fullest extent, due to the splendid cooperation and response of the people of the district.

Exact figures will not be known until final subscriptions are turned in, and Mr. Domenico urges all those who have not as yet made their contribution, to do so, either through their canvasser or direct to the Salvation Army Citadel on Pinnacle Street.

Other chairmen, together with Captain Ivany of the local corps, wishes to express his deep gratitude to all those who assisted in any way to put this year's campaign over the top.

Vintage Machines Ready to Roll On Long Tour

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—She's got 110,000 miles on the clock and never so much as had the brakes adjusted. She'll still do 84 miles an hour, about the same as when she was new 30 years ago and she rides better than most new cars today.

Her original cost? Over $23,000, and the owner turned down recent offers of $10,000.

The name, of course, is Rolls Royce, and the car was one of nearly 30 vintage machines which left London Monday morning in the first London to Brighton antique automobile race in North America.

The event, which may be held annually, is similar to the famous London to Brighton race held in England to celebrate the emancipation of the automobile.

To commemorate Monday's beginning, Neil Kennedy, London executive member of the Antique Automobile Club of America, presented Mayor Ray Dennis with a plaque.

Jackie Cooper Up for Speeding

MOJAVE, Calif. (AP)—Highway patrolmen say actor Jackie Cooper with his 19-year-old son as a passenger, hit 145 miles an hour in his $12,000 Mercedes-Benz sports car during a desert chase.

One patrol car blew a tire at 115 miles an hour and another tore the tread off a tire at 120 before Cooper finally was stopped at a roadblock, officers said. The chase took place Saturday but was not made public until Monday.

Cooper said he was unaware he was being chased. He was arrested for reckless driving and speeding and ordered to appear in the Mojave court.

Hold Enjoyable Annual Picnic

The members of J. & J. Cash's Social Club held their annual picnic at Cedardale on Sunday last. A fine program outlined the day's festivities. Races, tugo'-war and games featured the sporting events.

The winners are as follows: Girls 5-8, Ann Flood, Valerie Overton; boys 6-8, Eric Lane, Jimmy MacDonald.

Girls 9-11: Heather Mills, Frederica Morley; boys 9-11, Denis Lane, Roger Young.

Girls 12-15: Heather Mills, Frederica Morley; boys 12-15, Wayne Kingston, Stuart Dunphy.

Single men's race: Marvin Hall, Arthur Hart; married men's race: E. Kandlar, Dale Short.

Single women's race: Diane Lee, Brenda Carter; married women's race: Gwen Larocque, Mary Boogars.

The tug-of-war title holders tugged an easy win over their single opponents to retain the title. However, in the contest between the married women and the single women, the lobby-dockers won an easy victory over their married adversaries in a one-way affair.

The prize for the oldest person on the grounds was won by Mr. Marshall Dyas, while Ricky Cash was the youngest attending the picnic.

At the conclusion of the program of races everyone enjoyed a basket lunch which concluded the day's outing.

U.S., Other Govts. Discuss Arab Refugee Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is discussing with friendly governments whether they should make a new international move to solve the problem of the million Arab refugees in the Middle East.

The exploratory talks developed partly from Vice-President Richard Nixon's urgent recommendations that redoubled efforts be made to find permanent homes for these victims of the Palestine war.

Nixon called for this three months ago after returning from a visit to eight African and Middle Eastern countries. He called the plight of the Arab refugees the "biggest single roadblock" to Middle East peace.

MONTH-LONG EFFORT

Diplomatic officials reported today that ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge has been quietly discussing the problem with other governments at the United Nations for nearly a month. Neither the Arab countries nor Israel have been brought into the talks thus far.

American officials are reported to have some new ideas on the nine-year-old problem, but stress that no new detailed plan as such has yet been drafted.

Egyptian newspapers have been bitterly denouncing what they describe as secret negotiations on the refugee problem.

American authorities said they interpret the Egyptian denunciations as a propaganda effort to bolster President Nasser's prestige as champion of the Arab refugee cause.

The three main points that would serve as a framework for any permanent settlement, American officials say, remain what State Secretary Dulles proposed Aug. 26, 1955. These are:

The three main points that would serve as a framework for any permanent settlement, American officials remark what State Secretary Dulles proposed Aug. 26, 1955. These are:

1. Admission by Israel of the right of the refugees to return to their homes in former Palestine and to receive compensation.

2. Recognition by Arab governments that the slight of the refugees is not to be employed as a political weapon, disregarding the humanitarian aspects.

3. Large-scale American financial assistance to help most of the refugees find new homes in areas which might be irrigated by new water development projects.

GOOD SHOW!

The efforts of a small group of Belleville bicycle dealers to organize a thorough check of bicycles ridden by school children in the city is worthy of commendation.

Originator of the Belleville Bicycle Safety Dealers is Ralph Tuck. Five other agencies are also participating in the movement.

The goal of the "Safety Dealers" is to inspect every bicycle in Belleville to make sure each one is roadworthy and carries some safety devices. Since May 22 the group has checked over 1,500 bicycles and found 97 per cent of them in sound condition. This is a feather in the caps of the youthful "wheel" owners, for it is no simple thing for a youngster to keep his bicycle in tip-top shape. The normal tendency among the younger set seems to be to procrastinate and let minor repair jobs slip until major ones are indicated.

Mr. Tuck should receive an extra medal for his keen interest in the safety of every man, woman and child in Belleville. Nowadays there are more "wheels" on the road than at any other time previously, and it appears as if bicycle sales next year will boom, too. The more bikes there are on the road the more pedestrians and motorists have to be on their toes. It isn't every young person who is "wheel" who always thinks of safety rules and traffic regulations. Perhaps some cyclist or pedestrian will be spared the agony of injuries thanks to the "Safety Dealers'" program.

Assisting Mr. Tuck and the others involved in the safety plan is the encouragement given them by the Belleville Public and Separate School Boards in Belleville, which endorsed the movement late in May. The Belleville Recreation Committee is also entitled to a bouquet for all the work it has done so far to help the Belleville Bicycle Safety Dealers.

We, too, heartily endorse the aims of the Belleville Bicycle Safety Dealers.

ONTARIO HYDRO REPORTS

In a handsome booklet, the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario has presented an outline of its activities during 1956 and of its stature at the close of that year. Striking photographs in color and informative graphs adorn the 28-page report, but some of the most interesting stories are condensed into a statistical summary printed on the inside back cover.

From this summary we learn that in 1956 the HEPC made available to consumers 12,736,445,000 kilowatt hours of electricity, of which it generated 8,517,-10,000 kilowatt hours itself and purchased the remaining 4,218,835,000 kilowatt hours. Ten years later the energy made available was 29,523,547,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of almost 150 per cent. Yet the number of kilowatt hours the commission purchased in 1956, 4,381,252,000, was only slightly above its purchases in 1946. In other words the HEPC had met almost all of the increased demand for power by increasing the generating capacity of its plants, stepping up their output up from 8,517,610,000 kilowatt hours to 15,142,295,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of almost 200 per cent.

Most Ontario residents, we suspect, will feel that it is much better for the HEPC to generate power within the borders of the province to any extent possible, even if it has to supplement "hydro" by building thermal-electric plants and planning to generate power by the use of nuclear energy, than it is to depend too heavily on the purchase of power generated outside the province.

For that reason we believe that Ontario residents have just cause to be proud of the manner in which the Commission has met the challenge to serve the demands of a growing province.

WHOA!

The Ontario and Quebec Baptist Convention which met in Ottawa recently has softened the terms of a resolution calling on the Canadian government for the abolition of the use of atomic weapons in wartime.

Dr. Harvey Denton of Peterborough was quick to realise that the convention had asked the government to put the cart before the horse, so to speak, and hastily recommended that the resolution be changed slightly.

Unless we missed something, we don't recall ever hearing that our armed services have received any lukewarm welcome.

The new version of the resolution now calls on the government "to seek through the agreement with other nations, to renounce completely the use of atomic weapons in war."

History of Train's Toot

By Jack Maguire, in Railway Progress

For 124 years locomotives have been touting their way along the railroads of the world.

In 1833 an English farmer, unable to hear the warning wail of the tin horn that was then standard equipment for another engine, drove his cart into the path of a train. The cart, plus 80 dozen eggs and 50 pounds of butter, was demolished.

To reduce the possibility of similar accidents in the future, George Stephenson, the builder of the locomotive, invented a new device.

He attached a pipe to the locomotive boiler through which steam might be expelled with a shrill note, and this new chemical stood as equipment on all engines.

* * *

Stephenson's device was called a steam "trumpet" until it came to America in 1836.

In that year, the Long Island road asked George Washington Whistler, father of the famous painter, to build a locomotive engineer, to build a warning device for the front of the railroad's locomotives. After its installation, Long Island railroad men began calling the locomotive "Whistler's Locomotive."

Those passengers had dubbed the locomotive "the Whistler". As the gadget spread to other engines, it became known as a "whistle" and by the name has stuck.

* * *

The low, melodius whistle of the steam locomotive was almost musical, and the balance of was criticized when diesels began blasting their raucous air horns about the countryside.

Many a train-boarder demanded that the old steam whistle replace the harsh bellowing of the new locomotives. This, of course, was impossible because diesels don't manufacture enough steam or air pressure to produce the lonesome wail of the old steamer.

However, the railroads have compromised by hiring experts to coax musical tones from the diesel horn. Musicians say that the result is a blend of sharp, E, G and A at different frequencies, resulting in a soothing A major seventh chord.

* * *

Moose like the diesel air horn too well. To a bull moose it sounds exactly like the mating call of his lady love. In the north woods, every time a diesel tooted within hearing of a bull moose, he bounded happily out of the forest to further the acquaintance.

Naturally, he felt a bit frustrated when he found a steel monster instead of a doeeyed lady moose, and he frequently vented his frustration by charging the diesel.

This often had disastrous results for the moose and caused no little wear and tear on locomotives. The engineers pictures leave the moose untouched, romantically and physically.

Some of the railroad members put blocks of wood on their whistles to give them a mellower tone. One engineer played "Polly Put the Kettle On" at his home crossing; another played "Sweet Home" at midnight every New Year's eve. City ordinances helped kill the art.

Pest Control Supplement

Milwaukee Journal

When man starts fooling around with the balance of nature, he has to be careful. A species of wildlife introduced to eat what the use of chemical pesticides is doing to the nation's wildlife resources. Last year, 65 million acres of farmland—one sixth of the United States total—were sprayed, the farmer with 9 million acres of forest.

Thousands of birds have died, the spray was aimed. The insect target is not always reached. It does not propose that pest control be ended, of course, but suggests that a study might bring information on how to achieve the desired effect with the minimum damage to fish and wildlife.

Milwaukee county has a similar problem on a small scale, as the Metropolitan sewerage service spraying is being done to protect Lake Michigan beaches. Deaths of birds from the poison have been fairly extensive in the areas where the spray is. Apparently pleasant neighbors but perform a useful function in connection with insect pests.

Ways to minimize the dangers of DDT and other sprays are needed. Otherwise we may find ourselves in the position of an Indian husband who was troubled with mice. He bought some snakes which gobbled up the rodents. Then he had to acquire a mongoose and its mate to get rid of the snakes.

Some time later a neighbor found him camped outside his house and inquired why. "Everything's fine," the housebuilder said, "and I'm rid of all my pests. But there's one small drawback. There just isn't room for me more with all those mongooses."

Common Male Of America

Cosmopolitan Magazine

Today the American male is being called the biggest, richest, healthiest male in history. Just taller and considers being 6 feet tall a personal achievement. He's slightly damaged: One in three is not fool thinking; one in five are defects, and two out of three wear glasses.

Six out of ten prefer brunets three want blondes and one chooses a red top.

He married at 21, and in three years has two children. He prefers double to single beds; changes his position every seven minutes when sleeping, and one in two has trouble falling asleep.

His waist is the highest in the world.

His day: Up at 6:30, breakfast at 7, noon lunch, dinner at 6, bed by 10. Saturdays he stays up until 11, and he sleeps late and golfs on Sundays. Ninety-four per cent believe in God 68 per cent in life after death, 95 per cent in prayers help.

Only one in ten can say he is presently reading a book or has traveled more than 250 miles from home.

Fifty-two per cent find fault with their women, on the other hand 71 per cent of the women find fault with the biggest, richest, healthiest of all males.

Men divide evenly as to whether a woman looks or brains are more important. Two per cent don't care along with their neighbors. Sixty-two per cent help with the housework, and the perceived age is growing as he is educated.

Seven out of ten believe the farmer is happier than the city brother. Farmers agree.

What's happening to the American male? His grandfather would probably say he's behaving like a fool, what with some wearing pink muda shorts in pastel colors, girdles and perfume.

The American woman apparently oblivious of the havoc her feminanimity is working among an increasingly aggressive role. At the same time, the American male seems to draw ever within himself, becoming more passive, even as responsible husband.

Not content with dressing her men, the American woman is also seeking to remake his physiognomy. Of late there has been a boom in the use of eye shadow. It is estimated that 250,000 American men wear hairpieces of various kinds. Women are also responsible for more men wriggling into girdles than for proper reasons.

Psychiatrists are worried about all this. They say there is an increasing sexual ambiguity and resultant lack of masculinity and healthy respect between men and women.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is an ancient saying: "Never lend money to a friend, for then you lose both."

A wealthy old boy of my acquaintance has given this a special twist.

"The best way to get rid of tiresome people is to lend them money," he says. "For instance, how old I know I was going to be well off? Any number of friends, when you are young, with some People who turn out to be a different sort from what you thought they would be. I had one bosom friend in my twenties who, in his thirties, joined one of those fanatical small religious sects that worship a snake in session with him. He was so darn good, and honest, and pure, I was ship for him as long as I could. lashed, that I didn't know how to deal with him. So I just avoided his life out of me, trying to convert me to his new faith which I found deeply obnoxious. So my faith as it was precious to him. In due time, he became a nuisance. Just a plain nuisance. By sheer good luck, he got into difficulties, and I was able, even then, to lend him $1000. I have hardly seen him since. And that was twenty years ago.

"Take relatives," he said. "Blood is thicker than money, surely. Now, my wife, who turned out to be a bit of a pain in the neck after we were married twenty years or so, can't stand my relations either. We had one set of relatives who, when I started to make money, began coming to stay with us in our first big home. They would stay for a week, and then stay longer. They simply took us over as their forthcoming resort. To them, it was the most natural thing in the world that they should visit us at regular intervals and have a whale of a time. I thought my wife would go crazy. She was going to leave me. Well, I wouldn't want to have to go through all the trouble of finding and shipping myself to any more women; so I was overjoyed when my relatives asked me if I would lend them quite a substantial sum as a down payment on a house. I borrowed the money. You bet I would.

"I've got rid of them, except at family weddings and funerals, of course. They have never been back for a nice long visit. How could they, when they still owe me the money, plus interest, of which my bank keeps reminding them, periodically, as a matter of mere routine."

A cold blooded old man? Not at all. There are lots of us who have not got acquaintances we would like to be able to lend $1000 to.

The flag was made for the late Thomas Forster of Brampton especially for the confederation of the provinces on July 1st, 1867 and was later the possession of his brother, the late Dr. Moffatt Forster of Toronto who presented it to his daughter, Mrs. Geo. Mr. Thomas C. Brown, a graduate of the Ontario Business College, a native of Desceronto, visited the college yesterday and gave an interesting talk to the students. Mr. Brown is a senator in the New York State Senate and comes from Schenectady, N. Y., where he is a prominent resident and a successful contractor.

Car Noises Are Warning

New York Times

As cars pour out onto the highways for summer driving the Automobile Club of New York suggests the advisability of each driver being on the alert for unusual noises. Not all these noises usually are warnings that something has gone wrong or is about to go wrong. Motorists can save money if they understand the significance of proper servicing.

For instance, a persistent rattle under the hood may be the result of a loose radiator shell. A heavy thumping may mean a battery loose in its cradle. Hissing sounds when the car is running probably result from broken or loose spark plugs. Thumping or pounding under the hood during acceleration probably comes from broken or loose engine mounts. Knocking when the engine is pulling hard indicates that the cylinders need reconditioning.

Body rattles often mean it is time to tighten loose bolts, screws and the hood. A rattle from the underside of the car often calls for a check of the muffler and tail pipe. A chattering sound could come from loose and worn wheel bearings, loose spindle bolts and loose shackles. A loud squeal means you may need new brake linings. These are only a few of the m s s ibl sounds and noises sounds but a wise driver will listen for — and heed — them all.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Let Them Wait A Little Longer

According to a Reuters dispatch in Canadian papers, the British medical world is debating the merits of tonsillectomy; and the socialized health service is fencing itself on the question of "fashionable" tonsillectomies as a result of the operation on eight-year-old Prince Charles.

On one hand Dr. John Fry, writing in the London Medical Doctor, says tonsillectomy is just a mass ritual — a fashionable operation performed for no scientific reason. "Well-to-do children have it more often than others."

But Dr. James Crooks, who removed the Prince's tonsils, recites the questionable argument that "many children have fewer and less troublesome colds following the operation."

The atrocity was perpetrated on Prince Charles because "despite his strong, sturdy build, he has been prone to frequent colds and a runny nose."

Atrocity? Yes, I believe it is an atrocious to subject a child to an unnecessary operation, because a major operation is one that involves risk of life, and tonsillectomy is fatal in a number of cases. But I just can't understand how a medical man can calmly consent to it nor how doctors can so misrepresent the hazards of tonsil and adenoid removal.

The best statistics bearing on this question are those obtained by Dr. Albert D. Kaiser in a study of Rochester, N.Y., school children over a period of many years. As Dr. Kaiser summed it up:

"Statistical studies on groups of children with control groups of like ages, present a very slight benefit for the children whose tonsils and adenoids have been removed.... If, however, healthy tonsils and adenoids are removed the child may become more susceptible to colds. Even though the etiological factor (Medicalese for cause) in colds is still uncertain, there is evidence to associate colds with lymphoid tissue" (the kind of tissue in tonsils, adenoids and kernals or glands down the side of the neck) "in the nasopharynx" (the space behind the palate and the portion of the throat you can see when the patient says ah) "does predispose to colds and should be removed. It must be recognized, however, that colds do not bear in many instances a close relation to the tonsils and adenoids, and for that reason ... et cetera, et cetera.

Evidently Dr. Kaiser was unable to make up his mind about it, and no wonder. After all, what is "the common cold" which doctor who favors "the common cold" a convenient means of stringing patients along is free to do so from the dentist and the heck with what any parent's doctors may think or say about it.

Dr. Fry, referring to the long waiting list in Canada, mentions some 100,000 children, suggesting that waiting might be a good thing, for it gives doctors and parents a chance to reconsider.

I hope most of the hundred thousand children's guardians or their parents wait all summer — for if the kids get enough sunshine or skyshine (daylight in shade) this summer their enlarged tonsils and adenoids will very likely shrink to normal by the end of vacation.

TURNED THE TIDE OF HISTORY

The most astounding fact in history is that Jesus of Nazareth should have made upon the world the lasting impression He did.

He had a public career of only three years. He wrote no books or articles. He lived in an out-of-the-way corner of the world, and was probably never more than 150 miles from His birthplace.

Yet time is dated from His birth. Christian and pagan historians confess that this Jesus is the most important figure in world history. Other men have influenced the course degree, the course of history: this man turned it around and caused it to flow in a different direction.

What was the source of His incredible triumph? First, His perfect character. Second, His ability to speak straight to the deepest needs of the human heart. Third, His unique personality which has made Christian life ever since a thing of miraculous quality.

Fourth, the conviction which the life of Jesus of Nazareth was the divine incarnation of God's power, wisdom, and love. He exercised, in other words, the exercise an indescribable power over the hearts of men and women.

The best explanation of Jesus is that He was just what the New Testament claims He was—and is.

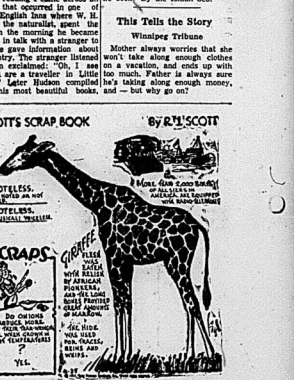
THE OLD INNS

It wasn't born early enough to have experienced the joy and comradeship, as well as the hospitality, of our early inns. Most of them were built in the nineteenth in America. They had flavor and charm.



I have wished that I might some day visit England and Ireland just to visit their historical inns. I have always thought that Washington and Irving were wont to meet, as did Franklin and his friends.

The past salutes but the aftermath — but echoes. George Gissing wrote delightfully about some of these old inns in Italy in his little book "By the Ionian Sea."

Reinforcing Canadian Brigade In Europe Tough if War Came

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the hardest problems besetting the army general staff is that it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to reinforce the Canadian Infantry Brigade group in West Germany if war came to Europe.

The overseas brigade would be left to fight on its own with little or no hope of help from home—a blow at morale.

Brig. G. C. Leech, director-general of army plans and operations, recently outlined for a group of European journalists the difficulties of reinforcing Canadian troops in Europe in event of war. These include:

1. There is no ocean passenger shipping under Canadian register.

2. The Canadian armed forces did not have large requirement for air troop transport in peacetime and thus did not have enough planes for such a role if war came.

3. Principal ports on the east coast do not have large transit facilities, though this situation would be improved with development of Camp Gagetown, N.B.

4. Canadian ports might be knocked out by nuclear weapons. And unloading in Europe might be even more difficult.

5. Much army equipment could not be carried by air but only by sea.

ANSWER NOT IN AIR

Brig. Leech said at one point: "... Air transport will not solve our movement problems within Canada; nor will it solve the problem of transporting our troops from Canada to Europe."

He has long been an exponent of air movement capability for the army. But supplying the army with such a capability would cost millions of dollars—one estimate is $150,000,000 to lift a brigade.

The Air Industries and Transport Association suggested to the government a few years ago that civil aircraft be earmarked for wartime use as military transports. Nothing came of this but the idea may be revived now that a new government is in office.

Shoemen Defeat Trenton Juniors; Take 2nd Place

FRANKFORD — (Special) — Veteran Robert Hunter pitched the Frankford - Bata Shoemen into second place in the Belleville and District softball league last night with a 6-2 triumph over the Trenton Legion Juniors.

Hunter allowed just four singles to the fifth place Juniors while firing third strikes by 11 and walking only three. The victory was his third of the campaign against one setback.

The Shoemen took a 2-0 lead in the third frame but Trenton came back with single markers in the fourth and sixth to tie the contest. A single by Hunter, a walk and error and Mike Cosgrove's base smash tallied a pair in the bottom of the sixth to win it. They added insurance runs in the seventh and eighth.

Ron Wannamaker took the losing pitcher, relieving Howard Cole in the third. He gave up four runs, fanned one and walked three. Cole whiffed one while passing four.

Cole ran into control trouble in the third frame when he walked three and gave up two runs on Bill Rankin's base hit. Leavitt belted a bases-empty home run for the victors' final tally in the eighth.

Leavitt with a homer and single was the only Shoeman with more than one hit. Vic Burtt and Harry Wickson had doubles while Mike Cosgrove, Bill Rankin, Bob Hunter and Harold Baker collected one single each.

Howard Cole had half of his club's hits while the others went to Roger Drake and Doug Alexander.

The victory, combined with Goyer's Marines' loss, placed Frankford - Bata alone in second place. The Belleville Merchants are third and Marines fourth but all are far behind Point Anne in the top slot.

Destroy Records After Judicial Inquiry Ordered

TORONTO (CP)—A Progressive Conservative election worker said Monday he destroyed all his records after a judicial inquiry was ordered into alleged padding of voters' lists in Toronto St. Paul's federal riding.

Stafford Roberts made the admission to Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, who is conducting the inquiry ordered after Conservative candidate Roland Michener, subsequently elected, said he found 600 fictitious names on voters' lists in his riding.

Roberts admitted signing 70 affidavits on behalf of persons seeking inclusion on voters' lists although he knew only 12 of them personally. He was asked who brought the forms to him.

DESTROYED RECORDS

"I'm not sure," he answered. "I destroyed my records after the election."

"After this inquiry was announced you destroyed your records?" asked the chief justice. "All of them?"

"Yes," said Roberts.

Chief Justice McRuer described as "amazing carelessness" the manner in which affidavits were taken by two lawyers, Gregory Cameron, who had worked for Liberal candidate James Rooney, and Kenneth A. Lund, a Conservative worker.

NOT PROPER AFFIDAVIT

Lund said no formal oath was put to him when he signed a batch of forms but he had raised his hand and declared: "I swear the contents are true, so help me God, to the best of my knowledge and belief."

"Where is the authority for that oath?" asked the chief justice.

"You realize the purpose of an affidavit? So that if it is untrue the person taking it can be convicted of perjury? You realize so long as it is in the form, "to the best of my knowledge and belief," he could never be convicted? That is not an affidavit, that's a sort of statutory declaration."

All three witnesses said they had signed their affidavits in good faith. Roberts said at least two of his Conservative party canvassers were Queen's counsels and he didn't feel it necessary to question them when they submitted affidavits to him.

TRACTOR DRIVER KILLED

KINCARDINE (CP) — John Campbell, 15, was killed Monday when the tractor he was driving overturned on a slope on a Bruce Township farm and pinned him underneath. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frances Campbell of Tiverton.

Minor Baseball

Knights of Columbus scored a 11-5 victory over Parkdale last night in the bantam section of the Belleville minor baseball association.

Parkdale blew a 2-0 lead when the K. C. crew scored six runs in the bottom of the second. Two errors hurt Parkdale's cause while several terrific fielding plays by Jimmy Stafford, Bill Morston at second base cut short several other Parkdale scoring chances.

Casey Sloden gained his third win of the season while going the route. He gave up eight hits and whiffed 10.

Moreau accepted the loss. He gave up five hits and walked seven in 3 2-3 innings. Stratton took over in the fourth, fanning seven, walking two.

Terry McCabe had a triple and Bucky Ebner a double to pace the winners at bat. Singles went to Stu Malloy, Bob Richardson, Casey Soden, Bill Moreton and Kerry Soden.

Rathwell had a double and single in defeat while Duval singled twice, Gary Davis and Digby added doubles, McCrimmon and Stratton singles.

Kenmor midgets took over first place in the midget division by belting Vaughans 16-6, dropping the losers from the top spot.

Kenmore built an 8-0 lead before the losers scored and were never in trouble. They stole seven bases in the game considerably.

Larry Soden stopped Vaughans on five hits in hurling the distance, whiffing five, walking four and hitting two other batters.

Gord Vaughan pitched the route for the losers, tagged for 14 hits, fanning two and walking seven.

Moe Hunter banged a triple and two singles to lead the Kenmore attack. Gnry Goyer, Bill Moxam, Jim Sherridan and Larry Soden had two hits each with Ricky Locke; Gord Smith and Duffy Follwell getting the others.

Dave Fairfax collected a double and single for Vaughans. Ralph Plane, John Brennan and Doug Moreau had one-baggers.

Kiwanis whipped Williams-Oil-o-Matic 16-11 in peewee baseball on Monday evening.

W. Mofat pitched the full game for Kiwanis, allowing just two hits but walking eight. He fanned 11 batters.

R. Dainard was the loser in going the route. He gave up ten hits, fanned four and walked seven.

The winners booted the ball on four occasions, the losers on ten.

Richard Coe banged a two-run homer for Williams in the seventh and also had their other base hit.

D. Hannah, Billy Moffat, M. Bell, P. Cleary, D. Belch and D. Tomaso hit safely for the winners.

Freddy Spafford, who earlier this year tossed a no-hitter, came through with a one-hit chore last night. He fanned 11 over the distance while walking only four.

Peter Scarth was the losing pitcher, tagged for 14 hits.

Spafford led his own attack with a triple and two singles while Art Lucas had a double and a couple singles and Wayne Wood three base knocks. Bill Rushlow doubled and singled, Dan Lucas had a two-bagger and Bennett Emerson also picked up safeties.

Delegates Had Rough Trip

LONDON (CP)—Canadian delegates had a rough air trip here for the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

The plane carrying Prime Minister Diefenbaker and his colleagues struck an air pocket about half an hour out of Ottawa Sunday. The result was a considerable shaking up.

Robert Bryce, secretary to the cabinet, was knocked out. Several others suffered bruises. Diefenbaker and his wife, securely strapped with safety belts, were unhurt.

Maj.-Gen. George Pearkes, defence minister, who was sitting beside Bryce, suffered bruises. By the time the party reached London most of the passengers had forgotten the mishap.

Veteran Staffer Leaves for Fort Lauderdale

The Ontario Intelligencer bade a reluctant farewell to a veteran staffer on Monday with the departure of Miss Florence Walden of the circulation department. Miss Walden plans to move to Florida.

Miss Walden, who had been associated with the paper for the past 11 years enjoyed a well-deserved popularity with all departments. She had a cheery disposition and a personality that endeared her to all.

Evidence of the esteem in which she was held was seen in the presentation to Miss Walden of a handsome white traveling case, the gift of the staff. There was no formal presentation, Miss Walden preferring to accept the gift quietly and make her own personal farewells.

An ardent bowler, she played with various teams in mixed and ladies' leagues during her long sojourn here. During the war days, Miss Walden served her country as lieutenant in Belleville detachment of the Reserve CWAC.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A FINANCIALLY IRRESPONSIBLE WIFE IS NO ASSET

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm engaged to a girl I've known all my life. She's 19 and I'm 21.

She wants to get married right away, but, although I have a good job, I have no money saved, and I think we should have something in the bank on which to start our marriage, there will be so many things we will need that will cost money. But every time I try to explain this to her, she starts a big argument and we end up in a quarrel.

She has a job herself, yet she has never helped save a penny, I think of our security, but she wants to rush into everything. She wants us to borrow the money to build a home before we get married, but I think we should wait until we're able to afford it.

This whole thing has got me down so that I sometimes feel like going away from here and taking a job in another city just to get away from the arguments. I know I love this girl too much to want to risk losing her by going away, so I guess I'm pretty mixed up, so I'll be glad if you can tell me what to do. — Don

Dear Don:

It might be a very smart move for you to go away and get a job somewhere else for a little while. It might give both you and the girl an opportunity to get a little perspective on your problems.

You don't need to act as though you were going away because you are mad at her. You might tell her that you want to investigate opportunities elsewhere because you think you might find something that would help you make faster progress toward the point where you would feel it wise for you to marry.

Another idea and perhaps one that would be more to your liking, if you don't want to consider seriously the possibility of going out of town, would be to suggest to the girl that you and she try to work out together a definite plan for your immediate future. Say that perhaps if both of you found a way to save something regularly out of each salary for the next year, you could accumulate enough of a financial backlog to enable you to have and do some of the things you both want. Tell her that you want to be married just as much as she does, but that you want to be sure you will not start your marriage under the handicap of debt.

See if, by talking with her quietly, reasonably and lovingly, you can't get her to agree to plan ahead in this way. You might even suggest that the two of you go together to someone in your local bank so that you could get really expert advice on how to lay a sound financial foundation for your marriage.

If this girl doesn't have enough common sense and maturity to realize that it's the height of foolishness to take on financial responsibilities that you have not carefully considered way to handle, then it would seem to me that you might well reconsider this engagement of yours. A spendthrift wife isn't going to be any asset to you, to put it mildly, and her extravagance might keep you from ever reaching the sound and stable financial position you want to reach. Even worse, it could wreck your marriage, as not infrequently happens when either one of a married couple is irresponsible about money.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

A WOMAN RISES ON THESE SPECIAL INTRODUCTION-OCCASIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a very "lively" discussion we are having, will you please answer this question: Is a woman ever supposed to rise when a man is introduced to her?

— Margaret D.

Yes, there are several occasions when a woman rises when a man is introduced to her. Always when, as hostess, she is greeting the man as a guest (for example, when a friend brings the man guest to her home or to her club or some other place where she is hostess or co-hostess of the occasion). A woman rises also when an older woman brings up to her the man who is to be introduced. (Here she rises in deference to the older woman, not to acknowledge the introduction.) A woman usually rises when a clergyman is introduced, and certainly when she is introduced to an important official of the Church. And a courteous woman rises to meet an elderly or a very distinguished gentleman.

PARISIAN BEAUTIES REVEALING THE FLOWERY PINKS

Sketched by Mme. Qui Vive

A pony from your garden, swathed with pink yelling . . . the latest in Parisian headgear.

Well, our quarterly report from Paris has arrived and it's certainly a lovely one. As you may remember, with the beginning of each new season, our correspondent in the city on the Seine sends us the latest gossip on "what's new" in the world of beauty and fashion, and we must admit that when we recognize that, envelope in our mail, it's the first letter we open. We love to hear first-hand what mad, mad ideas those Parisians have been thinking up for three months because we know that within a matter of days we'll be seeing them carried out in our own smart shops.

Our correspondent waxed somewhat lyrical in his report this season for his report starts off: "The summer months are also the flower months: full-blown roses with faint pink hearts . . . pale red carnations . . . rose-colored tulips . . . azaleas dipped into a pool of light red foam . . . freezias tinted by dawn . . . this is the theme of current Paris fashions, and you'll note that most of the items I mention are as rose-colored as the fashionable rose."

Alors, Madame, here then is what Parisiennes are talking about in the world of beauty and fashion: Jacques Detourbay's pastel-colored summer furs — especially pale blue or lovely pink breitschwantz which can be matched to the hue of the chiffon frock worn beneath—for dancing while the moon looks on.

Spellbound Westbound

By Mary Moore

Just before The Canadian pulled out of the Union Station in Toronto Pete said: "What are you going to do for entertainment on the train Mum—read?" I answered: "Listen, when I ride this train something wonderful always happens to me." And it did.

The passenger in the room next to mine was Mr. F. J. Waldruff. A fellow Kiwanian of his had said a Mr. James Oakes goodbye on a quick cross-Canada trip. He was happy to try Mr. Waldruff aboard and asked him to look up this English stranger and make his trip interesting. It turned out that this stranger from London made our trip interesting.

True to his friend, next morning, on a brisk platform walk, we spotted him, and Mr. Waldruff invited him and me to a steak dinner that evening.

What a treat to eat such tender steak so perfectly broiled as we sped across Northern Ontario! And it was those steaks that started the Oakes' story unfolding!

"What a pity these aren't served on silver." "What makes you say that Mr. Oakes?" "If we had these steaks at home my wife and I would eat them from erected silver that formerly belonged to the Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia." Spellbound we listened while he told us that after the 1917 Russian revolution somehow the Grand Duke's silverware had been brought out of Russia to London and offered to him at his shop in St. James Place, for he is a watch and clock maker and silversmith extraordinary. The artistic value of the created sterling silver was well-nigh incalculable but because its weight was 2,000 ounces, he offered the seller three shillings per ounce and was promptly accepted.

One of the reasons for his visit to Canada was to help appraise and select Canadian-owned antique silver for an exhibition at the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto next winter. We were happy to hear that he was agreeably surprised at the quality and quantity of it. He had visited the homes of fifteen or sixteen Toronto and Montreal families to inspect their silver treasures which were to be loaned to the exhibit.

He had had a lively conversational bout with the curator of the Royal Ontario Museum over a pair of two-handled silver cups owned by a Toronto family. Mr. O. claimed they are simply two-handled tea cups, but the R.O.M. curator argues "Why two-handled?" Mr. O. countered by pointing out that they are strong and precious and sipped ceremoniously by a man and his wife and this two-handled imbibing was a dainty ritual back in 1668.

During these revelations we transferred from dining car to dome car and while we tried to talk quietly I know the nearby passengers were spell-bound.

Unfortunately Mr. Waldruff had to get off the train at Bridgina at 3.13 a.m. so while it was lamentable to break up this fascinating conversation we did it —and too, let other passengers have the dome seats we had occupied so long.

From documents we had urged him to show us, we discovered he was a world famous clock and watch expert and official clockkeeper to Buckingham Palace. So when I am in London I guess I can trust him if anything goes wrong with my timepiece.

He was carrying and showed us an intricate watch he had made. Princess Mary belongs to a society of Basketmakers of which he is a member. She sought membership in it but what kind of baskets they make, if any, I did not discover.

Before we finally parted he invited us to call on him in St. James Place in London. He promised to show us the world's oldest clock at his shop.

Dinner Menus

TUESDAY

Beef Stew with Dumplings or on Noodles, Cole Slaw with Parsley, Boiled Dressing, Chilled Compote of Byng Cherries, Cookies, Coffee.

The collection includes candelabra—one of which is a five-stemmed beauty, so fine and delicately wrought that Mr. Oakes had it platinum-coated so it would not tarnish and thus not need polishing by 'overzealous chars.' There were meat and fowl and fish platters and dinner plates, spoons of all sizes from huge basting spoons thru' three sizes of dessert spoons down to the tiniest of coffee spoons.

When we asked our silver expert whether eating from it every night did not scratch it he shrugged "Cawn't be bothered about that—it is there to use" and use it he and his wife do and enjoy its beauty every day.

I am resolving to prowl all over England next year to find an antique silver shop selling a silver salver for a Moore Steak. I'll see how it tastes and if it is worth it, try and find an 'overzealous char' to keep it polished in the Oakes manner in the Moore Manor.

Judge Gives

International Boxing Club Five Years to Close Shop

NEW YORK (AP)—The International Boxing Club that has dominated professional boxing since 1949 has been ordered dissolved by a federal judge who also ordered Jim Norris and Arthur Wirtz to sever their connection with Madison Square Garden.

Although it had been anticipated that Norris and Wirtz would appeal an adverse ruling, no decision had been made today by their legal counsel.

If an appeal is made of the decree by Judge Sylvester J. Ryan, it presumably would go to the United States court of appeals in New York and, perhaps, eventually to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The legal history of the case dates back to 1954 when it was ruled out by the district court on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction. Following an appeal by the government, the Supreme Court ruled that the anti - trust case against the IBC should go to trial. After the trial last year Judge Ryan found the defendants guilty, March 8, and set Monday for his decree, effective July 1.

STAY IN BOXING

"We will have to go over it with counsel to see what our next step will be," said Norris, president of the IBC and a director of the Garden, and Chicago Stadium. He indicated that, whatever the adverse ruling might be "I intend to stay in boxing."

Norris and Wirtz will have five years to sell their interest in the Garden which amounts to about 30 per cent of the total stock. However, within 30 days after July they must resign as officers and directors forevermore.

All exclusive contracts with champions and challengers were declared void by Judge Ryan, as were all exclusive contracts with stadia, other than those owned by Norris and Wirtz.

As a result of the findings that the IBC of New York and Illinois and Norris and Wirtz were guilty of monopolizing title fights, Judge Ryan ordered that the Garden should not promote more than two title bouts in any one year for the next five. Norris and Wirtz also were limited to two championship contests a year for the same period.

Dark Leads Shortstops on All-Star Team

NEW YORK (AP)—Alvin Dark, veteran St. Louis Cardinal shortstop, has taken the lead from Cincinnati's Roy McMillan by a margin of 147 votes in the poll for the National League all-star team to play the American League at St. Louis Tuesday, July 9.

Dark squeezed ahead of McMillan with 20,738 votes on a compilation of weekend voting.

Red Schoendienst, now of Milwaukee, has 23,574 to 22,627 for Cincinnati's Johnny Temple in the second base contest. Eddie Mathews of Milwaukee has 32,527 to 28,320 by Don Hoak of Cincinnati for third base.

Stan Musial, St. Louis first baseman, has the highest vote total with 45,820 in a runaway over Brooklyn's Gil Hodges at 9,141.

Frank Robinson of Cincinnati, Willie Mays of New York and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee hold comfortable leads in the outfield voting. Cincinnati's Ed Bailey is way out in front of Brooklyn's Roy Campanella for catcher.

Stone Plays For Ottawa Or Nowhere

OTTAWA (CP) — General Manager J. P. McCaffrey of Ottawa Rough Riders says halfback Avatus Stone will play for the Big Four football team this year—or he won't play anywhere.

McCaffrey was commenting on a report that Stone hopes to find a place with a National Football League club in the United States this season.

"Stone accepted money on this year's (Rider) contract three months ago," said McCaffrey, "and that, in any man's language, makes him our property."

Stone, who lives in Washington, is a former Big Four all-star and winner of the Jeff Russel trophy for the league's most valuable player.

SUSPEND JOCKEY

TORONTO (CP)—Jockey Eddie Pissa drew a five-day suspension Monday for impeding Lyford Cay while riding Pink Velvet in last Saturday's Woodbine Stakes.

Pink Velvet won the race, beating favorite Lyford Cay by a head but was disqualified when stewards agreed Pissa's mount cut in on Lyford Cay at the half-mile pole. The suspension starts Wednesday.

Argos Add Two To Grid Roster

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union have announced the signing of Bill Curtis, an end from Texas Christian and Bob Blachen, a centre - linebacker from Detroit Lions and Toronto Beaches.

The six-foot-three Curtis is rated a fine pass catcher and a good tackler and pass defender.

Blachen played with the Beaches Senior OHFU club last year and was rated highly by the Lions who tried hard to sign him for next season.

Argo general manager Lew Hayman also announced that Calgary Stampeder second draft choice Norm Williams, last year with the University of Toronto Blues, wants to play in Toronto. He said Argos hope to make a deal with the Western Interprovincial Football Union club.

POWER BOAT INVASION

The aristocracy of power squadrons from both sides of the border will merge in international amity here this weekend.

The burgees of Canadian and American power squadrons will flutter in keen competition in the friendly breezes of the Bay of Quinte at the second Rendesvous of the proud Bay of Quinte Power Squadron.

Proud, in the sense of achievement during its comparative brief span of existence, the Quinte Squadron will host compatriot squadrons from Picton, Brockville, Kingston, Long Branch, Ottawa and possibly Hamilton and Toronto while extending the hand of nautical welcome and friendship to visiting American squadrons from Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oak Orchard, Susquenango, Watertown and other south shore ports.

Some sixteen boats and four land crews will comprise the visiting power boatmen from south of the border. A pool of six local boats will be available for the use of out-of-town land crews.

The Rendesvous extends over Saturday through Sunday, June 30, and the Quinte Squadron and its highly capable division of Squadronettes are anticipating a weekend of boating fun, skill, education, enjoyment and a high form of fellowship with their Canadian and American counterparts.

The squadrons will take part in six competitions, all of them piloting contests requiring certain knowledge. Three of the races will be for Squadronettes only, one will be for men only, and two will be open for men, women or mixed crews.

Six handsome trophies are up for competition. The males of the species will vet their sights on the new Bay of Quinte Power Squadron Trophy, the Corby Trophy and the Labatt Cup. The women crews will contest the beautiful Ron Keel, The BQPS and the newly-created BNR Trophies.

And don't sell these lady sailors short. . . At least three crews from the Bay of Quinte Squadron will see competitive action while the latest report has it that at least two other Canadian Squadronettes crews and five or more from the United States Power Squadrons will be on hand to give them nautical "battle."

The Bay of Quinte Power Squadron officials and members have left nothing undone to make the Rendesvous a success. The Bay of Quinte Yacht Club has joined hands in a joint effort of welcome.

The Yacht Club facilities including a snack bar will be open to all visitors during the entire weekend, starting Friday evening from three p.m. Sunday. Ample mooring facilities are available and "landlubbers" will be on hand to allocate mooring space for out-of-town craft. Service facilities such as gas, oil, ice and fresh water will be available in the inner harbor.

Nor has the social aspect of the Rendezvous been neglected. The visitors will be guests at a dinner-dance at the Yacht Club on Saturday evening and on Sunday the Rendezvous will come to its finale with a dinner and the presentation of trophies and awards.

The harbor should be a colorful scene on Saturday and Sunday. In addition to the nautical glory of the host squadron will be glitter and beauty of the visiting Canadian and United States power squadron units.

The Bay of Quinte Squadron did a splendid public relations job on the occasion of its first Rendezvous when several out-of-town squadrons including many from the United States were here. Many laudable commens were heard from visiting power boat officials, skippers and their ladies anent the Rendezvous, and Quinte Squadron now enjoys a high status in power squadron circles both here and across the border.

That it will be maintained this weekend, is beyond question.

Deal Cards 10-3 Walloping As Carl Erskine Wins First; Duke Explodes for 2 Homers

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Brooklyn's defending National League champs, no better than fifth at the moment what with hitters slumping and pitchers ailing, welcomed "back" Duke Snider, Carl Furillo and Carl Erskine today, hoping to show a profit on the second half of their trip through the west.

Dodgers, who led the league by a half game June 8, have won only six of 18 since. But they're 44 so far on the road trip—with first-place St. Louis and second-place Cincinnati out of the way and only injury-ridden Milwaukee and last-place Chicago ahead. They haven't lost to the Cubs yet.

The Brooks salvaged a split in the four-game set at St. Louis Monday night, edging within 2½ games of Cardinals with a 10-3 victory as Snider and Furillo batted in three runs each and Erskine, giving him shoulder the big test, won his first in his first start of the year.

TRIMS CARDS' LEAD

It was one of two games scheduled in the league, and trimmed Cards' lead to a half game over idle Cincinnati. The fourth-place Philadelphia Phillies beat Milwaukee 19-4, closing to within 1½ games of first place. Braves, still only a game back but slipping in third with their seventh defeat in the last 10 games, lost second baseman Red Schoendienst, who wrenched his back in a tumble on the dugout steps.

Braves, with slugging first baseman Joe Adcock out from six to eight weeks with a broken leg, also saw relief pitcher Dave Jolly hobble off after being struck on the leg by a line drive.

Only one American League game was scheduled and Baltimore Orioles, behind Hec Brown's five-hit pitching, belted Detroit again 6-0. Tigers, who have won only one of seven on the swing through the east after building a 6½ lead and to a row, five-game winning streak, now are tied with Boston for fourth.

A six-run seventh inning won for Dodgers, who trailed 3-1 until then. Erskine, who had two relief job warmups after treatment dipped of calcium deposits which had threatened his career, gave only two runs and four hits in his six frames. He walked none, and was touched for only one hit after the first inning.

Sam Jones lost his third game, with Peewee Reese unloading a bases-loaded single in the big seventh and Furillo banging a pinch two-run double off reliever Vinegar Bend Mizell. Furillo had been hitless in 19 at bats, and had only two hits in his last 53 trips, but stayed in the game to blast a ninth-inning homer off Lloyd Merritt.

Snider socked his 13th and 14th home runs, rifling a solid shot in the first inning and smacking a two-run job in the ninth for a three-bagger. It was only the fourth time this season he's had three hits in one game, and his first two-homer game since Dodgers won the pennant on the final day of 1956.

HIT PINCH HOMER

Joe Cunningham hit a pinch homer off Ed Roebuck, who mopped up after Erskine made way to a pinchhitter in the seventh.

Phils got a 2-0 lead on Stan Lopata's first-inning home run off Warren Spahn, then tagged the veteran southpaw with his fifth defeat with a tie-breaking fourth-run capped by rookie Ed Bouchee's two-out double. Harvey Haddix won his sixth, but needed Jim Hearn's relief help. Rip Repulski poled a two-run homer in the ninth for Phils.

Brown, the losing Detroit, struck out six and walked only one for his second victory of the year. Billy Goodman's two-run homer in the fourth handed seven-game winner Duke Maas his fourth defeat against six and second in a row.

Feller Heads Big Leaguers - In Major Baseball Probe

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bob Feller, who set major league strikeout records while fastballing for Cleveland Indians, made a different kind of pitch today for big league ball players.

Feller, now retired from baseball, goes before a House of Representatives anti-trust subcommittee to tell about changes he thinks should be made in baseball operations.

In advance of his testimony, Feller told newspaper men he favors putting baseball under the anti-trust laws but with stipulated exemptions.

He would exempt the contract reserve clause binding a player to the club that first signs him and also territorial rights which protect a club from encroachment on the area in which its franchise is located.

Feller recommended, however, a maximum of about five years on the duration of a reserve clause. At the end of that period a player could negotiate for himself.

Feller said he also thought minor leaguers should be subject to draft by the majors after three or perhaps four years' experience.

Baseball commissioner Ford Frick has proposed an "unrestricted draft" after four years. But his plan would allow major league owners to maintain control over a player for another three seasons by sending him out on option to another club.

The subcommittee, in its investigation of the legal status of baseball and other professional team sports, heard from Frick last week. Individual league presidents—Will Harridge of the American and Warren Giles of the National—are scheduled to testify today in defence of baseball's present methods.

The committee also planned to call on Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals and Bill Veeck, former major leaguer now in the insurance business in Washington.

Robin Roberts, Philadelphia Phillies' pitcher; Eddie Yost, Washington Senators' third baseman, and Jerry Coleman, New York Yankee infielder, all said the reserve clause is essential to baseball.

Their argument Monday was this: Throwing all players on the market every year would disrupt the sport and enable wealthy clubs to corral the best men. And it would discourage a club from scouting for talent since after developing a potential big leaguer it could lose him to a higher bidder.

Roberts said the ma'ors ought to consider a four-year limit on the clause.

Rate McDougald Best Shortstop In League

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Rival managers and players, who should know best, rate Gil McDougald of the New Yankees as the best all-around shortstop in the American League.

Detroit manager Jack Tighe, who has a pretty fair shortstop of his own in Harvey Kuenn, calls McDougald the solid man of the Yankees. Chicago manager Al Lopez, who may have the best defensive shortfielder in the league in Luis Aparicio, regards McDougald as the most under - player in the circuit.

"It's about time somebody gave that guy the credit he deserves," remarked Billy Pierce, ace White Sox lefthander.

"I don't want to put myself in the position of comparing him to our own shortstop, Aparicio," said Pierce, "but I will say this. McDougald is the best of the seven shortstops we've played against. And that goes for his defensive as well as his offensive work. Maybe he doesn't have the power of Tony Kubek or Vogi Berra, but in my book he's just as valuable as either of them, if not more so."

The latest statistics show McDougald batting .294 with 11 doubles, six triples, nine home runs and 30 runs batted in. Defensively, he's fielding at a spectacular .987 pace with only four errors out of 301 chances.

This is the 29-year-old McDougald's fourth season as regular Yankee shortstop. He began his major league career in 1951 as a third baseman, third baseman and spent several seasons as the regular Yankee second baseman before succeeding Phil Rizzuto at short in 1956.

Bauer Free, Will Sue Complainant

NEW YORK (AP)—Hank Bauer, colorful fielder for New York Yankees, was cleared Monday by a grand jury of charges he slugged a night club patron during a midnight melee.

Bauer's lawyer announced immediately that the ballplayer will sue the man who caused his arrest, for "compensatory and punitive damages," and also is considering action for "malicious prosecution."

Edsel Jones, 42, a delicatessen owner, charged Bauer with felonious assault, claiming his nose was broken in a washroom brawl at Copacabana night club May 16.

But the New York County grand jury voted "no bill" after hearing 15 witnesses. Bauer himself was not called to testify.

The jury did call the other five ballplayers who were with Bauer celebrating the 29th birthday of Billy Martin, second baseman since traded with the Yanks to Kansas City Athletics.

Among those testifying were Martin, Yankee pitchers Whitey Ford and Johnny Kucks, catcher Yogi Berra and Mickey Mantle, the star centre fielder.

Jones charged he was beaten after a member of his party had approached the ballplayers' table and requested Martin to stop his playing.

Later, three of the Jones party met Martin near the men's room and again spoke to him. Jones said Bauer joined the group and assaulted him.

Bauer still faces a $250,000 civil suit brought by Jones.

Bassey New Feather Champ Knocks Out Hamia in 10th

PARIS (AP) — Hogan Bassey, new world featherweight boxing champion of the world, had a fruit juice and champagne celebration in the cafes of Paris' fashionable Left Bank with the premiers of his native Nigeria—the country he left 10 years ago to avoid facing unemployment.

The premiers—there is a head of government for East Nigeria and another for West Nigeria—crowded into the ring at the Palais des Sports Monday night in their flowing gray native robes to congratulate Bassey on his 10th round knockout victory over Cheyrl Hamia of France.

Hamia later cried bitter tears of disappointment and rage. He left the arena with his right eye badly swollen and a stitch in his lip to close the cut inflicted in the Jeveld 20 seconds of the match, scheduled for 15 rounds.

For a full half minute before that, Bassey had been chopping away with lefts and rights to the head trying to put Hamia down. Once Hamia collapsed and the two fighters fell together into the ropes.

Bassey succeeds stringbean Sandy Saddler as featherweight champion. Saddler was forced to retire because of injuries and a lobtailed elimination tournament picked Bassey and Hamia to fight it out for the vacant title.

Mickey Seems Well on Way To Second Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle is running behind his target pace of 1956 in two of the important batting categories. But the New York Yankees' star centerfielder appears well on his way toward his second straight triple crown, a feat never accomplished in the major leagues.

After 62 games, the 25-year-old switch-hitter shows an average of .362 with 31 home runs and 81 runs batted in. After games of Sunday, June 23, he leads the American League in the first two departments, but is one RBI behind Jackie Jensen and Roy Sievers in the pacesetter with 53.

In so many games last year Mantle had a batting average of .376, 27 homers and 65 runs batted in. He finished the season with .353, 52 circuit blows and 130 RBIs.

Rogers Hornsby and Ted Williams are the only big leaguers to have won the triple crown twice. Hornsby captured the three titles with St. Louis Cardinals in 1925 and 1925 and Williams with Boston Red Sox in 1942 and 1947. No one, however, has won it two years in succession.

TIED A WEEK AGO

A 13-point gain by Mantle coupled with a 16-point slump by Williams enabled Mickey to take over sole possession of the batting lead. Each had a .379 mark a week ago.

In last week's games, Mantle collected 13 hits in 24 times at bat while Williams managed only six safeties in 24 tries and his average slipped to .362.

In the National League, Stan Musial, the Cards disciplined Brooklyn's Gil Hodges at the batting helm. Musial, a six-time batting champion, has four points and showed a .361 slate after Sunday. Hodges dropped 19 points to third place at .347 on a 6-for-28 showing.

Hank Aaron of Milwaukee maintained his home run lead. He hit two, giving him 19 circuit blows in the campaign. The Braves' outfielder is tied with Musial for the runs batted in lead at 54.

Harness Racing

OTTAWA (CP)—High Lee Hanover from Galt with Almer Holmes at the reins captured both heats of the invitation pace at Connaught Park Monday night. The times for the mile were 2:16 2-5 and 2:13 2-5.

Dick Johnson brought Dulcie Direction from Port Burwell, Ont., across in second place in both heats and Princess Decca from Willowdale, Ont., picked up both thirds.

Johnson drove the winner in the Montebello pace as he brought Silver T. Lee from Glencoe, Ont., across the finish line in 2:14 2-5 for the mile. Niles C. Cruttan from Morrisburg was third.

Holmes got his third win of the night with Yankee Hal from Paris, Ont., in a D mile pace. The winning time was 2:14 2-5.

Supremus from Brighton, Ont., with Henry Ingles in the sulky, won another mile D pace in 2:18 2-5. June Elgin from Plainville, Ont., was second and Penny Patch from Midland third.

ANNOUNCE DATES

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian open water skiing championships will be held on Gull Lake, Gravenhurst, Aug. 10-11, the Canadian Water Ski Association announced Monday night.

A week later, Aug. 17-18, the Canadian closed championships will be held on the Grand River, at Caledonia, Ont. The Eastern Canadian closed championships will be on the Rideau River, three miles south of Ottawa, July 27. Officials expect about 80 entries for each meet.

Leafs Lose To Marlins, Retain Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs and Richmond Virginians are hot on each other's necks for the International League first and second-place Miami and cellar-dwelling Montreal turned up as spoilers.

Only .011 percentage points still separate the two leaders as Marlins edged first-place Toronto 4-3 and Royals crushed Richmond 6-1, in the only two games played Monday night.

Buffalo Bisons and Columbus Jets had their game postponed by rain and Rochester Red Wings and Havana Sugar Kings were not scheduled.

Whitey Herzog, recently acquired from Washington Senators, was Miami's big gun. Herzog's single in the ninth drove in Cal Abrams with the tie-breaking run after Abrams doubled and moved to third on Don Landrum's single.

SHELLED EARLY

With Leafs ahead, 3-2 in the seventh, Herzog's second of three hits pushed across the tieing run. Toronto got to Miami starter Angel Li Pino early and shelled him from the mound in 1 1-3 innings with three runs.

Tom Qualters took over until the seventh when Rachel Paige relieved. Paige fanned two, three, walked none and allowed two hits, and 1982 got credit for the victory. Jim Pearce, who lasted until the ninth, took the loss.

A crowd of 7,000 celebrating the feast of French Canada's patron saint, Jean Baptiste, enjoyed fireworks before and during the game. Royals exploded for 10 hits as Rene Valdes went the route to pick up his fourth victory in eight decisions. Valdes struck out three and scattered six Richmond hits.

Jim Kite, who pitched until the seventh inning, gave up all the Montreal runs, including four in the seventh. Shortstop Mel Geho, making his debut with Royals, contributed two doubles.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Faultless Maid, a three-year-old filly owned by Dr. W. R. Wesley of Toronto, won a thrilling four horse photo finish Monday in the featured Rutherford Pointe at New Woodbine. The Rutherford was the final tune up race for next Saturday's running of the $7,500 Selene Stakes.

Jockey Avelino Gomez won another three races as he captured the first on Missy Roman, the fourth on Scotch Fairie and the seventh on Fast Cash. He has ridden 23 winners in the past seven days and has had 46 winners in the first 19 days of the New Woodbine summer meeting.

Faultless Maid, ridden by apprentice Norman Leid, took the lead turning for home and under strong handling, hung on to score by a head over Turn Me Loose. The latter was only inches ahead of the favored Definite while King Girl closed stoutly to finish a bang up fourth. Less than a length separated the first four horses.

(STAFF) — The Point Anne Cementmen racked up victory number ten last night, a 12-5 decision over Belleville Goyer's Marines behind the four-hit hurling of Bobby Hall. The loss dropped the Marines from second to fourth place in the B. and D. loop standing.

Three Marine errors helped the Cementmen to a 5-0 lead in the first. They upped the margin to nine in the fifth and the Marines made their only run in the eighth before Goyer's bagged their pair in the final frame.

Hall blazed his way to his third victory of the season while limiting the visitors to four singles. He was working on a two-hit job until the 8th when a walk to E. Denis, Wayne Bovay's base hit and John Green's smash by short broke the goose egg. A line single by Leo St. Denis in the first and a Texas-leaguer by Paul Russell in the sixth were the only other Marine safeties. Hall struck out five, walked two and hit another batter.

Al "Bearcat" Adams allowed only eight hits but two of these were homers and combined with walks to account for the Point Anne victory path. Adams issued seven base-on-balls and fanned a man. His mates committed six errors.

Pete Green had the only Cementmen hit in the first but four walks and a single gave them the 5-0. A walk, Pat Gilmour's hit and Sammy Mulholland's double-play ball-fielder added three. Two consecutive errors scored another while Bob Hall hammered a circuit blast in the eighth for his club's final tally.

Pitcher Hall also led the attack on his own behalf with his homer and a single in the 5th. Don Stopp D. Hall continued his batting streak with a double and single while Mulholland had homer, good for three RBI's. Jackie Wardaugh, Pete Green and Pat Gilmour contributed one hit each.

Point Anne played errorless ball afield to leave five of the seven Marine runners on base. Gerry Goyer's batting streak was snapped, this being the first game of the season in which he has been held hitless, getting no base once when hit by a pitch.

LINEUPS:

Goyer's Marines — St. Denis, Bovay, Gerry Goyer, C. Green, Brooks, Gerry Goyer, D. Soule, Adams, Peever, Kellett, Leo Goyer, Martin, Russell.

Unbeaten Pointers Whip Marines As Merchants Clip Bobcats' Claws

(STAFF) — Belleville Merchants bats exploded twice behind Bep Guidolin's five-hit hurling at the CNRAA park last night, and that was enough to hand the Belleville Bobcats a 9-2 setback in a B. and D. Softball League game.

The first eruption, a five-run affair, came in the first inning at the expense of Bobcats starting hurler Rolly Cardin. Four more runs was the fall-out from five-hit attack on reliever Wally Baran in the sixth and that was the extent of the Merchants' effective offensive.

Guidolin, backed by superlative fielding by his mates albeit they bobbled thrice, was never in serious trouble. He no-hitted the Cats for five straight innings then Jack Casey and Earl Cousins rapped singles to break the ice, although no run damage resulted. Bep whiffed four and strolled six. His rath-inning double drove in a run.

The Merchants went to work early on Cardin. Barclay and Hayden hit doubles with Bone singling in the first inning. The clouds aided by three walks and a passed ball were good for a five-off five runs.

Two consecutive doubles by Crawford and Guidolin in the sixth netted single for Cardin. Baran relieved him with the bags loaded and one out. He gave up two singles as four runs crossed the plate before the fire was out.

The Cats scored their brace of runs in the eighth off a walk and a single by Earl Cousins. Wienee Brown dropped Bruce's long left field fly but his perfect toss to the plate from centre field nipped the runner, after Cousins and Wardhaugh had scored.

The only other Cat threat came in the first when a Merchants' miscue and a walk put two runners on with one out. Cousins' sacrifice put them a base ahead but Guidolin struck out Faulkney to halt the rally.

Every Merchant hit safely with Guidolin, Hayden, Crawford and Barclay rapping out two doubles. Claude Carr had two for three. Earl Cousins had two singles for the Cats with Casey, Wardhaugh and Duke Doran getting the others.

The teams:— Bobcats: Casey, Wardhaugh, Locke, Cousins, Faulkner, Doran, Wood, Creegan, Cardin, Baran.

Merchants: Barclay, Carr, Stacey, Hunton, Bailey, Brown, Hayden, Green, Bone, Crawford, Guidolin.

The score:

Merchants	5	0	0	0	0	0	4	0	0	9	10

Britain Names Railroader to Golf Team

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Britain broke with tradition Monday and named a railway lineman as a member of its golf club team which will oppose the United States in the 16th Walker Cup international matches at Minneapolis, Aug. 30-31.

Douglas Sewell, 27 - year - old member of Hoole Heath Artisans club at Woking, near London, was the first artisan golfer picked for the team since 1947 and the third in the history of the competition.

Sewell's inclusion in the team was expected after he beat a good international field recently to win the Brabazon Trophy, the English Golf Union's 72-hole stroke play competition.

The Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, stung by five straight defeats in Walker Cup competition, chose a young team.

Except for David Micklem, the 45-year-old captain, the 10-man British team averages just over 27 years. The players range from 20-year-old Alan F. Bussell to 35-year-old Carr, the veteran who won the British amateur championship in 1953.

CLOSES FAST TO WIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Adele L. Rand's Clem closed with a rush in the stretch to win the Bed o' Roses Withers Stakes at Belmont Park, New York, Monday.

Ridden by Conn McCreary, Clem stepped the mile in 1:36 4-5 in scoring by 1½ lengths over Greentree Stable's Cohoes. Tenacious was third.

The victory was worth $19,100.

"Work-horse jobs are a cinch for Fargo Trucks"

says Eastern Construction Company, Limited

1. It's the ruggedness Fargo builds into a truck that pays off. Eastern's big-muscled Fargos work day in, day out, hauling masonry to construction jobs like this big $2,000,000 project. It's a punishing schedule that requires reliability.

2. This Fargo "construction job" can meet all the demands placed on it—and then some! Frame has double-width front crossmembers. Springs are of durable chrome-alloy steel.

3. Extra V-8 power, rated from 180 to 232 h.p., makes Fargo trucks the power leaders in their price ranges, from agile Fargo express and panel models to rugged heavy-duty trucks.

4. Safer operation is a cinch, too. Big wrap-around windshield and optional wrap-around rear window, constant-speed electric windshield wipers are just a few of many safeguards.

Record Field Tees off in Ontario Open

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Possibly the largest field in the history of the Ontario open golf championship will tee off in the 18-hole qualifying round Friday at St. Catharines Golf Club.

Ed Mohr, chairman of the tournament committee, said Monday 161 entries have been filed and more are expected before today's noon deadline. He said qualifying round play to narrow the field down to 60, will have to start early Friday morning.

Moe Norman, the Kitchener golfer who turned pro last winter and so far has shown nothing but disdain for this year's tournaments, has indicated he will make the Open his first tourney this year.

Gerry Kesselring, the Toronto Downsview pro who learned his golf in Kitchener, will defend the title he won last year. Other former winners who will compete are Bob Gray of Toronto Scarboro, Gordie Brydson of Toronto Mississaugua and Murray Tucker of Toronto Rosedale, this year's Canadian PGA title holder.

The open is the final test for the 15 amateurs fighting for positions on Ontario's four-man Wellington Cup team. Bill Mosher, Nick Weslock, Bruce Castator, Gary Cowan and Phil Farley are the current leaders, based on results of invitation tournaments at Burlington and Brantford.

Ottawa Habs Uncertain About Junior Play

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council meeting of 1957-58 schedule talks Monday without as much as one voice raised in discord. It was the first meeting in years that did not end in heated differences of opinion.

In a three-hour session members decided:

The 68-game schedule would open Oct. 26 and close March 2; the playoff system would be the same as this year, six teams in with first against fourth, second against fifth and third against sixth; each team would play four additional games against Ottawa Junior Canadiens if the Memorial Cup finalists decide to compete as juniors.

Sam Pollock, representing the Canadiens, said his club would not know until July 15 what their operating plans would be for next season. Monday, Pollock attended the OHA Eastern Senior group meeting and hinted he possibly would seek admission to senior classification.

Hoad Wins First Round

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — Defending champion Lew Hoad, playing the traditional opening match on Wimbledon's centre court, handled Frenchman Pierre Darmon Monday in the first round of men's singles in the all-England tennis championships.

Hoad, who won 6-2, 6-4, 6-3, was one of the few able to complete his match as cold, wind and rain disrupted the opening day's schedule. More than half the day's matches were postponed.

Canada's Bob Bedard won from Torben Ulrich of Denmark. The Sherbrooke, Que., player took the match 9-7, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1.

The day's biggest upset came when Hamilton Richardson, American Rhodes scholar at Oxford, and seeded No. 3, was knocked out by Luis Ayala of Chile 3-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

Fifth-seeded Neale Fraser of Australia and Jaroslav Drobny, the expatriate Czech who lives in London, won their first - round matches. Drobny was Wimbledon champion in 1954.

Patterson Fights Another Quarter Million

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson's manager confirmed Monday that the world heavyweight champion has signed to defend his crown for $250,000 against Olympic champion Pete Rademacher at Seattle the week of Aug. 19.

Rademacher, a balding, 28-year-old former football player from Cranebrook, Wash., never has fought professionally.

The "unique, fantastic" match, as Patterson's manager, Cus D'Amato called it, is contingent upon Rademacher beating Tornado (Hurricane) Jackson at the New York Polo Grounds, July 29.

Seattle promoter Jack Hurley announced the fight Saturday. It will be held in Sicks Stadium, a ball park, which can seat 30,000 for a fight.

If Patterson beats Jackson, as he is heavily favored to do, the Patterson-Rademacher fight will mark the first time in boxing that a world amateur champion has stepped directly into the pro ranks for a shot at the heavyweight title. Patterson, as a 17-year-old, captured the 165-pound Olympic crown at Helsinki in 1952.

Gil McDougald, Yankee shortstop who is counted a third baseman in the poll because he was playing third when the voting started June 2 is third with 18,980. 862.

Determined to Succeed, Boy Plays Leading Role at 20

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Trains, planes and buses continue to bring large numbers of hopeful aspirants to this mecca of show business and television.

Many come, and, failing to succeed as actors or writers or technicians, drift into other lines of work or go back home. A few are chosen. Here is one of them:

His name is Warren Berlinger and he comes from Arlington, Va. He's a lean, intelligent youth of 20 who arrived in New York a year ago, determined to become an actor. Wednesday evening he plays the title role in The Curly-Headed Kid on Television Theatre (NBC-TV).

MASSEY IN LEAD

Raymond Massey stars in the drama about a boy in serious trouble and a crusading columnist accused of cynicism when he drops the boy after taking up his cause in a series of headline-making articles.

When Warren graduated from high school, he turned down football scholarships at 11 colleges and went to Northwestern University for a year to study drama.

"Maybe I've flat been lucky," he said. "But I think there are plenty of showcases in New York for anybody who wants to be an actor."

WORK IS BIG THING

Has he any theories on how success can come to a young actor?

"If acting is the important thing to you rather than your ego, then eventually you'll get some place. . . . The important thing is to work on the acting and the rest will take care of itself."

However, for every Warren Beatty you read about, there are a couple of hundred who never made it.

Etchika Choureau Is Bright, Sharp, Admires U.S. Men

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Etchika Choureau is a French pastry with a jaw-breaking name, a lovely face full of freckles and an admiration for American men.

"They are so beautiful," she says in hesitant English.

There's nothing hesitant about the doll beside her handling of a new language. She's bright and sharp and knows where she's going. It could be to top stardom in Hollywood.

About the name. It is destined to be the most mispronounced handle from France since Simone Simon. For the purists, it should be sy-chesky shoe-ror. But she's resigned to hearing a dozen different versions.

Here are some of her impressions:

"American men are so beautiful. They are very big, strong and muscular, compared with French men. I like that.

"Are Frenchmen more romantic? I do not know. In France, when a boy takes a girl out they go alone to lunch or dinner. I have not done that in Hollywood. Here, they seem to go to parties or other people's homes.

"I have been to some of the night clubs in Hollywood, but they are so empty. In Paris, the night clubs are filled. Here, there is nobody. All the remaining seem to be done in homes. That is nice for the married people, but not the single ones.

"I like it here, but I do not think I could live in France. Imagine. My family is in France. The only thing I do not like is the heat. It is too much for me."

California was having one of its cool days—it was 101 — and Etchika's freckles stood out vividly. She's had 'em since she can remember, she said. She's a redhead, and said redheads are uncommon in France.

Actually, she was born 23 years ago on the small island of Ecsica, near French Corsica. That was the summer home of her parents; her father was a Paris auto dealer. She made her debut in French films five years ago and has done 15 pictures.

One of them, The Fruits of Summer, was seen by director William Wellman, who was looking for a French girl to play opposite Tab Hunter in Wellman's sentimental salute to his days in the French air force in the First World War. The film now is called With You in My Arms.

Etchika came here with no knowledge of English—she needed to say only a few English words in her role as the Parisian sweetheart of an American flyer. Now she is more conversant.

How did she learn?

"By seeing movies and watching television. Yes, even the commercials."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find your outlook is, according to the stars.

Wednesday, June 26, 1957

Aries, April 21 to May 21 (Arietis)—You must believe in your program if you expect to advance. Also develop as much "know how" as possible from study, experience, the wise counsel of others. Stand firm on principles.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Be explicit, precise in action. The well-meaning but ill-directed individual will be left by the wayside. Don't be in this group; your innate talents and pride should impel you successfully forward.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Employ those methods which have proven effective. Dress them up a bit for extra drawing power. Even though others may t.. agitated, don't let it affect your endeavors. Remain calm, unruffled.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Of course you are looking to the future and the fulfillment of dreams. But it is today's actions that will set the stage for the achievements ahead. In free time employ whatever wholesome recreation is available.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Start counting on your ideas. You have the ability to produce a great deal at the same time, aid others. Be grateful for your talents; don't let them get rusty. Remember, time lost is not regained.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Some things may be difficult today. But call on your reserve of marketable ideas, and present them properly and success can be yours.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Sidestep unnecessary details which can slow you down, if not actually stymie you. A grand opportunity now to press a good program to the utmost. Look for competition but only to surpass it.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — You may be indulging in a middle-of-the-week letdown. Don't relax too much or you'll find it hard to reactivate yourself. Mix a dash of the novel with the proven and reliable.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Be a good listener, a keen observer, and both knowledge and gains will come your way. Direct all your efforts and talents toward your chosen goal. Amplify them with clever ideas, new twists, diplomacy.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Advice to Leo applicable here. Implement your schedule with promotional twists that could prove valuable later. Don't by-pass good suggestions or ideas.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Fine aspects for solidifying plans and efforts, gaining new friendships, cementing old ties, using even small opportunities to the best advantage.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — While your major planet, Neptune, is somewhat mild in influence today, its oncoming favorable aspect tomorrow should encourage you to whip up energy, ambition, and be ready for great activity. Forward!

You born today are bright, sympathetic, imaginative, sensitive, home-loving and generous. It is important that you study yourself and remember that the sensitiveness and imagination you possess to a high degree can do wonders if carefully employed, but can also be the means of getting into "hot water," causing misunderstandings if you don't control and direct them sensibly. Put your gifts to practical use; don't let them work against you. Birthdate of: Wm. Thomson (Lord Kelvin), astronomer-physicist.

ONTARIO COMMUNITY HAS MOUNTED SCOUT TROOP, ONLY ONE IN WORLD

At Springford, Ont., there's a troop of Boy Scouts which is probably unique in the world. The troop is mounted, as shown above, and most of the boys look after their own horses on the farms of their fathers. The troop has 30 Boy Scouts and 16 horses. Scott Carroll, district farmer, promoted the idea among other farmers of the community, most of whom had horses and grazing land. John Powers, 1st, is 10 years old and has the smallest horse in the troop.

French Premier Wins Confidence Vote on Taxes

PARIS (AP) — French ratification of the European common market and Euratom treaties are the Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury's next goals since his tax program has squeaked through the National Assembly.

The assembly gave Bourges-Maunoury a 321-to-210 vote of confidence Monday night on his plans to raise more taxes to help build up France's near-bankrupt treasury and finance the fight against the nationalist rebellion in Algeria. Although Bourges - Maunoury claimed an overwhelming victory on the issue that toppled the government of Guy Mollet last month, more than 100 assembly members stayed away or did not vote.

The vote was the first parliamentary showdown for the 42-year-old premier since his coalition of middle-road and socialist members came to power less than two weeks ago. Bourges - Maunoury went into the confidence test with a terse speech in which he warned the assembly that there is no way to reduce the bills France must pay.

Support from the left-of-centre Mouvement Republicain Populaire and most of the conservative Independent Republicans provided the margin of victory. Voting against the government were the left and right extremes, the Communists and Poujadists, augmented by followers of former premier Pierre Mendes-France.

The next major issue for the new government is slated for July 2, when the treaties for the six-country common market and the joint development of nuclear energy—Euratom—come up for ratification. This is expected to be the big debate as far as the two treaties are concerned. Qualified observers agree that if France ratifies the accords, the parliaments in Italy, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg will quickly follow suit.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— Stamford will celebrate its centennial Sunday with a thanksgiving service attended by more than 1,000 persons and former students.

Western Powers Confer Before Armament Meet

LONDON (Reuters) — Western disarmament delegates representing the United States, France, Britain and Canada held a further private meeting today before going into session with Russia in the resumed meetings of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee. American delegate Harold Stassen was expected to develop the proposals for an East-West reduction in military manpower which he laid before the sub-committee last week.

At the sub-committee's last meeting on Thursday Stassen suggested that the U.S. and Russia limit their armed forces to 2,500,000 men each during the first year after a partial disarmament agreement goes into force.

GRADUAL REDUCTION

Reliable sources said Stassen's proposal would provide that in subsequent second and third stages the U.S. and Russia should reduce their new ceilings each to 2,100,000, and then 1,700,000 men.

It was understood that Britain and France would each accept ceilings during the three stages of 750,000, 700,000 and 650,000.

The Western powers were reported to have given a fair earlier view that any progress in disarmament should be conditional on progress made towards the settlement of world political problems, such as the reunification of Germany.

Now it was agreed that the first stage could come about without any political conditions, but it would still be desirable that second and subsequent stages should go hand in hand with progress towards political settlement.

Finance Minister Plans Tax-Paring Budget In Fall

Fleming Says Election Promises to be Fulfilled

OTTAWA (CP)—A new budget, to pare taxes and increase old age pensions, will be brought down by Finance Minister Donald Fleming next fall.

"Our election promises will be fulfilled," the 53-year-old Toronto lawyer said Tuesday in an interview in which he also disclosed:

1. The Progressive Conservative plan to ease the federal "tight-money" policy as soon as possible with the hope of reviving Canada's flagging economy.

2. A new federal-provincial tax conference is to be called, probably this year, to revise federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangements and increase provincial tax revenues.

Still to be settled is the date of calling Parliament. Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in his election campaign speech, promised to call the session in September to reduce unemployment. But previous planning of the defeated Liberal administration was to call an autumn session to open formally the Queen.

Mr. Diefenbaker now is in London attending the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

MONEY BURNS OUT

The government's temporary supply of funds, voted at the last Parliament, runs to July 31. Parliament undoubtedly would have to be called before then to vote a further supply.

Mr. Fleming, Toronto Eglinton MP and a bitter critic of Liberal party fiscal policy, said he will declare "open war" against waste and extravagance in the government. He also will be aiming for a balanced budget rather than a surplus or deficit.

In the last budget of the Liberal administration, handed down in March, former finance minister Walter Harris forecast a surplus of $152,000,000 for the 1957-58 fiscal year. Mr. Fleming charged that the Liberals had overtaxed the people, allegedly on the assumption that overtaxation helped combat inflation.

Queen Inspects Ship That Will Never Go to Sea

LONDON (CP) — The Queen drove six miles through the streets of London Tuesday to inspect a sailing ship that will never put to sea again.

She motored from Buckingham Palace to Greenwich to go aboard the famous China tea clipper, Cutty Sark, now in permanent drydock as a maritime museum piece and a memorial to the men of the merchant navy.

The Queen's scheduled departure from the palace was delayed by more than 10 minutes while she chatted with Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Palace officials had expected the Canadian leader's audience with the Queen would last for about 15 minutes. But it was at the palace for 40 minutes.

Aboard the Cutty Sark, the Queen had reminders of her Commonwealth's senior Dominion. The clipper's figurehead was carved from a block of laminated Canadian white pine, a gift of the Canadian government.

During her visit she met painter Leslie Wilcox, who designed the new figurehead when the ship was restored earlier this year.

Wilcox has been commissioned to paint the siege of Cape Breton by New England forces in 1745. The painting is destined for the Canadian Army Staff College at Kingston.

Duke of Norfolk Abandons Fight

LONDON (Reuters)—The Duke of Norfolk has abandoned his fight to gain tax-free use of his castle for himself and his successors. He said Tuesday his decision was based on opposition of members of Parliament to his plan.

The duke had proposed to give his ancestral home, Arundel Castle, to the country together with a $250,000 fund to maintain it. In return, he asked that he and his descendants should be allowed to live in the castle without payment or taxes.

A statement issued a week ago failed to mollify critics. The duke's proposals, embodied in a parliamentary bill, had aroused particularly strong opposition among Labor members.

The bill had been approved in principle by the duke's fellow peers. But it faced a stormy passage in the forthcoming House of Commons debate.

Rob Ticket Office

WAWA, Ont. (CP)—Two masked men escaped with more than $1,000, an undetermined amount of money from the ticket office of the Canadian Pacific Railway station. They forced two employees, Vern Forbes and Tom Parks, into a washroom and rifled the till. The safe was open but was empty.

Today's Chuckle

"Most of the naughty things I hear about our youngsters," the country preacher said, "are the same things I saw their parents outgrow."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:

Today will be a pleasant sunny day in Southern Ontario with temperatures reaching the mid-70s. During sunny intervals in Northern Ontario, afternoon temperatures will range between 65 and 76.

Thursday's weather depends on a low pressure system now extending from western Lake Superior to Iowa. This system is causing scattered showers and thunderstorms and present indications are that this activity will reach western sections of Ontario this evening.

WEST ADOPTS DULLES' STAND ON BOMB TESTS

Accept Ban if Later Production Halted

LONDON (CP)—Western members of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee were reported today to have reached a basic agreement on a suspension of nuclear tests.

A reliable source was quoted by Reuters news agency as saying they have adopted the position indicated Tuesday by U.S. State Secretary Dulles of nuclear test suspension for a limited period provided there is also agreement to halt nuclear production for military purposes at a definite date.

Just how soon around to this position was believed to be France, with Britain, the U.S. and Canada comprise the four Western members of this subcommittee. Russia is the fifth member.

The French were adamant that any ban on tests must be accompanied by a simultaneous ban on nuclear production for military purposes.

RECONCILED TO SUSPENSION

Otherwise, they felt they would have been prevented from developing their own nuclear weapons while the U.S., France and Britain went ahead in piling up stocks of weapons.

Now, it is reported, the French are reconciled to suspension for a time if they can be sure they could go ahead.

Discussions said the Western position is a notable achievement for U.S. delegate Harold Stassen, who pushed for the test agreement among the Western members as well as with Russia.

Russia is cool so far to the U.S. proposal for a three-stage reduction in forces tied to the elimination of world issues. The Russians rejected Wednesday when Stassen placed before the subcommittee his plan to cut the armed forces by 10 per cent the first year, eventually to 1,700,000 men each.

Pressed by Stassen for comment, Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin told the committee he would have to wait "and see what changes are needed, with the cooperation of all those affected including the unions and the employers."

"I have no intention of being dictatorial," added the pleasant 46-year-old businessman from Odessa. "I'm going to consider the ideas of all those who might be affected by any changes."

Down to shirtsleeves in the plush office suite he has taken over from outgoing labor minister Milton Gregg, Mr. Starr said his main aim in office will be to do all he can to implement the Conservative platform on labor policies.

"But I'm mighty green at this big job," he admitted, "and it's going to take me some time to feel around and get my footing."

Greenhorn that he might be in the labor ministry, the Commonwealther for Ontario riding is no newcomer to politics. He has been in the Commons since 1952, and he is the man who was mayor of Oshawa in 1948-53 and previously five years as alderman of that industrial city.

Like his Liberal predecessor, the new labor minister has never been a member of a union.

Deputy to the heads of union connections, Mr. Starr had no trouble on June 10 in getting a plurality of about 4,400 over CCF candidate Jack Naylor, an official of the United Automobile Workers of America, which has about 11,000 members in Oshawa. Officially, the UAW supports the CCF.

As a youngster Mr. Starr was a printer's devil—handyman in the composing room—of the Oshawa Times-Gazette. This was when he was getting the 25-a-week salary.

New Labor Minister Plans Fast Review of Labor Laws

OTTAWA (CP)—Energetic Mike Starr, who began as a $5-a-week printer's devil and now is Canada's $27,000-a-year new labor minister, says he plans a fast scrutiny of federal labor legislation with a view to possible revision.

Hon. Michael Starr, Liberty's first federal minister of Ukrainian extraction, says that in this early stage of the new Progressive Conservative regime he has no major upheavals in mind but will take a hard look at existing laws.

"I intend to review all federal labor legislation," he said in an interview, "and if I see what changes are needed, with the cooperation of all those affected including the unions and the employers."

"I have no intention of being dictatorial," added the pleasant 46-year-old businessman from Oshawa. "I'm going to consider the ideas of all those who might be affected by any changes."

Headless Body That of Crabb Coroner Rules

CHICHESTER, England (AP)—A coroner ruled today that the body of a headless frogman washed up off the shore early this week was that of Lt.-Comdr. Lionel Crabb, British diver who vanished a year ago after being sighted near a Soviet warship visiting Portsmouth harbor.

Coroner G. H. Clerk Bridgmen said he is satisfied the remains were of Crabb, but there is no evidence of the cause of death. He returned an open verdict.

Crabb, 46, famous wartime frogman, disappeared near Portsmouth last April during the visit of Russian cruiser that brought Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev to Britain on a goodwill tour.

The missing diver's wife, Mrs. Margaret Crabb, was in court today for the inquest. She had viewed the remains but has been unable to identify them.

Mrs. Crabb, who divorced Crabb about 18 months before his disappearance, heard medical experts give a detailed account of the decomposed body of the corpse which virtually solved the mystery of the identity.

The body of the frogman, dressed in Italian gear Crabb was known to favor, was found June 5 at this English Channel port, 12 miles from Plymouth.

COMMUNISTS ASK PARLEY TO SETTLE KOREA'S FUTURE

Demand Withdrawal Of Foreign Troops

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Communist North Korea today called for a broad international conference to arrange the withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea and bring about a peaceful solution to the problem of the divided peninsula.

The demand, made at a meeting of the joint military armistice commission, was rejected by the United Nations command as not a proper subject to be taken up at a military conference.

Red China's premier, Chou En-lai, speaking to his parliament in Peiping, supported the conference proposal during a visit of Communist bloc leaders.

The Communists suggested the conference as a reply to the UN command's decision to void the armistice provision prohibiting the introduction of new weapons into Korea. The UN had announced the feeds of violating the arms ban since the cease-fire in 1953.

'WRECKING ARMISTICE'

North Korea's Maj.-Gen. Chung Kook Rook said the UN allies are preparing for a new war by "wrecking" the armistice.

"Your side does not want a peaceful settlement in Korea," he said. "This has been shown in the fact that the U.S. side has already broke up the preliminary political negotiations at Panmunjom and Geneva, intensified the arms buildup in South Korea, and has even unilaterally declared that it will not be bound by the armistice agreement was a bilateral agreement and any unilateral action, such as the UN decision to bring in new weapons, would be null and void.

The North Korean government, Chung added, "re-emphasizes that only an international conference with broad participation by the countries concerned must be convened at an early date to arrange the withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea, to guarantee peaceful unification and to facilitate a peaceful solution of the Korean question."

UN COMMAND RESPONSIBLE

"If the UN side insists on following its present policy, your side must be held entirely responsible for all the serious consequences arising therefrom."

The Communist general did not elaborate on that point.

The UN command chief, Maj.-Gen. Homer L. Litzenberg of the U.S. Marines, told the governments making up the UN command tried to work out a peaceful and just settlement of the Korean problem at the Geneva conference in line with the UN objectives in Korea."

"The governments of the UN command remain ready to discuss withdrawal of forces and unification on the basis of UN objectives.

"Until your side is prepared to settle the Korean question on these just objectives any political conference will result in a deadlock because of Communist intransigence."

Some Documents Taken From U.S. Embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some confidential documents apparently were taken by unknown persons from the United States Embassy in Taipei during last month's anti-American riots on Formosa.

Responsible officials said this is acknowledged in a special report the state department now is drafting about the incident. They did not make clear whether any important documents were taken and there are indications that no inventory was kept of papers in the embassy's locked cabinets.

State Secretary Dulles already has denied that the rioters stole secret American diplomatic code books.

Officials said the special report will be given within the next few days to the Senate foreign relations and House of Representatives foreign affairs committees. They reportedly asked the state department to report on the riots after an investigation.

Summer Hotel Burns

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Rice Lake House, a hotel at Gore's Landing 15 miles south of here, was burned to the ground Tuesday. No one was in it at the time.

The hotel, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bedard of Toronto, was on the point of being sold to the British Methodist Episcopal Church for $26,000. The church planned to use the building as a summer resort for underprivileged children and the aged.

Commonwealth Leaders Study Disarmament

Session Suddenly Turns To Discussion of Arms

LONDON (CP)—Commonwealth prime ministers unexpectedly launched into world disarmament discussions at the opening today of their one-week conference.

The inaugural morning session was intended to limit itself to opening speeches and approval of the agenda, but leaders of the 10 countries felt the current five-power disarmament talks here warranted immediate discussion.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, who has been attending the five-power talks, outlined the present stage of negotiations.

Reuters news agency said it was understood that the general view of the prime ministers was one of guarded optimism for the conclusion of a partial disarmament agreement. The morning session lasted two hours.

DISCUSS WORLD PROBLEMS

World problems will be thoroughly discussed during the week by the prime ministers.

They met at 10 Downing Street, headquarters of Prime Minister Macmillan, for week-long private talks which range from arms control with Russia, hydrogen bomb tests, disarmament and the Middle East situation.

Flags of the countries — Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Ghana and the Federation of Malaya and Nyasaland — fluttered from specially erected flag poles.

Loud applause broke out from a crowd of 200 when the first delegate prime minister of Ghana, Dr. Kwame Nkrumah, stepped out of his car. Last to arrive was John Diefenbaker, prime minister of Canada.

TUESDAY OF TALKS

This is the broad pattern of the talks:

Today—The opening session discussed the agenda and then switched unexpectedly to disarmament, to be followed by a discussion of East-West relations and recent clashes in Poland and the Communist bloc.

Thursday — Discussions of the Middle East situation and the Suez crisis.

Friday—An analysis of the situation in Southeast Asia and the Pacific.

Weekend — Informal outside conference talks by ministers or the Earl of Home, Commonwealth relations secretary.

Monday—The problem of world disarmament, including an exchange of views on the controversial issue of H-bomb tests.

Tuesday—Relations with a revision of the United Nations charter.

Wednesday—Economic and trading problems of the sterling area.

Thursday—Prospects for British colonial territories toward self-government within the Commonwealth.

Court-Martial Turned Into Chat On Move Limiting Army Missiles

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The court-martial of a United States Army sergeant appeared today to have been reduced to a sort of round-robin chat on Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's decision in limiting the army to missiles with a range of only 100 miles.

For all practical purposes—and with the consent of Nickerson and the government—the trial of bespectacled, 41-year-old Sgt. Nickerson never got over except for his sentencing.

Nickerson engaged in a one-man fight to have Wilson modify his order and let the army develop what he called a 600- to 1,000-mile intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM).

The Army said the permitted sensitive defence information to reach unauthorized persons, and was lax in handling secret data.

Nickerson expressed optimism about the sentence. He said the most he expected was a reprimand—the severest sentence he felt should be imposed.

He added that he expects to return to work soon on the army's missile program.

Before the 10-man court-martial board got around to firing Nickerson's punishment—which could be a dishonorable discharge and up in jail—it plans to hear 14 witnesses, including some of the nation's top military and civilian scientists. This probably will take about five days.

Presumably these witnesses will discuss the Wilson order and its effect on the IRBM program.

Nickerson as a person and a specialist in how the army's IRBM, the Jupiter, stacks up with the air force's rival missile, the Thor.

The testimony of these witnesses is expected to be mainly in the process of obtaining leniency for Nickerson, described by his counsel as a mechanical man who has put his country before his family.

Nickerson, a brilliant mathematician, admittedly decided to fight the Wilson order by seeking to enlist influential newspaper men, congressmen and the heads of corporations on his side to preserve the IRBM for the army.

The army charged originally that he obtained top-secret information and distributed it to those he wanted to help him. This led to his court-martial.

Metro Cannot Put Fluoride In Water

OTTAWA (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto may not add fluoride to the water it supplies its 13 constituent municipalities, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled today.

The court upheld 5 to 2 year's long contention by the hold-out fashionable suburb of Forest Hill that Metro may not fluoridate the public water supply without general approval.

Fluoridation is the addition of one or two parts of sodium fluoride — 1,000,000 of water as a medical step to reduce the incidence of tooth decay.

Lawyer Harold Manning of Toronto, who argued Metro's case, said legislation establishing Metropolitan Toronto empowered Metro to do anything it likes to its water provided that the end product is pure and wholesome.

NOT ON WORLD SCALE

But J. J. Robinette, arguing for Forest Hill, said Metro's powers did not include the right to administer medicine on a mass scale.

Such reasoning, he said, could lead to the day when the next sewage juice is good for babies, to put orange juice in the water and hold itself justified since that would not render the water impure.

Forest Hill's first attempt to halt the by-law declared invalid was denied by Mr. Justice MacKay, sitting as trial judge. His finding was reversed by Chief Justice Pickup on appeal by Forest Hill.

TB in Far East Could Affect Canada's Health

VANCOUVER (CP) — Widespread tuberculosis existing in Far Eastern countries could affect Canada.

This is a warning was sounded tonight by Dr. C. G. Shaver of St. Catharines, Ont., retiring president of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association. He said "tuberculosis is no longer, a national entity, but a world problem."

The battle against TB in the Orient "reminds us of what we learned in the early part of the turn of the century when the Canadian Tuberculosis Association was into being."

Dr. Shaver said "These seemingly far away countries are each year drawn closer to our doorstep, even closer than some of our provinces were a few years ago. We have every reason to view this Eastern problem as a responsibility from a humanitarian aspect, but we must be cognizant of the manner in which they could affect us in the future."

Dr. C. J. Mercer, executive secretary of the association, said tuberculosis costs Canada $40,000,000 a year despite progress in controlling the disease. He said 9,131 new cases were admitted to Canadian sanatoria last year. Average stay was 361 days.

Heads TB Body

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. G. F. Kincaid of Vancouver, director of tuberculosis control for British Columbia, became president of the Canadian Tuberculosis Association Tuesday night. He succeeds Dr. C. G. Shaver"of St. Catharines, Ont., who remains on the executive as past-president.

Rheumatoid Arthritis Occurs More Often in Children Than Adults

TORONTO (CP) — Rheumatoid arthritis, a disease usually found in adults and the aged, occurs more often in children than is generally believed, a United States rheumatologist said today.

Dr. Bernard M. Forcman of Buffalo, N.Y., said rheumatoid arthritis, the most common and crippling of the rheumatic diseases, is frequently wrongly diagnosed as tuberculosis or rheumatism.

His observations were contained in a paper delivered here before the Fifth International Congress on Rheumatic Diseases.

Symptoms are fever, anaemia, loss of weight, growth interference, or even heart damage, frequently cause that disease to be diagnosed as rheumatic fever, he said. In many other cases it is diagnosed as leukemia or osteomyelitis.

The disease strikes twice as many girls as boys and is most often found in children under three years old. Like Rheumatic fever, it frequently follows a streptococcal respiratory infection.

Dr. Forcman told of recovery from the disease by children were good. The average length of the attack was 5½ years, although it might last 20 years or more.

Dr. Forcman, whose conclusions were drawn from a 20-year study of persons with arthritis, recommended that early therapy for children as for adults—rest, physiotherapy and drugs—be free of hormone drugs and gold salts.

Dr. Gunnar Edstrom of Lund, Sweden said a study of the disease in children showed the best method was that first treated in early stages.

In another paper given today, Dr. David H. Neustadt of Louisville, Ky., said a modern version of the 3,000-year-old drug colchicine is more effective for treating gout. The new drug, colcemide is derived from the ancient drug colchicine and produced the same therapeutic effects without any of its physical side-effects.

LOCAL WELSH CORGI WINS RIBBONS AT KINGSTON SHOW

Welsh Corgi, owned by Harold Skillicorn, R.R. 2 Amelisburg, Breezewood Kennels, had himself a field day at the dog show sponsored by the Kingston Kennel Club, on Saturday at the Community Centre in that city. Mr. Skillicorn breeds the Pembroke strain of this popular pet and his dog was first in the open class and also won the winners' class.

Mr. Skillicorn stated the show was wonderful. There was a large entry of pets from as far east as Montreal, west to Toronto and from border points in the United States. The show has only been in existence for two years but is making rapid progress, and plans are already being laid to make the show bigger next season.

Police Blotter

Family troubles and drunks kept city police busy during the night with about a half dozen calls of this nature coming to attention of officers.

Otherwise the night watch was quiet with only one minor theft reported. This was from The Tathan Company, the complaint being about the theft of a quantity of scantlings from a construction job at the site of the new Imperial Bank on Front Street.

Bush's Hackneys Win at Quebec, Ontario Shows

After purchasing a new team of hackney ponies, Jack Bush, starting out with a bang, had attended three shows, Ormstown and Lachute in Quebec and Maxwell in Ontario. He arrived home on Sunday and brought with him thirty ribbons won at the shows. Mr. Bush attained seven firsts, fifteen seconds, nine thirds and four fourths on the trip.

Mr. Bush had a beautiful team of ponies, which were over the 13.2 hands but he believed there was a bigger field to show in with a smaller team. About the same time Mrs. Elgin Armstrong of Brampton, who has shown at the Belleville Fair on several occasions wanted a bigger team to go along with her smaller teams so that she could show in all classes. She also had three teams of the smaller class and was willing to trade and so a deal was made with Mr. Bush and both benefited by the trade.

"All the shows were wonderful" said Mr. Bush and the horsemen were well treated by the various societies. Two of the shows were essentially a horse show while the other was a fair. Mr. Bush also stated the classes were well filled and the competition exceptionally keen. It was stated that some of the exhibitors might be in the city for the fall fair in August.

Two Admitted To Hospital After Crash

Two persons were admitted to Belleville General Hospital shortly before noon today following a spectacular two-car crash at the corner of Bridge and George Sts.

Taken to hospital were Mrs. Carman Jones, R.R. 4, Belleville, who suffered hip injury, and Jacob McNught, aged 48, of R.R. 2, Belleville. Mr. McNught had a knee and head injury.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Jones was northbound on George street and was struck in the centre of the intersection by an eastbound car driven by Mr. McNught. The Jones auto continued over the lawn at the home of Mrs. McLean, 118 East Bridge street where it peeled the paint off the front steps, then went through a flower bed and across the lawn at the W. R. McCreary home, ending up astraddle the curb on the south side of Bridge street.

The left front side of the Jones auto was stove in while the McNught auto had front end damage.

Two ambulances were called to the scene with Pinkston and Luscombe taking Mrs. Jones to hospital, and the John R. Bush ambulance taking Mr. McNught to hospital. Dr. Austin Walters attended.

Police Constables Robert Ifall and Robert Blaind investigated.

IN MEMORIAM

HEBBERTSON—In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Marilyn Jean Hebbertson, who left us so suddenly eleven years ago, June 26th, 1946.

Beautiful memories are all we have left.

Of her we loved and will never forget;
Her loving smile and happy face.
A heart of gold — can never be replaced.
Sad was the parting, no one can tell
So sudden on earth the sorrow fell;
Memories are treasures no one can steal.
Death leaves a heartache nothing can heal.
Only those who have lost are able to tell.
The pain of our hearts of not saying farewell.
—Sadly missed by mother, father and sister.

CARNEY — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Maude Cairns, who passed away June 26th, 1954.
She bade no one her last farewell,
She said goodbye to none;
The heavenly gates were opened
And mother passed on.
No often sit and think of you
The things you used to say;
Memories of you we hold so dear,
Without a chance to say goodbye.
Though out of sight, and miles apart,
Still missed, remembered, near to heart.
Sweet memories, such as a memory,
Even the Almighty can take.
—Ever remembered by son Garfield Carney and daughter-in-law Doris, on dear friend Nell.

Peter Townsend In Iowan Town

EMMETSBURG, Iowa (AP)—Group Capt. Peter Townsend, whose name was once linked romantically with Princess Margaret, went unrecognized when he stopped in this Iowa town on a cross-country tour.

Townsend registered in a $1.50 room at Hotel Waverly Monday night, giving Brussels as his address. Later his identity became known when he produced a passport to cash a traveller's cheque.

Townsend was driving a British-licensed Land Rover car. Mrs. W. F. Larson, operator of the hotel, provided him with thermos bottles of hot tea before his departure Tuesday and her son helped him wash his car.

Townsend said he landed several days ago at Vancouver, went through Canada to Winnipeg and then headed south.

Steam Engine Makes Last Run

NORTH BAY (CP)—The era of steam locomotives, which hauled more than $2,000,000,000 worth of gold and silver from Northeast Ontario mines in the last half century, has ended on the Ontario Northland Railway.

The Ontario government-owned ONR completed conversion to diesel operation earlier this year. Tuesday it wound up a two-day last symbolic run by a steam locomotive, old No. 701, which went into service in 1921.

Some 3,000 persons were on hand here at the main ONR terminus to bid a last fond farewell to the chuff-chuffing steam giants which helped to open up the northland.

Tuesday 701 ran from Noranda, Que., to North Bay. It was greeted enthusiastically along the route. At Englehart, a railway town of 1,750 persons, an estimated 1,000 stood on the station platform in a steady rainfall to cheer the last steam-drawn train. The locomotive which made the last run will shortly go to Englehart to be set up as a museum piece.

Supreme Court Returns Twins To Parents

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today restored to a young Dutch immigrant couple new living in Toronto, twin sons placed out for adoption at birth three years ago.

The panel, headed by Mr. Justice Rand, voted 4 opinions to 1.

Herman and Trudy Maat are entitled by the court's order to the immediate custody of their sons Richard and Roland, who have been cared for by Austin and Ethel Hepton of Cooksville, Ont. The Maats changed their minds three months after getting their family doctor to arrange adoption of the babies. Evidence was that an abortion had been sought but they were persuaded to allow the births to take place.

FINAL RULING

It was the third Supreme Court hearing. Its ruling is final.

The Supreme Court of Ontario awarded the twins to the Heptons. The Ontario Court of Appeal ordered them returned to the Maats.

No religious conflict was involved The Maats belong to the Christian Reformed Church, a Netherlands-origin Protestant denomination The Heptons are members of the United Church of Canada, into which the twins were baptized.

Lawyer C. L. Dubin of Toronto, for the Heptons, told the court had the tests to apply. The first was with which couple the youngsters' welfare rests. He argued that inconsistencies in evidence rejected upon their sense of responsibility.

If both families weighed equally, however, the court had to decide whether the Maats deprived themselves forever of their rights in signing documents connected with the babies' custody.

Lawyer J. J. Robinette of Toronto, for the Maats, argued that blood ties are stronger than any other factors, including economic and social position. The rights of the natural parents should prevail.

The Heptons own a modern bungalow there on a half-acre lot in Cooksville. Mr. Hepton is partowner of a veneticn blind business.

The Maats occupy a three-room flat in Toronto, where Herman, 25, is an $85-a-week fuel truck driver. A daughter has been born since the twins arrived.

Trial evidence was that pressure from the natural grandparents, who had followed the young couple to Canada and wanted to see their grandchildren, persuaded the Maats that they had done something "wrong" and should take action to recover the babies.

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The body of 10-year-old Shirley Alice Kyle was found a half-mile from her home today. Police arrested a 15-year-old boy with a record of molesting children.

Salvatore Joseph Falbo was picked up after an intensive manhunt. Detectives said he admitted the slaying. Officers said there were indications the child was strangled and raped.

Two hundred persons had searched for hours after Shirley's mother reported her missing Tuesday night.

Expects Negroes To Achieve Goal In Next 6 Years

DETROIT (AP)—Dr. Channing H. Tobias says he believes the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People can achieve its goal of full civil rights for Negroes in the United States by 1963—the centennial of Abraham Lincoln's emancipation proclamation.

But the association's 75-year-old board chairman, making the keynote speech at the NAACP convention Tuesday night, said the organization faces a grave crisis because of attempts to "harass, cripple and run the NAACP out of business throughout the South."

WELL SPOKEN, DR. LOWE!

At last someone has summoned the courage to say it.

Dr. Percy Lowe, mathematics professor at Royal Military College and member of the Kingston Board of Education, earlier this month told a convention of members of the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees' Association at Bigwin Inn that the armed services' Regular Officer Training Plan is producing low-quality graduates at high cost to the government.

Although he may have bitten off a little more than he can chew, Dr. Lowe deserves a good deal of credit for pointing out something which should have been publicized some time ago.

Successful candidates for the R.O.T.P. are put through the university or military college of their choice, free of charge to them, providing they agree to serve a minimum of three years as commissioned officers in the armed service of their choice after graduation. On top of getting free education, they are also paid a nice "allowance" while in university. We have no quarrel with what the R.O.T.P. is striving to achieve but there is quite obviously some loop hole through which unsatisfactory candidates are recruited.

The axe should fall at the selection centre.

Unfortunately, more emphasis is placed by selection boards on a likely candidate's high school academic results, rather than on the reasons why he has chosen to serve in one specific branch of one of the armed forces. The result is that too many candidates who are keen on making a military career, yet did not display their academic capabilities fully in high school, are being turned away in favor of those with high marks and relatively poor psychological reasons for enlisting.

We appreciate that a high degree of intelligence is desired of armed services officers, as well as other qualities which go into the making of good officers. However, we suggest that the Regular Officers Training Plan selection boards take into consideration, more than they have done in the past, why a young man or woman wishes to be in the armed services.

If the boards feel they would be swamped with too many candidates holding low academic records, we hope that they will remember the case of the late Albert Einstein. He tried, unsuccessfully, for three years to pass his entrance examinations to the University of Vienna before he was finally admitted.

Too many young Canadians are being hurt, emotionally, because they are being rejected by these selection boards. There are many young people who have military life "in their blood," yet are being sent home disappointed because they lack sufficient proof of their academic abilities.

TAMING THE H-BOMB

Atomic scientists are reported to have told President Eisenhower that the U.S. can now produce a hydrogen bomb "about 95 per cent free of radioactive fallout." What they meant was that the fallout would be only 5 per cent of that from the earliest H-bomb. On top of that, it was reported that fallout had been reduced by nine-tenths. "By the time he made that statement, we had gone about half the way to ten-tenths," explained Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission.

All this is very interesting. Unfortunately U.S. law prevents the author explaining the process to those who have knowledge of it might bring the U.S. the greatest benefit—the Russians.

It will not do us much good on this continent to know that our H-bombs are 95 per cent fallout free if the H-bombs the Russians are dropping on us are the old-style, highly contaminating ones.

The only advantage that sole possession of the secret of manufacturing fallout-free H-bombs can give the U.S. is the propaganda value of being able to contend that further tests are not contaminating the atmosphere and endangering the lives and well-being of millions yet unborn.

Since, as long as the U.S. continues tests, the Russians are certain to follow suit even if their H-bombs produce heavy fallout, the threat to the future of mankind is, at best, merely reduced.

Of course, if all the nations manufacturing nuclear weapons were to obtain the secret of reducing fallout, and if all of them thus reduced the killing power of their bombs, the likelihood of nations using nuclear weapons on a large scale in any future war might be enhanced.

Let those who can cheer this prospect.

Incidentally, surely this is the first time in the history of man that he has endeavored to decrease, rather than to increase, the damage which his weapons will do.

Perhaps this is a measure of the frightening power which man now possesses to destroy himself and his world.

Somebody wants to know what ever became of the Baker's Dozen: It was this way: the jolly old bakers got fed up on so much diabetic harping about too many cakes, buns and fancy tarts being no good for a person. So they deemed it wise to abolish the 13-size dozen as too fattening, and not a very lucky number anyway. Any further questions? - - Ottawa Citizen.

Luxury Tourist Liners

By Harry C. Kelsey in the Christian Science Monitor

Down at 17 Battery Place, on the ower tip of Manhattan where the sea breeze has a twang to it, the American Banner Line is whipping up a seafaring program that will upper-class the tourist. This line, the only United States enterprise to enter the North Atlantic service in over a quarter of a century, is about 35 introduce "a new concept in low-cost ocean travel luxury tourist."

A visit to Vice-Admiral Roscoe H. Hillenkoetter, retired, and now executive vice-president of the newly-formed line, was accomplished via the West Side Highway along the docks where a dozen ocean greyhounds were impatiently tied up to take on passengers.

This is the peak time of the eastbound ocean travel season, and during this period there are 10,000 to 12,000 persons each week bustling about the docks of Manhattan—enough to make one Queen or another, or some compact liner, in quest of adventure.

So the mood was right to have the admiral point out the meaning of the new "luxury tourist" business. This he did with considerable gusto, and despite the fact that he is now anchored to a desk after 38 years' active duty in the navy.

Of course I knew when a ship was going down the harbor and out to the sea. But I never before moved with the vessel as it passed one window after another. But now I had a will and was got down to blueprints of a luxury-class vessel, one of the largest, fastest, and most modern types developed in recent times by the United States Maritime Administration. It has been purchased and is being converted by ABL, under government subsidy, in accordance with the administration's policy of providing service for additional passenger service on the North Atlantic in United States flag ships. Two more new liners are yet to come.

"The ship you see here—this will be America's first transatlantic liner that will be almost entirely tourist class. This is a fulfilment of a long-time ambition of the line's president, Arnold Bernstein. The vessel will accommodate 860 luxury tourist passengers with 40 first-class staterooms available. Its minimum rate has been established by the Atlantic conference at $187.50.

Then the admiral counted off what amount to the main features the tourist class will enjoy. Every stateroom will have complete bath. Each stateroom and public room will be scientifically air conditioned. All passengers will enjoy the freedom of sports, sun and promenade decks. The large and elegantly appointed lounges, club, public rooms and theaters will be concentrated toward the centre of the ship.

This 20,000-ton liner will be modern in design, and will incorporate the latest safety features and instrumentation. It will cruise at 20 knots and the tourist class will enjoy a glass-enclosed and heated promenade deck.

"And," the admiral said, "we have a stack of reservations [sic] high without advertising the first run, which will be early next spring."

But there is more for the tourist because the vessel is away from three-class ships.

France will lay the keel of a new superliner, the S.S. France — in October. This $77,000,000 "dream-boat" is scheduled for 1960. It will be nearly 1,000 feet long and 55,000 gross tonnage. Each of its 2,000 cabins will be designed for the pleasure of 1,500 tourist class and 500 first class.

The Marine Engineering Log carries the item that the Maritime Financial Times reported recently it may not be long before Atlantic tourist rates will ahoard huge superliners. The item states: "It is reported that a British-built liner slightly larger than one of the Queens and with a speed of 35 knots, carrying 9,000 one-class passengers would cost about $14,000,000. There are plans in existence to build a 90,000 to 95,000-ton liner of the most modern construction, completely air conditioned, and to-tourist." Let's go!

Prettying Up Opera

By Harold Weir in the Vancouver Sun

A gentleman named Chotzinoff, who is described as producer of the NBC-TV operas and the NBC symphony opera orchestra, is going to weed out the pot-bellied sopranos and toss them to the wolves. Moreover, Mr. Chotzinoff will not tolerate any operas that haven't been translated into English.

Operas in foreign languages, says Mr. Chotzinoff, are incomprehensible. Sopranos with bay windows and faces like gargoyles are nothing to look at, going by up the opera and everything, operatically speaking, will be a gargantuan task.

It's pretty hard for anybody but a genius to be producer over of opera to deal with that one. At the same time, a fellow who makes his money in radio under protest is in the best position to realize that many requires something more than mere prettiness to get by. Such a chap can think, perhaps, of the dozen reasons why opera should be performed in the tongues of its conception and at least half of dozen more why it should have real singers, of whatever shape they may be, and not chicks with thin little voices capable of being thrown up by a microphone.

* * *

Mr. Chotzinoff appears to forget that the greatest opera performers of all time had faces that would stop a clock and that these personalities, as well, have been remembered long after the opera itself was forgotten. Enrico Caruso was no Adonis. God wot. Yet the voice of Caruso as Rhadames still echoes in the ears of many elderly and middle-aged people who couldn't give you the faintest idea what he looked like.

The truth is that anyone worthy to sing opera must have a talent powerful enough to make appearance inconsequential. Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree said it a good many years ago in his charming little book called "Thoughts and Afterthoughts." He said that any actor who was an actor could make himself appear thin, fat, short or tall, not by make-up, but by the way he walked on the stage. Those of us who just got in on the dying edge of Sarah Bernhardt will remember her as an old, old woman, legless in a wheelchair, who actually appeared as lovely as the springtime by the magic of her art.

It looks from here as though Mr. Chotzinoff is less concerned with art than with getting operas that in his efforts to make opera pretty, he may slit opera's throat. But you never can tell. This is a mad, mad world.

* * *

The chief argument against translating opera into English is that translated texts don't rhyme as they are so unspeakably silly in English. But the spectator is much happier when he doesn't know what they mean.

For instance, as in many operas, when most operatic words get bumped off or perishes of a broken heart in the last act, the sophisticate or the linguist has to face it. The singer who doesn't understand the language merely concludes, much more logically, that all that matters is the high, exorable justice of God.

This is not to say that opera didn't make sense in the time and language in which it was written. But by the time it has translated down into English, it just fails to click.

During the last war, an elderly patriot of considerable prominence tried to have the singing of German lieder in German forbidden on the air. He didn't get very far with it because most people who knew anything about music realized that the lieder, translated, ripped from their German, would be like fish out of water.

Someone should remind Mr. Chotzinoff that pantomime is much more powerful, and convincing than musical comedy, and that if an opera has real music and real singers, it doesn't matter a hoot if it's sung in Pig Latin.

THE CURE

He looked at the world and he said with a sigh:
"There's nothing but evil and folly."
And so he died
The sinners are many; the good men are few,
And you can't improve matters whatever you do.
War is all that is taught; race is still fighting race.
He's behind the times to the world is a shame and disgrace."

There is wrong in the world, but . . . improve it we can—
Maybe not in a minute, a week, or a year,
But little by little we'll better things here.

If you'd plant some roses, and I'd plant a few,
This street, come next June, would be a garden, too.
"The problems are ours, but first one must begin
The help and the strength of the many to win."

His neighbor replied, "Don't give up, old man.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When I was a young police reporter many years ago, there was a certain period of leisure for me or four years, was in court five or six times on a series of offences of increasing gravity. I got to know him through being asked by Big Brother Constantine, of time to do a feature story on young man, a newcomer to Toronto. But I did make his acquaintance well enough to have remembered him all my life. Soon after that story, he went to prison for a real whack.

On the hotel lobby the other day, a well-dressed, handsome elderly man walked by me and stood smiling expectantly.

"You don't recall me?" he asked.

"I do of course," I said, "but I can't just place . . . "

It was my long-ago bad boy. He has been a highly prosperous and eminently respectable citizen for over thirty-five years.

We sat down and he told me his experience. The last time I had heard of him, he was sent to penitentiary for three years.

"As you may recollect," he said, "I was subjected to every shame and form of correction as a youth and young man. I was punished, sentenced, advised, exhorted. The Big Brothers went to the greatest trouble for me. Clergymen labored over me. My family was practically ruined through me. I frankly confess that all these things made not the slightest impression on me. Looking back at it from this enlightened year 1957, I suspect I was some sort of psychiatric case.

"In prison, in the workshop, where we made bags, I sat next to an old man who was in for what I became very good friends. It was his theory, at the end of his long and disastrous life, that stealing brought bad luck. He had given up the notion that it was wrong, or wicked, or immoral. It was just unlucky. So he used to say, 'and you get bad luck right away, in proportion to what you steal.' He had a hundred instances and examples to prove his theory, and it used to delight and fascinate me to hear his arguments and his proofs. He used to 'preach this doctrine around the other inmates, and we worked out a whole theory. By the time my sentence was up, I was convinced that to be lucky, I had to be honest. I was 24 when I got out, and pretty dumb. I suppose, for my age. At all events, I worked religiously on this theory. And the hgnester I felt, the luckier I grew. What a strange little thing! At any rate, by the time I was thirty, I had really grown up in mind and spirit and was out of whatever bush. I had been lost in. I have never had anything but happiness and prosperity since!"

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Whadaya Mean Acid Condition?

My brother, says a Virginia reader, is subject to hay fever. At the beginning of the hay fever season last summer he had pain in his left shoulder, diagnosed as bursitis, which it wasn't — just an acid condition. The M. D. gave him "shots" for it and he developed asthma and has been miserable ever since. Thanking you . . . . . Signed:

Don't thank me. I was a thousand miles away from Virginia all last winter, spring and summer.

Besides, I haven't the faintest idea what "an acid condition" means. If it is related to "acid ash" and "alkali ash" foods in the diet or perhaps exclusion or restriction in the quality of certain healthful foods because they are "too acid", that is pretty silly, in view of the fact that eggs, fish and meat (beef, pork, veal, chicken, rabbit) are all high in acid-ity or acid-forming quality, yet Vilhjalmur Stefansson and Kersten Andersen followed an exclusive meat diet (nothing else but meat) for a number of year's stant observation and study of physicians, biochemists, physiologists, pathologists, biological chemists, nutritionists and other experts, and throughout the year in good or better health as they had had at any time previously. At no time did either men have more than the normal limit of uric acid or other acids. They ate their meat (lean) lamb, veal, pork, or chicken, both muscle and organ meats, at times liver, kidney, brain, bacon and bone marrow. Stefansson at times took eggs when obtainable, if meat was not available, and also some butter and fish.

Stefansson's The Friendly Arctic is a great classic of Canadian literature (The Macmillan Co, Toronto, New York, Bombay, Melbourne, London), and his reprint Adventures in Diet (Institute of American Meat Packers, Chicago), a highly instructive summary of observations and research made by this top authority, should dispose of a lot of befuddled fancies of both physicians and laymen — those with nineteenth century ideas, that is.

Hyperacidity, hyperchlorhydria, sour stomach, heartburn, hunger pain, acid eructations, waterbrash these are familiar complaints of persons with what I call "Yankee Stomach". In a few instances the trouble may be peptic ulcer. In others it is just smokers' duodenal ulcer complex — symptoms suggesting ulcer but no X-ray evidence of ulcer. In most instances the trouble is due to overeating. Overeating not only in just eating more than one needs, Usually it means eating food down hurriedly, without mastication.

If you're in a great hurry it is better to carry a few pieces of peanuts or nuts in your pocket and chew one at a time in the way than it is to wolf down anything you haven't time to masticate.

Even in Yankeeland, where we are all in such a hurry, the digestion of starch still takes place, or should take place, largely in the mouth when it is properly chewed. That so much of the starch in the food you eat goes directly to the duodenum unchewed, on account of the rational hurry and ignorance of hygiene, is in my opinion a contributing cause of diabetes.

Strength for The Day

DREAMS AND ACCOMPLISHMENT

We hear a great deal today about wishful thinking. When wishful thinking is a substitute for positive action it is time to worry. But there is something to be said for wishful thinking. For wishful thinking may be—and indeed, often is—the turning over in our minds of the picture we have of better things. If all we do about getting these better things is turning up into a better state of mind and soul, is just to think about them, then we are wasting our time. But so-called wishful thinking can sometimes be genuine aspiration.

When we cease to have dreams about ourselves and our future, we cease to live. Let us dream, and not be ashamed to dream. Let us dream of a better future for ourselves. Let us bring before our minds that day when we can have live action in the world around us. Let us reflect upon the possibility of our being wiser with each advanced in material things through increased and continuous application of the mind to the task for the day when our faith will be greater and our spiritual vision clearer.

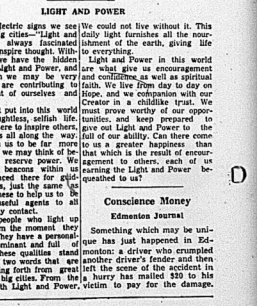
People who dream and do nothing but dream are a liability to themselves and the world. But people who are incapable of the living of a big life and dreamers are precious in the advancement of mankind.

Don't be afraid to dream—but after every dream, act.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LIGHT AND POWER



We could not live without it. This dully light furnishes all the nourishment to the earth, giving life to everything.

Light and Power in this world are what give us every encouragement and confidence as well as spiritual uplift. We live from day to day on Hope, and we companion with our Creator in a childlike trust. We are grateful for each day's opportunities, and keep prepared to give out light and power, being full of our ability. Can there come to us a greater happiness than that which comes in full measurement to others, each of us earning the Light and Power bequeathed to us?

Formosa Watches Quemoy Islands With Concern

TAIPEI, Formosa (Reuters) — Nationalist China is "watching with grave concern" the situation in the Formosa Strait following a violent Communist bombardment of the Quemoy Islands Monday night, a military spokesman said Tuesday.

Rear-Admiral Liu Hoh-tu said the shelling might again touch off warfare in the Quemoy - Amoy area.

"We know that Communist capabilities of invasion are always there," he said, but stressed that there were no indications yet of an imminent Communist attack.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Admiral Felix Stump, United States commander-in-chief in the Pacific, will arrive Thursday for discussions with Nationalist commanders. He is expected to assess the new military situation caused by the Communist bombardment.

In Hong Kong, a British Navy spokesman said British shipping firms were advised not to send vessels to the Communist port of Amoy because of heavy Nationalist-Communist gun duels.

Court of Appeal Says Action Month too Late

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Court of Appeal has rejected on a technicality an appeal by a member of the Witnesses of Jehovah religious sect but strongly reprimanded a provincial police officer involved in her arrest.

Louise Lamb, 40, had latunched a $5,000 damage action against provincial police for false arrest but three Appeal Court justices ruled Tuesday the action had been taken one month after the six-month period during which proceedings against public officers are permitted.

But Mr. Justices Garon Pratte and Andre Taschereau criticized detective Paul Benoit, who ordered Miss Lamb's arrest and laid a charge of seditious libel against her. The charge was dismissed at her preliminary hearing in January, 1947.

"In the face of the facts brought out in evidence, I would certainly have condemned Benoit," said Mr. Justice Taschereau.

CRITICIZES ACTIONS

Mr. Justice Garon-Pratte described Benoit's actions in the case as "unspeakable." He referred to the "detestable character of the procedures to which the appellant was subjected." He added the officer did not "act in good faith in the execution of his duties in laying the complaint against her."

Miss Lamb was arrested in Verdun Dec. 7, 1946 with three other members of the sect. Her three companions were distributing a pamphlet entitled Quebec's Burning Hate for God, Christ and Freedom. No copies of the pamphlet were found in Miss Lamb's possession.

After keeping Miss Lamb in custody during the weekend, Det. Benoit was quoted as advising her that she would be released on condition that she sign a release absolving police of all responsibility for her arrest. When she refused twice to agree to this, the seditious libel charge was laid against her.

HORSE, RIDER DIE

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (AP) — A frightened horse ran into a freight train Tuesday, and the horse and its 14-year-old rider were killed. The victim was Charles Wayne Roach. Another boy said Roach's horse seemed to become frightened and raced toward the crossing when a Missouri Pacific freight blocked it.

Hungarian Revolt Made Red Unity Stronger--Chou

PEIPING (Reuters) — Premier Chou En-lai said today "unity of the camp of socialism" was strengthened, not weakened, after garrian uprising and "facts had proved that international socialist unity based on proletarian internationalism and equality could not be destroyed by provocation."

Chou warned Red China's internal enemies that the Communist dictatorship would not be changed "and no effort to shake it will be tolerated."

ATTACKS U.S. COLONIALISM

He attacked the world-wide policies of the United States, saying that "the new colonialism of the United States will end up no better than the old colonialism."

Chou spoke of a "demand to get rid of U.S. control, adopt a policy of peace and neutrality and oppose aggressive military blocks which is mounting in practically all U.S.-controlled countries." He added:

"But it is possible for us to bring about further relaxation in the international situation and force the imperialist war bloc to accept the principle of peaceful coexistence provided we can unite with all possible forces internationally and persist in our struggle."

Chou said Soviet proposals on disarmament, the banning of nuclear weapons, the withdrawal of armed forces from foreign lands and guarantees for the sovereignty and independence of Middle East countries were important in helping ease tension.

SUPPORTS NORTH KOREA

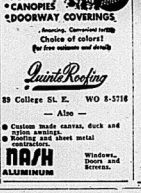
He also said China supports North Korea's call for an international conference to settle the Korean problem. He condemned the United Nations command's decision to send new types of weapons into South Korea.

"This shows that the U.S., treading in the footprints of the old colonialists, must depend ever more on bayonets to maintain its new colonial rule."

Reviewing his government's work domestically, Chou said the last year was one of "brilliant achievements." The value of farm output had increased despite some of the worst weather conditions in decades and was approaching the target set for 1957.

Plan No Votes On Sunday Sport, Cocktail Lounges

KINGSTON (CP)—Kingston city council Monday night decided that no action be taken to hold a plebiscite on Sunday sports in Kingston or sale of liquor in dining rooms and cocktail lounges.



The no-action recommendation came to council from the administration and legislation committee, which had taken this stand at its last meeting. The question arose some weeks ago when Ald. G. L. Webb asked the committee to consider the advisability of ordering plebiscites on liquor sale by the glass and Sunday sports.

Soroptimist Club Inducts 1957-8 Officers

Soroptimist International of Belleville reached another milestone in its history at a dinner in Latimer's Town Room.

Ten years ago the charter dinner of the club was held in Hotel Quinte with Mrs. Georgia Smith elected as first president.

This week Miss Helen Symons, president, and the officers were installed by Miss Myrtle Sargeant of Peterborough Soroptimists who sponsored the Belleville club at its inception.

Prior to the ceremony, dinner was served at tables, gay with club colors of blue and gold, each place was marked by boutonnieres of roses and favors.

Bowls of blue delphinium and gold gladioli enhanced the decorations.

Guests were present from Peterborough, Hamilton and Belleville.

Mayor Jane Forrester, honorary member of the club, graced the occasion by her presence and was introduced by Mrs. Laura McLauchlin. Mayor Forrester responded by congratulating the club on its achievements and brought greetings from the city of Belleville.

President Helen Symons graciously inducted the previous officers, welcoming the guests.

Following dinner, Miss Judith Mole entertained with a poem, "The Song My Paddle Sings" by a Canadian poetess, Pauline Johnson, and responded to a hearty encore with a delightful selection by Bliss Carman.

INSTALLATION CEREMONY

Then followed the dignified, impressive installation ceremony.

In addressing the incoming officers and members, Miss Sargeant reminded her listeners that they belong to a vast company of women in 29 countries of the world, speaking many languages, but with no barriers of race or creed, whose sole effort is to promote a larger fellowship in home, in society, in business and in country.

Following this ceremony Miss Sargeant also inducted Mrs. Eva Dunn into membership in the club.

President Helen thanked the members for the honor bestowed on her in electing her to a second term, stating that without the sympathy, co-operation and loyalty of each member, the task would be too great.

Officers of Soroptimist International of Belleville for the years 1957-58:

President, Miss Helen Symons; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Georgia Smith; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Muriel Yorke; recording secretary, Miss Dorothy Matheson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frances Bennett; treasurer, Mrs. A. Mazer; directors, Miss Margaret Fairbairn, Mrs. Bernice Grills, Mrs. Ena Corke and Mrs. Nora Earle.

OPEN HOME

BRANTFORD (CP) — Glenhyrst, once the home of the late E. L. Cockshutt, now developed as a "home for the arts," was officially opened Saturday by Dr. A. W. Trueman, director of the Canada Council. Mr. Cockshutt, Brantford farm implement manufacturer, left his 15 ¼-acre estate to the city in 1956.

MOUNTENAY — CARR

Peonies, iris, phlox, yellow and white 'mums mingled with ferns adorned the chancel rail of Bridge Street United Church, on Saturday, June 8th, at 2.00 p.m. for a lovely summer wedding, when Barbara Joan Carr, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Carr, became the bride of Carl Cecil Mountenay, of Trenton, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Mountenay. The Reverend Harry M. Davis, B.A., pastor of the church, officiated. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Helen Cook as she sang, "The Lord's Prayer", "Beloved, It is Morn", and, while signing the register, "Lead Us, Heavenly Father, Lead Us."

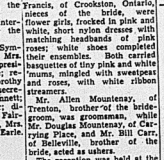
Given in marriage by her father, Mr. William Carr, the bride was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of white slipper satin, net and lace, fashioned with fitted bodice adorned with rhinestones, and complemented by a Chantilly lace jacket with lily-pointed sleeves and Peter Pan collar. The gracefully full skirt tapered toward the back. Her three-quarter length veil was held by a coronet of lace and pearl studded with seed pearls and boys, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red Better Time roses and white stephanotis.

Mrs. Ruth Easton, as matron of honor, was gowned in powder blue lace with three - quarter length sleeves and scalloped neckline. She wore a blue picture hat, white gloves and shoes, and carried a nosegay of pink Bountiful roses, tiny 'mums and sweetpeas, with long, white satin streamers.

Mrs. Harold Francis, of Crookston, Ontario, and Mrs. Douglas Brunet, of Belleville, sisters of the bride, as bridesmaids, were attired similarly to that of the matron of honor with matching picture hats, and similar nosegays.

The Misses Karen and Nancy Francis, of Crookston, Ontario, nieces of the bride, were flower girls, frocked in pink and white, short nylon dresses with matching headbands of pink roses; white shoes completed their ensembles. Both carried basquettes of tiny pink and white 'mums, mingled with sweetpeas and roses, with white ribbon streamers.

Mr. Allen Mountenay, of Trenton, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Douglas Mountenay, of Carrying Place, and Mr. Bill Carr, of Belleville, brother of the bride, acted as ushers.



The reception was held at the Army, Navy and Air Force Hall, Belleville, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who was attired in navy silk with white polka dots under-nay sheer in street length with white accessories, and corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore light and dark mauve silk, with navy duster, navy and mauve accessories, and corsage of yellow roses.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask and centred by a three-tier wedding cake in pink and white rose trim, and topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom. Pink and white cascading streamers formed a pretty canopy for the table.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and around Lake Ontario, the bride chose a powder blue dress of crystalette with matching duster, white accessories, and corsage of pink roses. The happy couple are residing in Belleville.

Guests were present from Ottawa, Frankford, Stirling, Batawa, Toronto, and Muscliow, Ontario.

Previous to her marriage the bride was the honored guest at miscellaneous showers given in her honor: one by Mrs. Mickie Garrow, of Maple Drive, Belleville; one by Mrs. Douglas Mountenay, of Carrying Place, Ontario, and one by Mrs. Ruth Easton, of Belleville.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

June 26, 1957 - God guide the British Commonwealth of Nations as representatives from around the world meet at the conference table in London, this day. Some there are who like to think of the Commonwealth association as a mystic thing in a world of ruthless reality. Then we know there are those who say the Commonwealth is dead and aren't ideals at their best only tenuous hopes. Indeed, it is said in some quarters that the Commonwealth is but a dream and everyone knows the stuff of which dreams are made. Also, the scoffer, the sceptic, the nationalist et al who write the Commonwealth off with a flourish of disdain, must receive acknowledgement that they exist. True, there are, those, who with reason, find it hard to agree that empire can be benevolent. And in this best of known worlds, we have to face the envy, the prejudice, the fear, the hate of those who for good or insufficient reason do not like the Commonwealth.

The wonder of it is there for all to see — it does exist; it has survived to this day; it does provide the closest thing to a family of nations our tired world has ever witnessed.

Some few weeks ago, T and T exchanged some correspondence with a Mr. Eastern Journal. T and T was on the offensive in defence of the hopes and aspirations of the Commonwealth. In an editorial about our letter, our friends used the heading "Silken Fetters" to describe the bonds of Commonwealth. Although the editorial was critical, it was friendly and the very real goodness signified was there, within this unique association, our common aspirations made it possible to argue for the good without recrimination. The native land of the editorial writer meets us today through his representative and ours at the round table in No. 10 Downing Street.

"Silken Fetters." The words convey a thought quite acceptable unintended. How much more desirable to be fettered by silk than brutalized by iron. The law of nature and the way of men that perfection should be our constant horizons of our endeavours, but the hope that justice will in the end break silken fetters quicker and easier than iron curtains seems a simple deduction.

T and T indulges itself not in vain eulogy. Rather, this 26th day of June we pray humbly for every Commonwealth leader in London to strengthen the silk that binds us; that a fibre strong enough eventually to destroy intolerance and injustice, and honest enough to create faith rather than suspicion. We pray that the ultimate reality of peace on earth goodwill toward men guides their deliberations. We pray that the possible weakening of Commonwealth does not happen and that Commonwealth by its very mysticism, its very idealism, its very aspirations, its silken fetters, will grow stronger for peace. We pray for the men who meet together and that they find the strength and which is necessary to sustain human frailty.

And too, in a column on the women's page it is fitting to pray for the gracious mother, woman and Queen who symbolizes the power of Commonwealth of a "Silken Fetter."

GOING SHOPPING

We hope that everyone who likes to preserve strawberries have been busy. The sudden heat combined with lots of moisture is giving us a short growing season. Fresh, home-grown strawberries will not be around too much longer Imported peaches, plums adn apricots have made their annual appearance. Pineapples are difficult to pack for long haulage during summer heat so do not be surprised if pineapple is not so plentiful for a spell.

Although we are always conscious of and grateful for all the blessings that modern scientific packing provides, we like to see our own fresh vegetables appear in the market place and on the shop shelves. We have noticed fresh peas, beets and new potatoes.

Have you noticed the color peppers in the market? It is there in all the profusion of summer flowers. Isn't it a pleasing thing?

T and T has nothing new to offer as far as meat is concerned and eggs remain pretty steady.

GOING SHOPPING

More about the status of women in the world from the C. of C. bulletin. A new Dutch law provides equal rights with regard to communal property and reserves for each, the rights concerning whatever property they held at the time of marriage.

Under Moslem law, spouses hold property separately, and each has the power to dispose of his or her assets. Furthermore, a Moslem woman is entitled to receive a sum of money or other property from her husband as agreed upon in the marriage settlement. This may be given on betrothal, or at any time during the marriage but if she has not received it, the woman must be given it on dissolution of the marriage. This is, in effect, therefore, a form of alimony. The fact that the money was to be paid directly to the woman rather than to her own family, was an innovation, startling and revolutionary, in the recognition that the precept gave to women when first set forth by Mohammed.

BEAUTY

HEALTH AND BEAUTY FOR YOUR BIRTHDAY

Blow out the candles and beauty wishes come true — If the birthday resolutions are kept.

Birthdays inevitably give one pause for reflection. Having just celebrated one, the thought occurred that birthdays can be wonderful "beginnings" . . . a new year in one's life . . . new vistas ahead . . . a new page to turn over . . . why wouldn't this be a good day for new resolutions? Especially where health and beauty are concerned. After all, health and beauty are of major importance to women and we do set aside other days for making resolutions. There are our New Year vows, of course, but, aside from them, most of us plan a "new look" for Spring; we make special Summer diet plans; we become tremendously enthusiastic about completely revamping our faces, figures and fashions for Fall and Winter. So why not take stock of ourselves on birthdays in order to determine just what progress we have made during the past year?

First, there is the all-important question of health. Have you enjoyed life or do your simplest duties seem a burden? If you are not feeling perfectly well, if you tire easily and have lost too much weight, don't take any chances. See a doctor at once. Even if you have none of these symptoms, it is wise to have a complete physical examination at least once a year.

Unless you are suffering from some organic disturbance and therefore require special diet or treatment, remember that good health is maintained by simple food, at least eight hours sleep at night, and plenty of fresh air, rest and recreation. As a fighter means of keeping fit, take a shower or tub bath daily and wash your hands with soap and water frequently, especially before touching food. If you work hard during the day, combine your hours of leisure with some form of restful recreation. If you have plenty of leisure time, cultivate enough interests so that you won't have the time to become moody.

What about your appearance? Does each new year reveal heavy imprints of the hand of time? If so, there is something wrong with either your health or your habits. Nowadays, good looks are within the reach of every woman even after she has lost the freshness of youth.

Cleanliness is the first rule of beauty, and many women who mourn the lost attractions of their debutante days would be astonished at the rejuvenating results they could obtain by sheer scrupulous ance with soap and warm water.

It doesn't matter if your clothes aren't imports from Paris. You can always appear well dressed if you wear simple and becoming lines, and if you are clean and dainty.

Your birthday stock-taking won't be complete unless you include a few rules for the improvement of your health and general appearance. But don't stop at rules. Add a final resolution to obey them until they become habits.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

NO "STANDING ON CEREMONY" . . . JUST KINDLY UNDERSTANDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter is soon to receive her engagement ring, and her engagement will be announced in our local newspapers. I need your advice, please, in a puzzling situation. The mother of our daughter's fiance is a widow, and lives quite far from where we live, and she has been very ill, not able to have guests or to travel, and I am quite sure, not able to get in touch with us. I know that, under usual circumstances, I should wait for her to make the move to welcome our daughter-in-law to her family, but because of her health, I think I could, and really should, make the first move. Don't you think so, Mrs. Beeckman?

They are a most conservative family, and of course I don't want to make a misstep. If you agree that I should make the first move, what do you suggest that move should be? If a letter, will you please suggest what I should write? — Puzzled Mother

Yes, I most heartily agree with you that under this circumstance of ill health, you should graciously and understandingly forego the usual formality, and make the first social move by writing a most cordial and warm-hearted letter to the mother of your daughter's fiance. Begin by telling her how deeply sorry you and your family are that she has been ill, and express your hope that she will soon be entirely recovered. Tell her how happy you and your husband are about the engagement, and (if this is true) how devoted you and your family are to her son, how much you all admire his fine character and attractive personality. Tell her if this also is true that her Bob has told you so much about his love for her, his dear and cherished companionship with her, and say how much you and your husband are looking forward to knowing her. Then it would be quite natural for you to chat with her about the wedding plans that may have already been made. Don't be at all held back by any thought of the family's conservatism. Write what your mother-heart tells you her mother-heart longs to hear.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU MAY BE ABLE TO WIN HIM YET

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

A few years ago my Daddy died and my mother remarried.

My own father used to be so kind to my brother and me, though he would never spoil us. But this new father has no interest in us. He gives all his attention to our small stepbrother. The only time he even talks to me or my brother is when he hollers at us or wants to punish us and believe me, this is the truth.

This stepfather of ours is so disagreeable and so unfair that he'll never care if we're even living. I try and I try to be nice, but, Lord help him, he won't pay the least bit of attention to us or even tell us hello or goodbye. Why, he wouldn't even say a word to us if he met us on the street.

Please help me! I'm 13 years old and my brother is 12.

—Miss M.M.B.

Dear Miss M.M.B.:

You sound to me like a very thoughtful little girl who, at 13, is perhaps somewhat more mature than many girls of your age.

For this reason, I believe you'll be able and willing to really go to work at the problem you have with your stepfather and see if it may not be possible to improve your relationship with him.

I certainly admit that, if everything is exactly as you have described it and you haven't exaggerated the least bit, then this stepfather of yours must be very hard to get along with.

But — and did this ever occur to you? — perhaps it's not always easy for a stepfather to get used to a new set of children, especially when they came to him as old as you and your brother are. He may feel that young folks who are well on their way into their teens might resent having a new father and so he doesn't quite know how to act toward them or to get really acquainted with them. I make this suggestion so that you might think about it and see if perhaps he might be having something of a hard time, too.

So start your Making-Friends-With-Father project by trying to think up thoughtful little things to do for him that would show you want to be friends, and by, too, thinking of things your brother might do in the same way. This may not be easy in the beginning, since your stepfather seems to ignore you so much, but keep it up as well as you can and see if it doesn't begin to break the ice after a time or two.

I suggest also that you have a little talk with your mother and ask her if she can help you and your brother in creating a happier relationship between you and your stepfather.

Be sure not to put things to her in a complaining way. Just say that you and your brother feel badly because your stepfather doesn't seem to feel like a real father towards you and you want to know what you can do to help bring this about. Ask if you and your brother are doing anything that disturbs and irritates him, and make it clear to your mother that you really want to do your part to make the home and everything in it happy.

I wish you would write me again later on and tell me if things have improved. I'm truly sorry that you should have such trouble so early in life, but, perhaps, if you put to work the intelligence I see in your letter, you may be surprised at the good results. And here's something to keep in mind: by learning, while you're young, how to tackle a hard problem directly and courageously, you will be laying the foundation for a happy and successful life.

Open Air Holiday Supper

By Mary Moore

"What makes me feel so good today? I stayed up and watched the late movie last night, too." It was Marianne's neighbor asking; she is a delightful extravert who thinks aloud. Well too.

I piped up: "You feel good because you worked in the garden all day yesterday." She chirped "I don't even ache."

Oh for more fresh air in our arteries! All summer we bottle up inside, cooking, eating, cleaning, dusting, washing as if the glorious sun weren't shining warm and bright outside. We should telescope all housework and live in the garden. Habit is a frightening thing.

Get out of doors on July 1st. Work outside, play outside, cook outside, eat outside, wash dishes outside. On July 2nd you too will say "What makes me feel so good?"

Let everyone share in the outing. Each member of the family has something at which he or she excels, so encourage them to do it. If yours is to be a cook-out picnic the youngest child can prepare the potatoes or corn for roasting in the embers.

TO BAKE POTATOES

Scrub well medium-sized potatoes and wrap in heavy aluminum foil. Place in glowing embers, turning over 3 times. Required roasting time is from 30 to 40 minutes.

TO ROAST CORN

Remove silk. Twist husks tightly around ears. Soak in water half hour. If roasting in glowing embers wrap in aluminum foil or wet newspapers. If roasting on grill, place ears above flame, turning occasionally to roast evenly.

Or let us suppose that yours is a porch or garden supper. I think a majority of the fresh air fiends will go for that at the drop of a bat. My friends Bruce, Roddy and David will be playing baseball just ahead of suppertime I know! Do you care to go to the trouble of making this:

FRIED CHICKEN LEGS

Provide at least one chicken leg (drumstick and thigh joined) for each person to be served with a few extras. These quantities are for 8 chicken legs. Wash and dry chicken legs. In a paper bag mix together — 1 cup flour, 2 teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon celery salt, 1 teaspoon paprika. Drop chicken legs in to flour them.

Have ready a deep heavy frying pan (electric is ideal) with ¼ inch hot fat which is half butter. Brown chicken legs on all sides. Add 2 tablespoons hot water, cover and cook over very low heat for 35 to 40 minutes, turning it twice during this period. During last 5 minutes remove lid to crisp skin. As you know the fat and crisp bits in the pan make a lovely gravy—using left-over flour in bag for thickening. Half and half cream and milk makes this delicious.

HAMBURGS-IN-THE-GARDEN

If you have a portable grill or barbecue of course you will grill the hamburgs outside. If not, underdo them on top of stove and carry to garden in hot, covered skillet, but be sure to stand on a board or it will ruin a patch in your lawn. Fill 3 small plastic bowls with sliced tomatoes, very thinly sliced mild onions and green relish for those who want all the trimmings. Split and butter warm buns and keep in covered dish. Invite everyone to make his own and provide a double supply of paper napkins that are large.

Finger salad food such as celery, carrots, radishes, cucumbers are ideal with this and try iced coffee for the adults, topped with instant coffee-flavored whipped cream. A posh top!

Sunday School Picnic

BRIDGE ST. UNITED S. S.

Bridge Street United Church was fortunate in the weather for its annual picnic last Saturday. It was held at Quin-mo-Lor, the United Church camp on Moira Lake. Sunny skies and warm water made swimming a delight for the younger picnickers and some of the older ones as well. Cooling breezes from the lake and shady trees combined to make the watching pleasant for those who didn't swim.

The program was highlighted as usual by a well-planned set of races for the youngsters. The following ones were lucky enough to bring home the ribbons.

15 yards boys and girls 5 and under: Lou Ann Stock, Kevin McCabe, David Randle;

Women's Institute

QUINTE W.I.

The June meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute convened at the home of the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, 2nd concession of Thurlow, with a large attendance of both members and visitors.

The meeting opened in the usual manner with the new president, Mrs. K. Vivian, extending a welcome to all. Roll call was, "bring your wedding picture or pay." There was a lovely display of beautiful brides of both long ago and recent years. Thank-you cards from sick, bereaved and shut-ins were read and business dispensed with. A committee was formed to make all arrangements for the 50th anniversary of the Quinte Women's Institute.

Mrs. J. Parrott took the program which began with Mrs. Mc. Weese giving the motto, "We Treasure the Past, We Face the Future." History of several farms in the community was given by several members, which was interesting. A song followed by all the grandmothers, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," a piano solo by Jane Thompson; current events were well given by Mrs. Lee.

Mrs. Parrott thanked everyone for helping with the program and reverted the meeting back to the president, whose report was laid over to the next meeting owing to the lateness of the afternoon.

After the meeting was closed, the hostess was thanked for opening her home and the lunch committee, Mrs. E. Jeffery, Mrs. F. Mitchell, Mrs. F. Lee and Mrs. Lutz.

British Women In High Brackets Have Big Busts

LONDON (AP)—British women in the higher income tax brackets tend to have the biggest busts.

This was reported Tuesday by the Board of Trade, a government department, after a six-year survey in which 200,000 women were actually measured.

The board made the survey to help the clothing business, and published its findings in a booklet.

Miss Average Britain was pictured as five-foot-five, weight 120 pounds and measurements of 37-27½-39.

But the survey estimated 1,800,000 women have 44-inch hips or larger, while 850,000 have 42-inch-plus busts and hips less than 44 inches.

The survey also concluded that despite the claims of the fashionable," women put on inches every year after passing 30.

'Liver Functions' Topic at Pr. Ed. Belleville Club

The June meeting of Prince Edward-Belleville Club, held at the Y.M.C.A. with president Mrs. L. Wannamaker presiding, was small in attendance owing to the illness of some and others whose husbands or other members of the family were in hospital.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Roluf read the minutes and Mrs. Pierson reported as treasurere; Mrs. McCoy reported for cards and flowers sent.

Mrs. A. Mastin thanked the club for cards and lovely gift she and Mr. Mastin received on their golden wedding anniversary.

Some business was deferred until the September meeting.

A fine program was presented by Mrs. Garbutt and her group with Mrs. Roluf presiding.

A sing-song with Mrs. K. Wensley at the piano and several selections chosen, closed with "The Old Rugged Cross."

Mrs. Garbutt read a paper entitled "We Never Grow Old," by Mrs. Shelly Anderson, who for some time has been a shut-in.

Mrs. Roluf gave an instructive talk on "The Liver and Its Functional Importance."

Several questions were answered by Mrs. Roluf.

The meeting closed followed by a social half hour. Many wishes for a "Happy Holiday" were exchanged.

The box bag is attache-case style in pale grey calf. Milady's belt is cowhide in a combination of spring colors.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY Mrs. Jean Baker (MOTHER OF 3)

They say that new daddies have more than their share of "it-just-so-happens" baby photographs than anyone. Well, there's nothing like parenthood to bring out the amateur photographer. A few helps for would-be shutter-bugs:

- Best indoor pix are taken by photoflash. This way you can shoot any time—any place.
- Outdoor pix should be taken with the sun behind baby to eliminate squints.
- A low camera position will catch more baby, less background. Looking down on baby tends to minimize him.

Meal planning made easy for summertime eating. It's easy because Gerber offers over 26 good-tasting Junior Foods so you can vary toddler's menus to your heart's content and baby's delight. All are famous for appealing colors, true flavors and a tender evenly mixed texture that's just right for tots who can chew. 8 Fruits, 4 Vegetables, 3 Soups & Dinners, 3 Meats, 3 Desserts.

Introductory idea. If your baby is just starting on Junior Foods and seems a bit bewildered, mix small amounts with the Strained Food he's been having. As he gets used to the difference in texture, increase the amount of Junior Food.

Cheer-up division. Two easy cures for after-nap fussiness: (1) Once over baby's face lightly with a cool, moist cloth. (2) A tasty afternoon snack, all ready to be smacked over.

* * *

Cheer-up division, part two. A teething baby is apt to fuss more, but here's a wholesome relief measure that will help baby in a hurry: Gerber Teething Biscuits are smooth - surfaced to soothe tender gums . . . extra-hard to give baby the biting satisfaction he wants & needs. The special tapered shape makes them easy to grasp and easy to maneuver. Gerber Teething Biscuits are individually wrapped in cellophane for sanitary carrying purposes. The program consisted of a recitation by Miss Helen Sulman; tap dance "Victory March" by Patsy Scrymgeour; xylophone solo, "Eyes Front" and "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise" by Helen Grant; piano solo, "Spanish Fiesta" by Noreen Bartlett; solo, "Lucky Old Sun," by Bob Burke; tap dance, "Lady of Spain" and "Honey," by Dianne McCallum and Jackie Cook; step dance by Phil Vandussen; xylophone solo, "Humpty Dumpty" and "Mother Maycheee" by Helen Grant; solo, "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You" by Bob Burke.

The program ended with community singing.

Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Evelyn Warham accompanied the artists.

After the entertainment, which was much enjoyed, co-worker Peggy Mintz presented a cheque to Mrs. Rollins to be used for the entertainment of the White Cane Club. Mrs. Rollins thanked the Friendship members for their generosity.

Sr. Reg. Nellie Scrymgeour thanked the White Cane Club for turning out in such large numbers to enjoy the evening.

Mr. Ted Rowe gave a thank-you speech to the Moose ladies. Mrs. Edith Burrows also thanked the Moose ladies for gifts and cards she received while she was ill in the hospital.

L.B. 'Mike' Pearson May Become Next Liberal Leader

OTTAWA (CP) — Some Liberal supporters suggest that L. B. (Mike) Pearson, former external affairs minister, has a good chance of becoming the next leader of the Liberal party.

Others suggest there would be at least a three-way battle in any new leadership convention with the 60-year-old diplomatic expert getting strong opposition from Paul Martin, former health minister, and James Sinclair, former fisheries minister.

But party officials say all this is matter of speculation for the future. There is no talk of holding any new leadership convention immediately. Rt. Hon. Louis St-Laurent, defeated in the June 10 election, plans to continue as Opposition leader in the Commons.

For almost a year now there has been speculation that Mr. Pearson would become the next leader though there was some belief that former finance minister Harris would give him competition.

MAY BOW OUT

However, the 59-year-old Mr. Harris was defeated in Grey-Bruce Ont., June 10 and it was understood he plans to bow out of politics entirely, devoting his time to a law practice.

That normally would have given Mr. Pearson, member for Algoma East since 1948, a clear field. But the June 10 vote showed that the Liberals' organization had some structural weaknesses requiring a [illegible] rebuilding by an expert political mason.

[illegible] crats consider that while Mr. Pearson has accumulated vast experience in world politics, he is rather a novice in domestic politics. But on the other hand he is known to be extremely popular among some Liberal groups and that may carry weight on the convention floor.

ANCIENT JAPAN

Legend says that the ancient Empire of Japan was founded in 6?? BC by Emperor Jimmu Tenno, [illegible] spent nearly all the Second World War at sea.

Miss Helena Johnson, Mrs. Mabel McCann, Mac and Carol, of Belleville, were callers in town, on Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Stobbart Jr., Brenda and Janie, of Madoc, were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCann, on Sunday evening.

ADMIRAL DIES

LONDON (Reuters) — Admiral Sir Louis Henry Keppel Hamilton, first naval member of the chief of naval staff of the Commonwealth naval board from 1945 to 1948, died Sunday at 67. With the exception of a brief appointment as flag officer commanding Malta in 1943,

MADOC

Thomas Bridges Honored by Eggleton S.S.

MADOC JCT. — A pleasant time was spent Friday evening at Eggleton United Church when some 50 members and those interested in Eggleton Sunday School, gathered for a social get-together as the day schools would be closing soon and the senior members of the Sunday school would be taking positions at various places for the summer months.

The superintendent, Mrs. Warren Harlow, presided over the following program: Opening hymn with Miss Joanne Reide, pianist. Mr. Thomas Bridges read a selected portion of Scripture and offered prayers. Members of Miss Thelma Prest's and Miss Joanne Reide's Sunday school classes sang "Let the Sunshine In." Misses Beverley Stapley and Sharon Reide sang "Mocking Bird Hill" and as an encore "The Bible Tells Me So." Mrs. Clarence Fitchett conducted a Bible contest.

Members of Mrs. Maurice Clancy's girls' Sunday school class sang two hymns. Two contests conducted by Mrs. B. Stapley were enjoyed: (1) a musical contest, "Name the Song"; (2) "Name the Opposites."

Mrs. Harlow then asked Mr. Thomas Bridges to take a chair at the front and also called on Mrs. Clancy and Miss Thelma Prest to come forward. Mrs. Clancy read an address while Miss Prest, on behalf of Eggleton Sunday school presented Thomas with a gift. Miss Joanne Reide on behalf of the Young People's Society, presented him with a leather billfold.

Although taken completely by surprise Thomas expressed his thanks to one and all for the gifts.

At this time the minister, Mr. Dyson was called on. Mr. Dyson spoke of the joy it gave him to see a young man of the community here choosing for his life profession the Christian ministry.

Thomas has completed Grade XIII at Stirling high school and plans to attend university this fall.

After the closing hymn, Mr. Dyson pronounced the benediction.

Two little girls, Lois Danford and Diane Prest, presented Mrs. Dyson and Mrs. Harlow each with a basket of lovely flowers.

Allen Reide favored with several numbers on his guitar, while the ladies were cutting the cakes, one of which had been made and decorated especially for Thomas.

A social time was enjoyed around the camp fire on the lawn, where refreshments of buns, weiners, cokes, sandwiches and orangeade were served.

IT'S NOTHING, REALLY!

Friends, Before Trading Wives, Exchange Gunshots, Two Killed

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP)—A truck driver and a photographer who had been close friends before they traded wives exchanged gunshots Tuesday in a duel that killed the photographer's wife and her son.

The truck driver, Thomas Whitaker, 36, was enraged over too few chances to visit the children of his first marriage.

Killed in the gun battle in the home of photographer Stewart Martin, 49, were Whitaker's former wife, Mrs. Alma Whitaker Martin, 39, and their son, Jack Whitaker, 10.

Martin himself was shot in the left leg, and his stepdaughter, Regina Louanne Whitaker, 9, was wounded critically.

Martin said Whitaker had made threats before he broke into the Martin home about 2 a.m., carrying a 16-gauge double-barrel shotgun.

Martin, who grabbed a .38-calibre pistol, grappled and exchanged shots with Whitaker and suffered his leg wound.

The two couples had been close friends in a Terre Haute dancing club until they decided on the big trading. Both couples were divorced last October. Whitaker married the first Mrs. Martin in December and Martin married the shooting victim in April.

SHANNONVILLE

Decoration Day Service Taken by United Pastor

SHANNONVILLE — On Sunday afternoon at the beautiful, well-shaded and well-kept Riverview Cemetery, Shannonville, friends and relatives of loved ones buried there, gathered for the annual Decoration Day service, conducted by the Rev. T. Hogerwaard, United Church minister, whose address was found most interesting.

The hymns sung by the audience were accompanied by two members of Belleville Salvation Army band, who also played a lovely duet.

The Rev. E. Swayne of Napanee, closed the service with prayer.

The donations received by the treasurer and collection will be used for caretaking and other expenses for the upkeep of the cemetery.

Thanks are due to the president, Mr. William Blatherwick, and other members of the cemetery board, and all those who help and show such a kind interest in this worthy cause.

Credit is also due the caretaker for the fine condition in which the cemetery is kept.

Party Workers on Both Sides Admit Doctoring Voters' Lists in Recent Election

TORONTO (CP)—Two Liberal party workers in the recent federal election campaign have admitted that they forged voters' signatures while two Progressive Conservative party workers have been rebuked for qualifying the affidavit statement they signed.

The admissions Tuesday were at a hearing into charges of vote-padding in the federal riding of Toronto St. Paul's. The inquiry, conducted by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, was ordered after Progressive Conservative candidate Roland Michener, later elected, and other candidates, said there were fictitious names on voters' lists.

At Tuesday's hearing Mrs. Catherine Vollum, a Liberal party worker, said she signed a number of copies of Form 18 at the request of Miss Nora Consitt, identifier of voters, on forms with forged signatures.

Mrs. Vollum said she had not read the forms nor was she remunerated for her signature. She said: "I altered my handwriting sometimes. No one told me to alter it but Miss Consitt told me not to be too particular when I signed someone's name."

UNABLE TO IDENTIFY

Miss Consacher testified that she was unable to identify the writing and signing on a number of forms but said that in some cases she stamped the riding name and date on some of them.

When asked "Who did you get to fill in the signatures of the applicants?" by inquiry counsel J. W. Swackhamer, she replied "Any body."

Thomas Middleton, who said he was hired as a cleaner and messenger for $10 a week and food, said he did not recall anyone telling him how to sign the forms but "if I saw a bunch needing signing I just signed them."

Asked why his name was on the preliminary list and then on again "two more times," he said, "We were fighting an election to get a man elected."

Middleton said he "didn't even try" to vote after going to a polling station and egging a red cross opposite his name. He said he did not think Liberal candidate James H. Rooney knew of his false signatures.

ADDS 90 NAMES

Another Liberal party worker, Joseph Piccinini, said he signed affidavits that added 90 fictitious persons to the list without question because he was told it was standard procedure.

He said he did not know the names were fictitious but did not read the affidavits he signed.

A Progressive Conservative worker, Allan F. Lawrence, said he inserted the words "to the best of my knowledge" on the affidavits he signed because he thought the Canadian Election Act was inadequate.

He admitted the act called for him to swear to a fact but said that a great number of persons could not have been able to swear if he had signed only for persons he knew.

Mr. Justice McRuer said that by doing this, he and law student James Langford precluded any possibility of proceedings for perjury which was not the intention of the form. He said lawyers should know better than to do this.

Cabinet Busy On Schedule To Keep Promises

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative cabinet is drawing up a schedule to determine which of its election promises to parliament, first, cabinet members indicated Tuesday.

The party election platform strongly advocated encouragement to private enterprise and competition in various fields. One of the first effects in two fields over which the government has close jurisdiction will be transport and television broadcasting.

Conservative spokesmen in the past have been strongly critical of the monopoly held by the Crown-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines on domestic cross-country routes, and of the so-called "single station" policy of allowing only one television broadcaster in each area. CBC television stations have monopolies in six Canadian centres, private broadcasters in more than 30 others.

One government source said a widening of air competition is likely, but only after a survey of whether it would be economically feasible.

On broadcasting, the new government has before it the recommendation of the Fowler royal commission, appointed by the Liberal government, proposing establishment of a "board of broadcast governors" to take over the CBC's regulatory functions in radio and TV broadcasting.

The commission also looked toward the eventual abandonment of the single-station policy on television.

KILLED BY HEARSE

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters) — John Joyce, 15-year-old telegram delivery boy, was killed Tuesday when his motorcycle collided with an empty hearse, throwing him through the side window of the hearse and out the rear window.

Question Ruling Daley Need Not Define Policies

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's select committee on labor is scheduled to vote today on a motion which would set aside three rulings of the chairman that Labor Minister Daley does not have to answer questions on government policy.

Chairman James A. Maloney made the rulings Tuesday during the second day of sittings to review the Ontario Labor Relations Act and recommend changes to the legislature and the government.

He said Mr. Daley could not be asked to explain government thinking on the act, nor could he be questioned on his own opinions.

CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald said Mr. Maloney was ruling anything controversial out of order, while labor relations matters pass unnoticed. He seconded a motion by Robert Mackaley (PC—Riverdale) that the chairman's ruling on questions to Mr. Daley be set aside.

The quarrel broke out a head when Mr. MacDonald wanted to know whether Mr. Daley thought union checkoff was a proper subject for legislation. Mr. Daley replied that checkoff was something for the bargaining table.

RULES OUT OF ORDER

Mr. MacDonald persisted, and was ruled out of order.

"If it is out of order to ask a policy question, then what is the function of this committee," he asked. "Are you going to turn this into a partyroot effort?"

"The only person who will turn this into a pantywaist effort is yourself, because that was the way inclined," replied Mr. Maloney.

The chairman made similar rulings earlier during questioning on conciliation and the advisability of municipalities withdrawing their employees from the provisions of the Labor Relations Act.

At that time, Mr. MacDonald said: "You're going to frustrate the whole purpose of this committee."

Will Ruled Invalid

TORONTO (CP) — A farmer's will prohibiting his wife from remarrying if she wanted to collect the $30,000 residue of his estate was ruled invalid Tuesday by Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow.

David John White, Brighton Township fruit grower who died last August, provided in his homemade will that his wife, Nettie Maud, was not to get the residue unless "she remains single absolutely, not get married."

Mr. Justice Barlow was asked by trustees of the estate to rule on the validity of the provision.

How Countries Line up at Parley

LONDON (CP)—The eighth post-war conference of Commonwealth prime ministers opens today. Country by country, here's how it may look:

Canada—With a new prime minister, John Diefenbaker, heading a minority Progressive Conservative government, the senior Dominion is attracting attention. Diefenbaker has press for expanded trade and a Commonwealth economic conference, preferably in Ottawa. Diefenbaker's arrival in London two weeks after the June 10 election probably makes him the newest prime minister to attend a Commonwealth "summit" meeting.

Ghana—The cocoa country on the west coast of Africa, which attained independence last March, becomes the first spokesman of an African approach to world affairs to sit around the Commonwealth conference table. Dr. Kwame Nkrumah, Ghana's 49 - year - old premier, has pressed for more conference cap in hand. She has already drawn heavily on the sterling-area dollar however, and may be under criticism. Prime Minister Nkrumah, whose reputation he said to have slipped recently, probably also will bring up the question of Commonwealth attitudes to the recognition of Communist China, plus a new British initiative to outlaw nuclear weapon tests and explain why India strongly opposed Britain's action in Suez last November.

Pakistan—Prime Minister Suhrawardy has indicated he will seek Commonwealth support to try to settle's stand on Kashmir, most inflamed issue in India-Pakistan relations.

Britain—As chairman of the conference, Prime Minister Macmillan will be still any last doubts about Britain's action in Suez, explain her interest in the European free trade area, outline what she deems to be the new power situation in the Middle East, and give details of new defence arrangements in the Singapore on other Commonwealth countries.

Australia and New Zealand—Both disturbed about trade questions, they will seek further assurances that the European free trade plan will not affect their preferences. A 17-man New Zealand delegation which recently spent some weeks in Britain negotiating on agricultural contracts went home convinced it got the best of the bargain.

South Africa—With Foreign Minister Eric Louw representing Prime Minister Johannes Strijdom, South Africa is adopting a passive attitude, waiting to see "what comes up."

Ceylon—Expected to support India on foreign policy questions, Ceylon is distracted by internal troubles which have forced Premier Solomon Bandaranaike to remain at home. The conflict is between the Singhalese majority and the Tamil - speaking minority, which fears its language and customs are in jeopardy. Ceylon will be represented by Justice Minister M. W. de Silva.

The 10th country, the Central African Federation, has been given special permission to sit in. Sir Roy Welensky, its premier, says the federation expects to receive full independence within the Commonwealth in 1960.

Labor Force Is Increasing

MONTREAL (CP)—The growth of Canada's labor force appears to be outstripping the demand for workers, the Bank of Montreal says.

In its monthly business review, the bank says more people will be at work in Canada during the year to be higher.

But unemployment also is expected to be higher.

"The seasonal dip in employment that takes place during the winter months in Canada appears to have been somewhat more pronounced this year than last," the review says, "and indications are that the early spring pick-up was somewhat less vigorous."

Allister Grosart Mainspring Of Diefenbaker's Campaign

OTTAWA (CP)—The men who are the closest advisers of John Diefenbaker are a blend of youth and age and of experience in many fields of politics and business.

Nobody dictates policy to Canada's new Progressive Conservative prime minister; he is as likely to ask for advice from an elevator operator as from an economic expert, and then make his own decision. But he has around him a group of key persons who undoubtedly swing an influence in his political thinking.

Apart from top cabinet members who have worked intimately with the new government chief for years, the major adviser appears to be Allister Grosart, 50-year-old Toronto public relations man who did most of the down-to-earth thinking in the record-making Mr. Diefenbaker's campaigns for the Conservative leadership and for the election.

TO LEAVE AGENCY

Mr. Grosart, a native of Dublin who has worked on several Canadian newspapers and in radio, did his job so adroitly that at the prime minister's request he is selling out his substantial interest in McKim's advertising agency to move to Ottawa as a permanent Diefenbaker lieutenant.

He was vice-president of McKim's in charge of public relations when Mr. Diefenbaker called on him to become his campaign public relations man. Just how he will operate here is uncertain, but he could become national director of the party or could move into Parliament Hill's East Block with Mr. Diefenbaker in some advisory capacity.

Mr. Grosart is a dyed-in-the-wool Conservative. He is president of the constituency association for Ontario riding, which returned new Labor Minister Michael Starr. Mr. Grosart's wife did Mr. Starr's publicity campaign.

Mr. Grosart also handled public relations for Hon. George Drew in his successful 1948 national leadership campaign. He was in charge of public relations for Premier Frost of Ontario in his last two provincial elections.

HAD SNAPPY SLOGANS

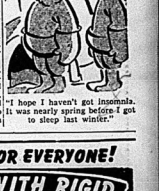
Associates say Mr. Grosart was mainly responsible for thinking up some of the policies which they declare as largely helpful in bringing the Conservatives home with the largest group in the Commons.

Apart from the coining of snappy slogans, this included a "decentralization" program that gave the party's provincial organizations a larger share of planning and seemingly brought more local enthusiasm into the fight on the hustings.

Among the parliamentarians who obtained cabinet posts last week, the closest to Mr. Diefenbaker is believed to be Defence Minister Pearkes.

In addition to Mr. Grosart, Mr. Diefenbaker has had some patient advisers and workers among other public relations men.

George Johnston of Toronto, senior member of a public relations consultant firm and an old friend of the new prime minister, has been close to him during and since the election campaign. So has Dalton Camp, an executive in a Toronto advertising firm and former party director of public relations.



There are many others. Among those around Ontario from whom Mr. Diefenbaker has been getting strong help and advice have been A. D. MacKenzie of Toronto, chairman of the Ontario party association, close friend of Premier Frost and one of the most powerful figures in the party; Harry Willis of Toronto, Ontario representative of the Liberal party, and William Brunt of Hanover, Ont., an old and close friend of Mr. Diefenbaker and a mainspring in his 1948 leadership drive.

Eisenhower's Proposal Meets Cold Reception

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — President Eisenhower got one of the coldest receptions of his career Monday night when he proposed that state governors work with him to turn back to the states some of the programs the federal government is financing.

In an address to the annual governors' conference, Eisenhower held out the prospect of a federal tax reduction if some of the functions, and their fields of taxation, could be turned back to state control.

Republican Governors gave qualified endorsement to his proposal, but Democratic governors were almost uniformly critical. Their comments were keyed by the observation of Governor Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota that "this is just another great big dreambook."

Eisenhower put plenty of enthusiasm into an appeal to reverse what he said was a trend toward centralization of government, and to re-establish states' rights.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—About 500,000 acres of forest land in the interior of Alaska is in flames, the district fire dispatcher here said Tuesday.

Banks May Not Win Citizenship

MONTREAL (CP)—The Herald says Hal C. Banks, American-born boss of the Seafarers' International Union (CLC) in Canada, has applied for Canadian citizenship but may have trouble getting it because of the change in government at Ottawa.

Mr. Banks, 47, has dominated the Canadian shipping labor scene since 1949 when he helped smash the Communist-led Canadian Seamen's Union and switch Canadian seepsea and lake seamen into the SIU.

The Herald says Mr. Banks' application for permanent residence in Canada was passed by the Liberal government on the grounds that his anti-Red activities in the SIU had been a valuable service to Canada.

His deportation was vigorously urged by a number of Progressive Conservatives, including former leader George Drew; Ellen Fairclough, now state secretary; and William Hamilton, now postmaster-general.

The Herald says a Conservative cabinet minister commented privately Monday night that "it would take a miracle" for Mr. Banks citizenship to go through. Mr. Banks was not available for comment.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Future Stars

By MICKEY McCONNELL
United Latigh Staff Writer

The co-operation of base-runners, batters and coaches is essential to the success of a team, and you must learn how to get information from your coaches and teammates and how to use it.

Batters look to the third-base coach for signals, the coach receiving them from the manager and relaying them to the hitter. However, the first-base coach must get the signals, too, and when there is a runner at first-base he must let the runner know what to expect.

If you are the batter, don't look away the moment you get the signal, but continue to watch the coach until he flashes several "take signs" before taking your eyes off him. Otherwise, the opposing team may pick up the signal.

When you are called upon to coach, you must know the playing rules and the game situation and keep your players informed as to such things as the number of outs, the ball and strike count, and the position of the opposing players and what might happen if the ball is hit to a particular place under these circumstances.

If you have studied the opposing team during its fielding practice you will know which players possess strong, average or weak arms. Then you can advise a runner to be careful of Jones' arm in center field, but to take a chance on Brown's arm in left field.

Royals Get New Manager, Name Unknown

BROOKLYN (AP) — General manager E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi of the Brooklyn Dodgers said Tuesday Montreal Royals of the International League would have a new manager within three or four days but added he had no idea who he would be.

Bavasi termed a report that Goldie Holt, now manager of the Macon, Ga., team in the Sally League, would soon be at the helm of the Royals as "not only erroneous but premature."

Broken down, Bavasi's quotes can be interpreted that Holt will not manage the Montreal club this year but probably next year.

The Montreal club currently is being managed by Al Ronning, the Royals' catcher. Greg Mulleavy, who began the season at the helm, resigned June 14 because of the poor showing of the team. He was temporarily replaced by Al Campanis, field director of the farm club of the parent Dodgers. Ronning took over several days ago.

Bassey Eyes American Rings

PARIS (AP) — Hogan Bassey flew back to England with his new world featherweight boxing championship Tuesday, with plans for a long vacation and hopes for a trip to the United States in the fall.

Bassey disposed of Cherif Hamia a native of Algeria, with a 10th-round knockout Monday night.

Manager George Biddles outlined the plans for the future. He said "we want to go to the United States We can fight there the ways we like to fight, and we've got some good offers."

Biddles made it clear that he wants to arrange some overweight battles for Bassey before putting the championship on the line. He said he thought it should be possible to arrange a series of bouts in New York, California or Miami on the basis of offers already received.

FINE LIBRARY

Mickey Heads Research Fund

NEW YORK (AP)—The establishment of the Mickey Mantle Fund for research in Hodgkins disease, with the star of the New York Yankees as chairman, was announced Tuesday.

At a special press luncheon, Dr. Antonio Rottino, director of the Hodgkins disease research, explained the purpose of the foundation would be aimed towards discovering an ultimate cure for the malady.

All funds will be derived through donations with every dollar to be used for research.

Mantle's interest in this foundation stems from the fact that his father was fatally stricken by the disease in 1951.

Stewart Will Play for Larks, Or Stay Out

MONTREAL (CP)—Ron Stewart star halfback with Queen's University Golden Gaels last season, will either play for Montreal Alouettes or "stay out of football." Leo Dandurand, president of the Big Four team, said Tuesday.

Dandurand squelched reports that Stewart has been put on the trading block. It had been rumored he would be traded to Toronto Argonauts.

"We aren't interested in trading him to Argos . . . or to any other Canadian team," Dandurand said. "He has been instructed to report next Wednesday for the first drill of the regular candidate squad. Either he joins us or he stays out of football."

Dandurand said he had spoken with Stewart by telephone twice recently but nothing definite came of the talks.

His three wins boosted his total to 46 victories at the current summer meeting. His winning percentage for the season is the highest of any jockey in North America.

Modern Hurlers Better Than Those of Old

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pee Wee Reese took a look back at 18 seasons and allowed that present-day pitching is better than in the old days.

Reese, at 38 the oldest regular in National League player, said the pitchers are throwing more breaking stuff when they're behind on the ball and strike count than when he broke in back in 1940.

"You get the fast ball crippleless and less," he said.,

"And another thing," Reese added "more pitchers are using a trick pitch, the extra delivery like the shuckler and the screwball. The shuker has become a standard fourth pitch."

The Brooklyn captain steered clear of a comparison of players in general but he did say:

"I believe the ball hasn't changed but by using lighter bats, which, we can whip around faster, all of us hit more home runs than we used to, even little guys like me. And the better gloves—bigger and more efficient models—have led, I feel, to surer fielding than when I was new in the league."

Durelle Eighth Behind Moore

NEW YORK (CP)—Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., today ranked as the No. 8 challenger for Archie Moore's light-heavyweight title in Ring magazine's new list of boxing ratings.

Durelle, the only Canadian in the rankings, fought a draw June 14 with Tony Anthony of New York, ranked as the No. 2 challenger behind Harold Johnson of Philadelphia.

Hogan (Kid) Bassey, the newly crowned featherweight champion and the first Nigerian to hold a world boxing title, was named Ring magazine's "fighter of the month."

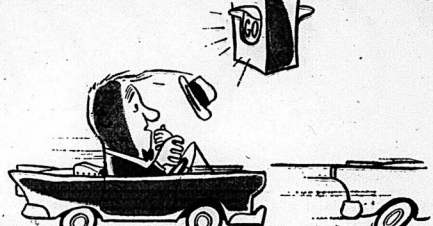
Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved, with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.



And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as: "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of them 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Switch to Shell Premium with TCP* and restore lost power while you drive!

How can a gasoline bring back power your engine has lost? Only by overcoming the cause! You see, most engines lose power as a result of certain deposits which form on spark plugs and in combustion chambers. In fact, engineers agree that these deposits are the major cause of power loss in modern high compression engines. (Even a new engine can lose power within 3,000 miles). But TCP in Shell Premium Gasoline neutralizes these deposits while you drive—brings back the power your engine has lost.

Claire Bloom, English Beauty, Loves Singing of Elvis Presley

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It's hard to imagine, but Claire Bloom, English beauty of Romeo and Juliet and Chekov classics, is a fan of Elvis Presley.

"I love his singing; he has real rhythm," enthused the darkhaired actress. Since she was working at MGM in The Brothers Karamazov while he was in Jailhouse Rock, a meeting was arranged.

The meeting was a classic in itself. Elvis came forward eagerly, grasped Miss Bloom's hand in both of his and murmured, "Hello, honey, how did we get you?"

"I'm afraid I was so taken aback, she blurted, "Oh, much older than you."

"Why, honey, you don't look much older than a teen-ager." He paused a moment and added: "But then, you never can tell. Some of the crew on this picture look like young men, but they're 70 and 80 years old."

"That settled it!" Miss Bloom laughed as she told the story later. Her status as a Presley fan was shaken somewhat, but she confessed she still likes him—on records. And she added that she is 3½ years older than his 22.

The Brothers etc. is her first film for a major Hollywood studio but not her first in Hollywood. She made her debut here a few years ago as Charlie Chaplin's leading lady in his last Hollywood film, Limelight.

"A beautiful picture," she commented. And she was such a delight to work with him. The picture was a big success in England and all over Europe, though he wouldn't show it here."

Now she's back to play the fiancee of Yul Brynner. She detroys him in The Brothers etc. after she is spurned for Grushenka (Marie Schell).

Her first big break was playing Phelia in a Stratford-at-Avon production of Hamlet. She became one of England's finest young actresses, performing in many classics for the old Vic Company. She starred with the old Vic in New York last season. Her big test exposure before American audiences was repeating her Romeo and Juliet performance on

END SITDOWN STRIKE

TOKYO (AP) — Nearly 300 wet and weary leftist students ended a four-day sitdown strike outside police headquarters Monday night. It grew out of a march on the American Embassy last week. They rain - soaked, unshaven students rolled up their blankets and quit the headquarters sidewalk after police threatened to move them with force. They were seeking the release of five leaders arrested during futile attempts to approach the embassy for a demonstration last Friday.

Two Linemen Killed

TORONTO (CP) — Two CNR linemen were killed Tuesday when their gasoline-powered work car was struck from behind by a speeding freight train in suburban Scarborough.

Dead are J. R. LaChance of Toronto and Arrigo Laghi of Mimico, both in their 30s.

Police said parts of the work car were carried 1½ miles on the front of the train.

PURGE CZECH REDS

PRAGUE (Reuters) — A purge in the ranks of the Communist party, aimed at "revisionists" and "liberals," is reported under way in Czechoslovakia. Informed quarters say the purge is being directed against Communists held to be responsible for shortcomings among the Czechoslovak intelligentsia, mainly artists and writers, accused of "wavering" in their loyalty to the party line.

'Mystery' Series Glutting Overcrowded TV Market

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Another "mystery" series would seem to be glutting an overcrowded market on summer television.

Nevertheless, George Sanders has begun bringing us a new half-hour series via NBC-TV these Saturday evenings. His chortling, pear-shaped tones and cynically raised brows are ideally suited to discussion of all forms of mayhem. If his story material develops, this could be an entertaining series.

The first was about a virtuous fellow whose villainous wife trapped him in an elevator. He was such a nice guy that there was no question but what he'd escape — and so there was little suspense. Virtue triumphed, of course, and the cops nabbed the villainous lady. If villainy goes unpunished some day on one of these "suspense" programs, that series will have this viewer watching submissively for the duration of its run.

Speaking of a glutted market, another quiz program has returned. It is Dollar a Second, which reappeared on NBC-TV Saturday. This program has as many gimmicks as an atomic bomb. It tries so hard to be funny that it's exhausting. If your idea of an entertaining program is to see contestants dressed up in absurd costumes and required to pay inane penalties for wrong answers to obvious questions, then this is just the show for you.

Jimmy Dean, who has acquired quite a following on his country music morning program, has entered night - time television—for the summer, at least, on CBS-TV Saturdays.

Either you like country music or you don't. If you like it, you presumably can tell the better from the worse. Dean and his outfit sound better to me than many I've heard. It's a fast-paced program, neatly put together.

Another "situation" comedy is now with us: Date With the Angels on ABC-TV Fridays.

Copying the formula of I Love Lucy, it concerns the life of a young married couple. It is badly marred by the loudest canned laughter heard in some time at situations of remarkably puerile humor.

Win Belvedere Trophy at Country Club

New winners of the Belvedere Trophy, emblematic of championship in two-ball mixed foursome play, were crowned at the Bay of Quinte Country Club recently.

The 1957 trophy holders are Mrs. Fred Carscallen and Roy Jeffrey, who carded a low net of 69.

The runners-up were Mrs. Clarke James and Steve Bowerman with a 70 while in third spot Mrs. Jack Diamond and Ray McCoy with a 73. Mrs. Alley Stuart and Gus Jonason finished fourth with a 76.

A good field entered the trophy play and some excellent play was noted before the issue was decided.

Several matches in the men's club championship have been closed than a next breath with three of the sets going extra holes.

Battling all the way to the wire were Peter Jones and Art Bridge with Jones taking the match at the 19th hole. Also going an extra hole were Mac White and Ron Pryke with the latter taking the honors.

Another exciting two-some was that between Val Smith and Mike Acquafredda, with Val taking the extra hole for the victory.

Latchford Has No-Hitter in Bantam Win

Billy Latchford joined the pitchers' hall of fame last night as he hurled a no-hitter for the Y's Men bantams in defeating CNRAA 9-2.

Latchford tossed his no-hitter a seven inning contest, striking out seven and walking eight, to account for the two CNRAA runs.

This was the second no-hit game in the Belleville Minor baseball association this week, the other in the peewee division.

The Y's Men gave Latchford three runs to work on in the hurler went on from there. The losers plated their markers in the second and sixth while four in the fifth netted the Y's Men of the victory.

Lewis and Annis sparked the winners at bat with two hits each. Latchford helped his own cause with one safety while the others went to Lessels, Weston and Spafford.

Thompson rolled the route in defeat, tagged for eight hits, He whiffed six while walking three.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

The Farmer will be in the Memorial Arena drill Friday night . . . and bright-like-morrow, he'll play derrick the Erich with one Fritz of that name. That is, the game will start off that way. If Von Fritz of dec Erichs has his say, the Farmer will be in the drill all night, but in no condition to kick up his heels and cavort on the greensward.

Erich is said to be of the old Prussian school and if such is the case there is no more ruthless foeman on earth than these goose-stepping stiff-backed warriors from Prussia. They tell me he delights in a bone crushing knee drop with the hamburg as one of a leg with one application. And like his ilk he shows no mercy to a fallen adversary.

However, the warbling son of the soil, Ole Farmer Boy hasn't been losing any sleep over what might happen. He's square-danced some of the barley boards out of his muscles and deaf-deed the kinks out of his legs. He's practised a few new hill-billy as well as classic tunes and it seems rather a shame that Belleville and district fandom should be deprived of the sweet symphonies of time of the lofty sell. They tell me he sang "Love Letters in the Sand" so realistically the other night in Kingston that the pickerel in the Napanee River are scratching billets-doux to one another on the rocks down thataway.

But he'd better watch his tonsils and other standard equipment come Friday night when he tangles with Erich the Frits from Bavaria, Prussia and points east or west. If Fritzy-boy clobbers him around the ring with his favorite one-armed knee-drop, Farmer Boy's land speaker is liable to be moved to the vicinity of the seventh lumber yeraters and that is not too many points north of the Hurrellins if you know what we mean. Anyway it should be a good fight albeit not too clean but cussed enough to warrant good house.

A pat on the back for the most unpopular guys in softball or baseball for that matter, the boys in the mask and pads.

"Red" Carson, president of the Belleville District Umpires' Association, made the right move when he organized the "anti-strike forces' into a recognized body—and the results are showing to good effect.

From the few Belleville and District Softball League games we have covered—and from reports from others who have scored the games for this newspaper, the umpiring this year has been the reason for little or no complaints.

All right, all right, there are dyed-in-the-wool fans who would have called David's slug to Goliath's jaw a foul tip and demanded the big guy come to bat again, but they are part and parcel of the color of the game. There were even some in Yankee Stadium on that fateful afternoon last October when Larsen hurled the record-breaking perfect game, who disagreed with some of Babe Pinelli's plate calls, but taken all other considerations into account "sweetest he was seated in the stadium air." Gripers, grouchers and umpire-baiters are as much part of softball and baseball as are the bats and balls. The game wouldn't be the game without 'em.

The other night in the CNRA Recreation Park where Turk Barclay's Merchants sheathed the claws of Bob Temple's Bobcats rather effectively, Al Kelleher, the Beau Brummell of the Ball-and-Strike Corps, worked at the plate and Don Gavey the bases.

We saw nothing that occurred during the game to warrant any complaint from player or official as far as the officiating was concerned. True, one or two players "griped" a mere perhaps from force of habit but were warned rather forcefully as thought by both officials that repetition meant the "thumb." Kelleher and Gavey did an excellent job. There were no delays, no arguments and the game was over after seventy-one minutes.

Medicine Man Kerby Farrell Has Injury, Illness Quota

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Cleveland manager Kerby Farrell has yet to complete his first year as a major league pilot already he has been plagued with more adversity than a manager usually encounters in a lifetime.

Few clubs have suffered as many injuries and as much illness in a full season as Indians have encountered during their three months under Farrell. Yet the soft-spoken 43-year-old manager has his team high up in the race with whistling distance of the leaders.

Despite a rookie-studded lineup that included an outfielder at third base and a shortstop at second, Indians humbled New York Yankees 11-2 Tuesday night, knocking them out of first place in the American League. More important to Farrell, the victory advanced the third-place Tribe to within 4½ games of Chicago and four of New York.

BROAN IN TRAINING

The most serious mishap that befell Cleveland, of course, was the eye injury to Herb Score last May. Then Farrell's ace started and won seven consecutive decisions before Boston's Ted Kluszewski hit him in the eye with a batted ball. Score, who underwent brain surgery, is expected to report to Farrell in the spring and attempt a comeback.

Then, in quick succession, Jim Hegan, our No. 1 catcher, ripped a calf muscle, Hal Naragon, our No. 2 man, broke his index finger and Bobby Avila, our second baseman, pulled a leg muscle. The result was that Naragon broke his finger, Russ Nixon, our rookie catcher, received a spike wound in his hand.

"We've been pretty fortunate at that. The injury to Score has given Don Mossi, our lefthanded relief ace, a chance to start and he just was four out of five in that capacity.

"Here's absence has made it possible for Mossi and Ray Narleski to win 10 between them. So what'- the use of crying? A good team has to overcome bad breaks if it can't, it doesn't deserve to win."

During the regular season Bob Lemon, perennial 20-game winner, joined Score on the hospital list with a torn thigh muscle that kept him idle for 25 days. Roger Maris, spectacular rookie centre fielder, was sidelined for several weeks with two fractured ribs after getting off to a sensational start.

JUST KEEP HAPPENING

"You'd think such things could not possibly last," Farrell said Monday. "But I'll be darned if they haven't. About a week ago, it looked like we were out of the woods as far as injuries are concerned. All the boys were back with the exception, of course, of Score.

"Then, in quick succession, Jim Hegan, our No. 1 catcher, ripped a calf muscle, Hal Naragon, our No. 2 man, broke his index finger and Bobby Avila, our second baseman, pulled a leg muscle. Cut Red Sox String at Six As Tribe Tomahawks Yanks; Dodgers Two Games off Pace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Broadway Billy Loes, his promising pitching career apparently doomed by a sore arm at the age of 26, is bidding for "comeback-of-the-year" honors a year later as the ace of Baltimore Orioles.

The sometimes-eccentric right-hander hurled one of the best games of his career Tuesday night as he blanked Kansas City 5-0 on three singles. He pitched perfect ball for 4 1-3 innings and wound up facing only two batters more than the minimum. He threw only 98 pitches.

The performance came several hours after Orioles had announced a $1,000 raise for Loes on his 1957 contract.

In other American League action, Chicago White Sox shook off that lost weekend in New York and regained first place by half a game with a 3-1 victory that cut Boston's winning string at six games. Third-place Cleveland laid the wood to Yankees, moving the New Yorkers back to second with an 11-2 pasting.

COMEBACK WINNERS

Detroit, blasted by manager Jack Tighe's managerial behind to beat Washington 7-4 in 10 innings for a full share of fourth place again.

Loes struck out six and didn't walk a man as he won his eighth game of the season while completing nine innings for the Orioles in 10 tries. He has lost only three and his earned run average for 79 3-3 innings is 2.84.

With the season not yet half over, Loes has a good chance to equal the 19-strike career loss a recognized body—and the results are showing to good effect.

From the few Belleville and District Softball League games we have covered—and from reports from others who have scored the games for this newspaper, the umpiring this year has been the reason for little or no complaints.

Cincinnati Redlegs are still in business at that National League dog fight, climbing within five percentage points of the lead after three question-mark guys—"lucky" Brooks Lawrence, sore-backed Ted Kluszewski and squatswatter Smoky Burgess — helped junk a 4-13 slump.

The three had a hand in Tues-day night's 3-2 decision over New York Giants that hoisted Redlegs, who now have won six of seven outo almost-even terms with the first-place St. Louis Cardinals.

Lawrence, target of jests be-tinling his 19 victories of the year, four-hit Giants to win his eighth. Burgess' two home runs kept Redlegs in the game and Klu's two-out, pinch single in the ninth bagged it.

FOUR-HITS BRAVES

The close race got even chum-mier as Brooklyn's southpaw rookie, Danny Mc-Hitt, trimmed Milwaukee 5-0. That upped idle Philadelphia to third, 1½ games back, and two behind the fourth-place 11½ shy, and raised the fifth-place Brooks within two games of the leaders.

Chicago Cubs quit the cellar in the other game, trimming Pittsburgh into eighth place with a 5-3 decision over Pirates.

Lawrence, a 29-year-old right-hander who has permitted only three home runs in 14 starts while winning three games in Redlegs' "comeback", gave up a 3-0 Giant lead before he went to work with on loser Ray Crone, the ex-Brave. He fanned Another ex-Brave Danny O'Connell, hit his eighth home run (fifth as a Giant) in the first inning.

WALKS FILL BASES

After Burgess, behind the plate for only the eighth time because of injury and Del Ballard's beaning, had poked his fifth homer (third in two games) Redlegs calmed down until the ninth, when reliever Al Worthington walked two to load the bases. Then came Klu.

Dodgers collected only four hits themselves, two by Duke Snider, who raised his Sunday total to three (third in two days) in the first inning before Ben Wade closed the door and retired 17 in a row. Snider also scored an unearned run in the ninth on a single, error and Gino Cimoli's single. It was a third successive loss for Wade-Gettle, now 5-5. He walked one, fanned five.

McDevitt, who beat Cincy 7-2 in his first major league start last week, then lost to Carde-whiz, Von McDaniel, despite a two-hitter in his seven frames, gained his complete game while giving up just four singles. He walked one, struck out six.

Jack Littrell, Dale Long and Walt Moryn homered for Cubs, with Littrell getting loser Bob Friend with a three-run shot. Dave Hillman won it in relief with relief help.

Mary Gay Edges Rae Milligan For Golf Title

CALGARY (CP) — Mary Gay, formerly of Kitchener, won the Calgary women's golf championship Tuesday by edging Rae Milligan, finalist last week for the Ontario women's golf title, by two strokes.

Miss Gay carded a 78 in the second round of the 36-hole final for a 153 total. Miss Milligan, a Calgary school teacher who formerly played out of Jasper, Alta., shot a 78 and 79 for 156. The first round was played Sunday.

Showing tremendous power with her woods, Miss Milligan failed to outshine the putting skill of Miss Gay.

The former Kitchener golfer shot a 38 on the outgoing nine and came in with 40 for her 78. Miss Milligan counted 41 going out and 38 coming in for 79.

Handsome Latin Beats Park In Gruelling Atlantic Swim

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—A handsome Latin American is the new marathon water king here—and his victory showed that you can't separate the boys from the girls in swimming.

Alfredo Camarero, 26, won the 25-mile Atlantic City marathon Tuesday in such gruelling conditions that many thought all the competitors would collapse in the crushy chopper ocean waves.

Camerero managed to beat the formidable Tom Park, two-time winner of the event, by a clear 11 minutes.

A member of the so - called weaker sex, Greta Anderson of Long Beach, Calif., was third in the time of 12 hours and 36 minutes, winning a total of $3,000.

Canada's Marcel Pregan, a slim-limbed Toronto school teacher collected $1,100 for finishing in ninth place and second among the girls.

$5,000 VICTORY

Camarero, who staged one of the most imposing exhibitions of endurance seen here — and who emerged from the battle barely chattering and flesh blue— collected $5,000.

Twenty-five swimmers including seven Canadians made the start under skies that threatened thunder and with winds that steadily grew more brisk.

All the Canadians except Miss Ferguson dropped out before the race ended. In the beginning there were 19 men and six women.

The really tough part of the race came before the half-way mark. The early part was along the Atlantic Ocean front, and swimmers had to strive to understand the movements of the tide.

LIKE A CONVOY

The arrival of the swimmers, accompanied by their various vessels, presented an appearance of a convoy heading on a stormy sea. The swimmer in the midst of these boats seemed in danger of bashing his head as he was thrown about on the waves.

This appearance of no control received a severe shock when Miss Ferguson arrived. Composed and smiling at the waiting crowd, she emerged from the water as one little girl was heard to say "Gosh, she's pretty."

Park lost his last lead after a see-saw battle less than a mile from the finish as the Argentine-born surged down the stretch to the finish line. Park, who now lives in California, got $2,000 in prize money.

Only 11 swimmers crossed the finish line or were hauled from the water and officially accorded places.

EXAMINED BY DOCTORS

The rest fell by the way, many in the choppy ocean waters on the weather side of the island. The field was examined before the race and doctors gave them a going-over after they got out of the water to determine the effect of the swim on their bodies.

Other finishers were, in order after the first three: Don Sabath, Levittown, Pa., Helge Jensen, Denmark, Gene Ferle, Long Beach Calif., Parul Herron, Sacramento, Calif., William Goll, Landing, N.J., and Miss Ferguson. Charles Grover of Roxbury, Mass., and Jason Zirgnes of Montreal, first woman to finish this race in 1955; Alona Keen, Montreal; John Lacouriere Montreal, Bob Gaston, Toronto and Willie Trembley, Montreal.

Sub-Committee to Study Giants, Dodgers Safari

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives subcommittee studying sports legislation hears today from some key figures in the big question of whether — or whether — Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants will move to the west coast.

The quiet discussed transfer of Dodgers to Los Angeles and Giants to San Francisco, according to testimony so far, is not yet settled.

But the subcommittee, which is probing the legal status of baseball and other professional team sports, called for a further run down of the gains and losses that would result from such moves.

Dodger president Walter O'Malley and Giant president Horace Stoneham were called to give the basic story.

Leslie M. O'Connor, president of the Pacific Coast League which stands to lose two of its major cities if the move goes through, also was scheduled to be heard.

The subcommittee began Tuesday to assemble a picture of what the baseball world would look like after a Dodger-Giant migration.

Warren Giles, president of the National League, repeated essentially what commissioner Ford Frick told the subcommittee last week: There are still many problems to be solved; nobody now knows definitely whether Dodgers and Giants finally will decide to move.

But in his testimony and in league documents he turned over, Giles gave some clues as to how and economic league might operate.

Mileage travelled would more than double—to 218,300 miles. The 2,500-mile hauls would be made by plane. The extra cost to each club would be $25,000. To break even would require drawing 1,000 more people in Los Angeles and San Francisco than were drawn in Brooklyn and New York.

"INVADERS" WOULD PAY

Giles said the question of damage to the Pacific Coast League clubs would have to be settled by arbitration if voluntary agreements were not reached, with the "invading" clubs picking up the bill.

Some hot anti-management comments Tuesday by Bob Feller, ex-Cleveland Indian right-hander, drew objections from three presidents of both major leagues.

Feller told the subcommittee: "It's a joke" to hear baseball officials take credit for the players' pension program, which he said was won only in "a bitter struggle by the players against the owners and league officials."

The statement drew an expression of "shock and surprise" from Will Harridge, head of the American League. Harridge maintained the pension plan was first suggested by an owner "and that started the negotiations."

Giles said Feller made an "unfortunate generalization" of the pension system. Giles testified the plan was born some 20 years ago as a result of a suggestion by Larry Macphail, then a co-owner of the Yankees.

Britons Top Canadians in Track Meet

HAMILTON (CP)—Three meet records were broken Tuesday night as a combined Oxford and Cambridge university squad defeated Hamilton Olympic Club in nine of 13 track and field events.

Two Britons and one Canadian broke records during the meet, the first held since the Second World War in a series started in 1920 and held every four years until 1937.

Dave Thornton of Oxford-Cambridge ran the mile in 4:18.4, a full second faster than the 1937 record.

In a field event, Stan Raike of Hamilton put the shot 49 feet 5¼ inches to break by one inch the record established in 1937.

A third record crumbled in the 120-yard hurdles when Ian Malcolm of Oxford-Cambridge clipped 1-10th of a second off the old record. Malcolm ran the distance in 0:15.5.

Richard Rau, 17-year-old Windsor school boy, and John Metcalfe of the Britons set local honors, however, each winning two events.

Rau won the high jump with a leap of 5 feet, 10 inches and the broad jump with a mark of 23 feet 5¾ inches.

Metcalfe won the 100 yards in :10.0 and then went on to complete the 220 yards in 22 seconds flat.

The outstanding race of the night was the victory of Robert Danster, Oxford-Cambridge, in the two-mile event. He was timed in 10:18 and Doug Kyle, a native of Calgary who trailed by three seconds, became the old native Canadian mark of 10:18.

Roly McLenahan New Puck Coach For Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Roly McLenahan of Cincinnati has been named coach of Rochester Americans in the American Hockey League.

He succeeds Billy Reay, who was named coach last May of Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League.

McLenahan's appointment was announced Tuesday by general manager Paul Bilsepiel after a day-long conference of club officials with officials of Toronto and Montreal, co-owners of the local club.

McLenahan, 35, nas been coach for the last four years of the Cincinnati club in the amateur International League.

His club won the league title and play-off title four times. Last season the club lost only eight of 60 games.

Rolling Stone Looks for New Grid Moss

OTTAWA (CP) — Avatus Stone, star halfback with Ottawa Rough Riders for the last four years, may not be back with the Big Four football club this year.

Coach Frank Clair said Tuesday night Stone, 25-year-old import from the University of Syracuse, plans to forget about Ottawa and attempt to catch on with a National Football League club.

He said he told Stone he would not stand in his way, adding:

"I don't think he'd make the club this year."

Clair referred to a knee operation Stone underwent last winter and said it would no doubt interfere with his playing ability.

Stone was the Jeff Russel memorial trophy in 1953 as the league's most valuable and gentlemanly player. He was a standout offensive and defensive half and the club's best punter.

Willie Boots Five Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Shoemaker rode five winners at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Calif., Tuesday to equal the record Hoop Band in the $10,000 feature race.

Hoop Band paid only $2.90 while winning handily over Festin in the 1 1-16 miles Covert was third. The winner's time was 1:41 2-5.

Mrs. Grace S. Smith's Outer Space won her fourth straight race with as capturing the Overbrook Purse at Belmont Park, N.Y., by three lengths. Outer Space stepped the 1 1-16 miles in 1:44.2-5. Second money went to Wana, who had a spread of four lengths over Untamed.

Tigers, Argos Talk Fedosoff

TORONTO (CP)—John Fedosoff, traded to Hamilton from Toronto in 1955, is the subject of trade negotiations between the two Big Four football clubs, Argo managing director Jim Hayman said Tuesday.

Jim Simmons Cureton, former all-American of Argos' 1956 team is also traded but Hayman said Cureton and Argos are too far apart on a 1957 contract to expect anything.

Fedosoff broke in with Argos in 1952, fresh from suburban Etobicoke High School. In 1954 he developed as a kick return runner.

He and quarterback Bobby Wykowski went to Hamilton in a trade that sent halfback Dick Brown and lineman Pete Wooley to Toronto.

Elgins Stretch League Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Their usual combination of adequate pitching and clutch power hitting Tuesday night moved St. Thomas Elgins into a full game lead over the idle Oakville Oaks in Intercounty baseball league action.

Homers by Ted Bogal and Jimmy Ambrose sparked a three-run tie-breaking rally while hurler Bill Jamieson allowed Gene Flocky scattered eight hits to give Elgins a 7-5 win over Listowel Legionnaires in St. Thomas.

Elgins have won their last four games by one run, showing an amazing ability to come through in the clutches.

In another Intercounty game, Guelph Plymouths rallied with three runs in the top of the ninth to overcome a nine-run deficit and down Galt Terriers 6-5 for their second win in nine starts.

Come, Mr. Benson!

Spokane Was the West's Best Look What Happened to 'Em!

CALGARY (CP)—Ed Benson of Trail, president of the British Columbia Hockey Association says he knows a way of getting Canada back into a winning role in international hockey tournaments —keep Eastern teams from representing this country.

"Have you even noticed," he said in an interview here Tuesday, "the only time Canada has been beaten in international competition was when represented by teams from Eastern Canada?"

Benson listed Western teams that brought hockey honors to Canada.

"There was Penticton, the Edmonton Mercurys, Lethbridge, Trail, Kimberley and the Edmonton Canadians," he said.

"A Western team has never lost and I think that anything as important as a world championship should have a western club representing Canada. Scouts Lorne Anderson and the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen are the only Canadian clubs to take beatings in recent years."

The BCHA president also had his opinions about Whitby Dunlops who will represent Canada at the next world hockey tournament after being strengthened by six players from across Canada.

"You know where the majority of those replacements will come from—Eastern Canada. It's about time they decided to pick some good Western players."

Leafs Blank Columbus 3-0; Bisons Win Two

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are making it a habit of cooling off the hot teams in the Eastern section of the league as they process the third-place Bisons are closing in on the leaders.

Buffalo stopped Miami Marlins four-game winning streak and sixth victory in seven starts by sweeping a doubleheader, 6-5, 4-2 Tuesday night. Bisons moved to within 2½ games of front-running Toronto Maple Leafs, who shut out Columbus Jets, 3-0, behind the two hit pitching of southpaw Johnny Schmitz. Leafs, in winning, extended their lead over Rochester, over Richmond to a half game, as Virginians' game with Montreal was postponed because of rain.

In the other game scheduled, Oscar Gamble hit a three-bagger —his second of the game and third of the night and batted home three Hawks as 6-4 victory over Rochester Red Wings in the second game of a doubleheader. Rochester edged Havana 4-3 in the opener.

Joe Cuellar was winner in each game for Buffalo and Dave Melton rammed one to cinch the nightcap in the Bison's seventh regaining his eighth victory against two losses, including a relief effort in his afterpiece.

Schmitz, the veteran Toronto lefthander, gained his 11th victory in seven decisions. He breezed through the one hour and four 30 minutes. He threw just 91 pitches, struck out three and walked one. Only his mates ever touched Columbus' righthander Cam Nurasky in seven hits.

Schmitz' big help came from Mike Goliat, who contributed two singles and two runs batted in for Leafs. Second baseman Jim Rice and both Columbus' hits—singles in the third and eighth innings.

Sierra hit a pair of two-run homers in the nightcap for Buffalo and both were off Rochester starter Pena—Don Dick Ricketts.

Tommy Alomar tripled in Red Wings' three-run fifth and then slammed a 380-foot drive in the seventh to give Rochester the first game victory. Lane, the second reliefer in for starter Manuel Cuellar, took the loss for the Cubans. He's got credit for the victory in relief, making his record 4-4.

MAY DEFEND IN FALL

CHICAGO (AP) — Promoter Ivy Schoenwald says prospects are bright for a Milwaukee title defence by Hight heavyweight champion Archie Moore against Germany's Hans Stretz in late August or early September.

Schoenwald and Moore's manager, Charley Johnston, said top major TV networks were "very interested" in discussing the match which would give more a $100,000 guarantee.

Four Win Big Daily Double

EDMONTON (CP) — Four persons held $2 tickets Tuesday for a $9,017.60 daily double at the Edmonton Exhibition racetrack. The double was about $150 less than the Edmonton record.

The winning combination was Five Four, which paid $80.20 in the first race, and Friary Law Boy, which knocked one-fifth of a second off the previous track record of 57 seconds for the three-furlong run. Friary Law Boy paid $67.10.

The biggest double for the Edmonton track was recorded Aug. 16, 1945, when the combination of Love Thief and Count Lavender paid $1,317.75.

FOR THE MAN OR MAN who could quite easily make this into a comfortable home for his family is all ages where the rooms are large. Has a fine detached lane and is close to the highway — less than five minutes drive to town. Three bedrooms, living room, large modern kitchen, bath and toilet. If full price is only $4,400. It is a real buy for the man who sees it and realizes it is a bargain.

BRICK BUNGALOW

EAST SIDE. A fine home with three bedrooms and a very spacious living room and a very modern home it has a full basement with oil heat. If you are asking $7,500 we think you are ready to do business with perhaps a reduction of terms. Call quick on this one!

YOU WOULD LIKE THIS HOME with its homey atmosphere. Well arranged and well panelled and only the very best of materials used in it. Has a very pretty enclosed verandah. Full basement, oil and a garage with a two-car size. Reduced to $12,500. for a quick deal with a low down payment and one mortgage for the balance.

VITAL AREA

FINANCE

But he believes that people are better able than government to "manage prudently their own money which they worked and had to earn." He had so expressed himself in the last budget debate.

He also had criticized the Liberals on their "tight-money" policy, maintaining that it kept the aged efforts of provinces and municipalities in obtaining needed capital by increasing the cost and difficulty of financing loans.

"Everyone must recognize the danger of inflation. It is a thief and a fraud. But we must be very certain that the measures taken to combat inflation are going to do more good than harm. One has only to look at the house building industry to realize how much damage the tight-money policy has wrought.

WANTS REVISAL SOON

"I want to see early measures taken to revise the construction which has fallen off so seriously this year under the tight-money policy of the late Liberal government."

As for the existing federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangement, the Progressive Conservative leader did not consider this "fair" to the provinces. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said, promised to introduce some new measures.

Mr. Fleming said that a new federal-provincial conference will be called, probably this year, to revise the basis of distribution of joint fields of taxation and to provide for more equitable distribution in these revenues. No provinces would receive less than available under existing arrangements.

The actual administrative job of fulfilling most of the Conservatives' election pledges will fall on the shoulders of the new fiscal chief, a brilliant young Oxford student who started his political career as a Toronto alderman back in 1929. He was one of the Commons in 1945 and has retained his seat ever since.

MANY INTERESTS

Energetic and keen, he has wide interests, mixing heavy political and social work with such sports as golf, curling, canoe-swimming and lawn bowling.

Married to the father of three children, Mr. Fleming is a non-drinker and non - smoker who strongly believes in the value of hard work.

"Thrift is a virtue of individuals as well as of nations and governments. I believe the individual who works hard is entitled to the fair fruits of labor. Governments should not tax people to the point where it reduces incentive and enterprise.

"The prosperity of a nation depends on the enterprise and efforts of its citizens. Governments should adopt and apply policies which encourage rather than discourage enterprise and industry of individuals."

COMMUNISTS

The exchange between the UN and Communist officials took place across a narrow table in a hot, stuffy building in this truce village.

Chung said all Koreans want foreign troops withdrawn. Instead of pulling out, the U.S. was trying to turn South Korea into "an eternal colony and an advance base for atomic war."

"If you believe our side introduced weapons in violation of the armistice, why did you not ask the neutral nations supervisory commission to investigate?" Chung asked.

He made no direct reference. However, to possible resumption to activities by the Inspection teams. The UN command ordered the teams out of South Korea a year ago on grounds that the Communist Czech and Polish members had made it impossible for the teams to function.

MOVE CANADIANS

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian troops of the United Nations Emergency Force have been moved into the crucial Gulf of Aqaba area for the first time, army headquarters announced Tuesday. The announcement said troopers of 56 Canadian Reconnaissance Squadron — some 150 men who operate in scout cars — have taken over a new area of responsibility on the Egyptian-Israeli demarcation line and now are within 10 miles of the Israeli port of Elath at the head of the gulf.

FIND OLD DOCUMENTS

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian Arctic expedition has discovered documents left in a cairn in northern Ellesmere Island by an American explorer 75 years ago. But the documents left by Lieut. A. W. Greely of the U.S. Army in 1882 proved a disappointment. The papers are a sodden lump. Officials of the National Archives here are afraid to try to sort out the mass for fear of destroying the documents. Experts from London may be asked for help.

NEW LABOR

"That was fairly big stuff for me at the time," he said, "but later I went on to a better job at 10 cents an hour in a picture-framing shop and finally was making $60 a month when I was married during the depression in 1933."

He now has two children, a boy of his third year of dentistry at University of Toronto and a girl just starting in at General Motors.

Hon. Mike, a stocky, soft-spoken man, has no illusions about upsetting any existing applecarts.

"What we hope to do," he said, "is to implement as much of our labor platform as soon as it is humanly possible to do so."

The platform contains these points as adopted at the Conservative convention last December:

1. An immediate review of all federal labor legislation by the combined efforts of government, management and labor.

2. Co-operation with the provinces with a view to uniform labor laws.

3. Adequate representation for labor on government boards dealing with matters of interest to labor.

4. Improvement of unemployment insurance legislation to widen coverage, increase benefits and eliminate "discrimination" against married women.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

Thursday, June 27, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) —Good Neptune and Pluto aspects favor outdoor activities and confidential matters but they on the whole cautions against extremes, overdoing. Moderation important.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) —Pleasant though not overstimulating vibrations. A fine period in which to "take stock" in business, home and personal matters. Do not worry or overtax yourself. Think calmly, and what you cannot do now, do later.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) —The day will be mostly what you make it — and you have the necessary mental equipment, intuition and ingenuity to make much out of mediocre material. Think smartly before acting, then don't recede.

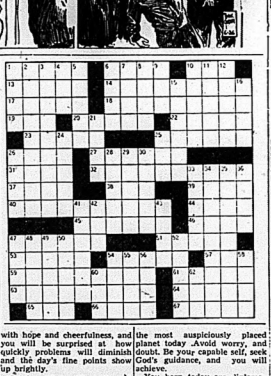
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) —Friendly vibrations. Routine matters, even difficult tasks can run smoothly, advantageously — if handled calmly. Be tactful.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Busy mild solar rays; but they can be to the good — will keep you from over-reaching or being too ambitious. It is better to accomplish a little with ease and smoothness than to overtax mind and body by rushing.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Similar to Taurus now. A progressive, fruitful day if handled intelligently, without anxiety. Be your genial, useful, busy self and you will reap satisfactory returns for your efforts.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Your rays similar to Gemini today. Work and plan with hope and cheerfulness, and you will be surprised at how quickly problems will diminish and the day's fine points show up brightly.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Neptune's fine influences, which often aid Scorpio natives, are now helpful in strictly confidential matters, difficult mental tasks, travel, handling beverages, resort interests. Avoid extremes.



November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Mildly favorable a.m. vibrations will become even more beneficial as the day advances. And, since you can look forward to a very favorable tomorrow, plan wisely for it.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Rays are neither stimulating nor unfriendly. Carefully consider the "musts" and the unessentials, then allocate tasks and chores according to their importance. You can do very well indeed.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Some beneficial influences (Neptune and Pluto aspects) can be used to your advantage. Back your ambitions with extra effort and you can't lose.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Generous influences the most auspiciously placed planet today. Avoid worry, and doubt. Be your capable self, seek God's guidance, and you will achieve.

You born today are diplomatic, usually capable, kindly and sympathetic. Appreciate these admirable qualities and develop them fully so that you may profit by them. Protect your personal assets for the sake of your family, children, and for your business future. You have musical ability, a talent for entertaining; could be an interesting sales person, public speaker, manager of a business or public project; are original, with a magnetic personality.

Govt. May Wield Axe On Some Federal Spending

Finance Minister to Aim For Balanced Budget

Commonwealth Leaders Study Middle East

LONDON (CP)—Leaders of 10 Commonwealth states today opened the second day of a week-long conference here with further discussions on relations with Russia.

The major part of today's two session was to be devoted to an analysis of the Middle East situation following last year's Suez crisis.

The statesmen — representing Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, the new independent state of Ghana and the federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland—are making a forward-looking study of Middle East problems, Commonwealth sources say.

Prime Minister Macmillan, whose original purpose in calling the conference was to smooth differences which arose over the intervention last fall, Wednesday explained why Britain decided to intervene.

NEHRU REPORTS

The Commonwealth was divided by Britain's invasion without prior consultation with the members. Only Australia and New Zealand backed the intervention.

Prime Minister Nehru of India today was expected to give the ministers a first-hand account of his recent visit to Damascus where he saw leaders of Syria's leftist government. Both Syria and Egypt cut off all ties with Britain and France at the time of the Suez incident.

Nehru, who will visit Egypt's President Nasser in Cairo on his way back from London to New Delhi, is said to be trying to arrange some sort of reconciliation.

Guard Placed Around Police Officer's Home

TORONTO (CP)—Police officials said today a night guard has been placed at the home of police constable Glen Dixon, suspended undercover officer of the morality department.

Bany was charged with perjury in a bookmaking case in which he testified against a number of Toronto restaurant owner. He is being watched at his home as important witness would be, police said. Bany is still the most important witness in a number of cases, set off after his arrest.

Reports that Bany's life has been threatened and that a man believed to be a spotter for a gang was seen on his home are said to be behind the decision to watch the house night and night.

Staff Inspector Elsworth Walker, head of the morality department, denied these had been any threats of death but said the house is under guard.

Today's Chuckle

"Why do you want to enter the U.S.?" the immigration official asked.

"I want to lead a peaceful life and make an honest living."

"Good," said the official. "That's not one of our overcrowded fields."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis:

Substantial amounts of rain fell over parts of Central and Northern Ontario Wednesday. The disturbance which caused the rain has weakened. An occasional brief shower is expected across Southern Ontario today followed by partial clearing of skies. Central and Northern Ontario will be cloudy with the odd shower developing north of Lake Superior.

Little change is expected for Friday and temperatures will range about the 75-degree mark today and Friday.

RUSSIA ACCEPTS U.S. ARMS PLAN IN PRINCIPLE

Powers to Stockpile And Destroy Weapons

LONDON (AP) — Western officials considered partial disarmament moves step nearer today following Russia's acceptance in principle of an American plan for the big powers to transfer stocks of non-nuclear weapons to international control.

But many complicated negotiations remain, however, before the plan can start working.

Harold E. Stassen, United States delegate, proposed at Wednesday's meeting of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee the major powers draw up specific lists of the types of armaments which they are willing to stockpile under international supervision. Later the weapons would be destroyed or converted to peaceful use.

The new formula apparently met British and French objections to previous proposals put forward by both the U.S. and Russia for cutting conventional arms by some fixed percentage. Britain and France felt that the earlier proposals would work to their disadvantage because of their smaller armies.

MOVE PLAN

Stassen's new plan was given qualified approval by all other members of the group — Canada, Britain, France, Russia and Canada.

Soviet representative Valerian Zorin said Russia would go along with the plan and prepare a list. But he asked that the U.S. prepare its list first. And Stassen would not commit his government on that.

Stassen's formula affects only one phase of the disarmament problem—reduction of conventional armaments. The subcommittee also is seeking ways to cut the size of armed forces and halt nuclear weapon testing and production.

Zorin, the American plan, the U.S., Russia, Britain and France would draw up lists of planes, tanks, heavy guns, missiles, ships and other armaments they are willing to surrender. The lists would be presented to the subcommittee for agreement.

TO PROCEED

"Once each country was satisfied that the others were making a fair, balanced proportionate reduction and agreement was reached on other points, the disarmament plan would proceed.

Then each country, would place the specified items in depots under international inspection on its own territory. After a year the armaments would be destroyed or converted to peaceful purposes under international supervision.

Stassen specified only that the lists involve a substantial reduction of armaments. They need be of post-war (Second World War) armaments. They may be in current military use although not necessarily of post-war construction.

AGREE TO MEET

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said Wednesday the United States and 23 other countries have agreed the 81-nation UN General Assembly should meet as soon as practicable on the Soviet-Hungarian problem. A UN subcommittee recently accused the Soviet Union of "massive armed intervention" to suppress the Hungarian revolt last fall.

Stern Warning From Safety Leaders Given as Holiday Traffic Starts

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians will celebrate their country's birthday during the weekend accompanied by stern warnings by highway safety leaders.

The Canadian Highway Safety Conference predicts 52 will die in car accidents alone.

Heavy traffic is expected in all provinces.

Pastimes will vary, including golf, baseball and horse shows. In British Columbia the new provincial exhibition and rodeo at Kamloops and the Cariboo Stampede at Williams Lake, Cariboo.

Alberta's resorts are booked solid. Railways report no space available for a week and airline flights will be crowded.

In Saskatchewan RCMP patrols will be out enforcing the province's new "send-drunk driving" law. Drivers will have to submit to breath analyses or risk losing their licences.

The Ontario open golf tournament will be played in that province.

A special warning about overloaded cars has been directed to motorists by Highways Minister Allan of Ontario. Heavily-laden cars are hard to handle, he said, and "failure to take this into effect can make passing on the highway extremely dangerous."

Transport Minister Rivard of Quebec offered this warning:

"An extra drive to the golf course or summer cottage may be your last."

In the Atlantic provinces amusements will be plentiful. The biggest attraction in Nova Scotia will be an annual Scottish celebration, the gathering of the clans and fishermen's regatta at Pugwash on Northumberland Strait.

In Newfoundland Monday will be observed as Memorial Day instead of Dominion Day, honoring the dead of two world wars.

COURT GIVES TWINS TO PARENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Mast, above, will receive custody of their children following a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada. The decision brings to a close a long legal fight conducted by the Masts and the couple who adopted the Mast twins, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hepton of Coaldale, Alta. The twins, Ronald and Rickie, were adopted shortly after their birth but within a few months Mr. and Mrs. Mast sought to have them returned. The twins have been living with the Heptons for three years.

'Parley to Arrange Parley' Is Sought by Diefenbaker

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today he hopes Commonwealth finance ministers will visit Canada in September to decide "when, where and who" the first-a full-scale Commonwealth trade conference can be held.

The finance ministers, meet in Washington Sept. 24-27 for the annual session of the International Monetary Fund and Diefenbaker's delegation will be present in Ottawa Sept. 27-28 to discuss the feasibility of a ministerial-level preparatory economic meeting at some future date.

Diefenbaker told reporters he realizes such a conference will need extensive preliminary preparation if it is to make any real headway.

The Canadian leader, who took over the reins of government only last Friday, has discussed the proposed trade conference informally with a number of Commonwealth prime ministers or their deputies.

Diefenbaker spoke informally to newspaper men in his hotel suite as the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers, now in its second day, continued a review of the international situation under section one of the agenda. At Wednesday's opening sessions the premiers heard an outline of the London disarmament talks, given by Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, and started their discussions on world affairs.

Canadian sources said Lloyd's disarmament review left the impression that prospects for world peace are somewhat brighter at the moment. There is feeling the Russians are serious about reaching some agreement on disarmament.

Tonight Diefenbaker and his wife, Olive, will go on a river cruise on the Thames as guests of the Canadian leader.

Five Miners Rescued After Being Trapped for 14 Hours

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Five grimy miners, trapped for more than 14 hours by a cave-in, scrambled to safety Wednesday night through a hole which a monstrous mechanical auger had bored 220 feet into a hillside.

When the last of the quintet was pulled from the hole, the miners fell exhausted to the floor, then blinked at the floodlights which garishly lit the desolate strip mine pit of the Hanna Coal Co.

A great cheer rose from rescue workers, relatives, spectators and reporters as the miners rushed to their families. They had waited all day in the hot sun and far into the night.

Doctors said the men were not harmed by their ordeal.

"We didn't panic and sit in there" said Fred Sabol, 33, one of the first out. The others were Frank Horvath, 35, Martin Kovalski, 40, Joseph Supinski, 47, and Kenny Hamilton, 38.

They were trapped by the caveon at 8:15 a.m. in a small chamber 300 feet back in a horizontal mine shaft about 150 feet below the crest of a hill. Their rescue came at 10:50 p. m.

Late in the day, after other methods proved unpromising, rescuers started using the huge mining auger—a machine which added nine 21-foot-long bits to the auger bit. It went deeper through a vein of coal.

The first two attempts with the auger failed when it hit rock. On the second boring, 180 feet deep, workers heard voices, although they could not distinguish words.

PICTON JUDGE DEPRIVES ROSE OF CITIZENSHIP

Red Spy Now Living With Wife in Poland

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has initiated action to revoke the Canadian citizenship of Dr. David Shugar, Montreal physician, navy electronic expert tried and acquitted of spying for Russia in 1946.

An official of the citizenship department made the disclosure today after it was announced Wednesday night that Canada has taken the citizenship status of once gave Fred Rose, former Labor-Progressive member of Parliament convicted of spying for the Soviet Union.

Both Rose, 49, and Shugar are natives of Poland. Rose went to Czechoslovakia in 1953 and then to Poland. Shugar has been in Poland since early 1953.

The citizenship department official said that action to revoke Shugar's citizenship was started March 2 of this year. This was done by sending him through the mail a Registered Letter Mail notice of the government's intention to revoke his citizenship.

The official said Shugar's status came to the department's attention in April. A letter was later applied at the embassy for renewal of his Canadian passport.

Shugar's citizenship would be revoked on grounds that he has lived outside Canada for five of the foreign country of which he was a citizen. Dual citizenship is not recalled Canadian citizen and that he has not maintained substantial connections with Canada. Shugar was the ground on which Rose's citizenship was revoked.

STATUS NOT CLEAR

Shugar was born Dec. 10, 1915, at Opatow, Poland, and became a naturalized Canadian citizen Dec. 22, 1927. His wife and at least one daughter are native Canadians, but the citizenship official said their status is not now under consideration.

It was not clear whether the revocation of Shugar's citizenship applies to his wife, Fanny, a native of the Ukraine. Their daughter, Laura, now about 20, was born in Canada and would not ordinarily lose her Canadian citizenship unless she had applied for Polish citizenship.

Shugar was one of nine persons charged with spying for Russia after Igor Gouzenko, cipher clerk in the Soviet Embassy here, disclosed the existence of the espionage ring. He served about 18 months during the Second World War as an air-raid warden.

Shugar's status will be considered later by a five-man revocation committee headed by Exchequer Court judge W. S. Lane of Picton, Ont. Mr. Rose quit Canada in a representations through counsel to the commission which will hear his case.

Rose and Shugar are two of three persons who have been at one time charged with spying. The other is Eric Adams, a former student at Sherbrooke, Que., who was tried and acquitted.

Rose's citizenship was revoked by order-in-council April 11, 1957, on the recommendation of the revocation committee. Rose probably never can gain permanent entry to the country which accepted him in 1920 as a 13-year-old immigrant boy. The order cannot be revoked.

RECORD TEA CROP

COLOMBO, Ceylon (Reuters)—Ceylon produced a record tea crop in May of 52,500,000 pounds, it was learned here today. The previous high month was April, 1956, when 49,800,000 pounds were produced.

Hurricane Andrey Hits Louisiana And Texas Coast

Torrential Rains, Winds Cause Widespread Damage

FORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP) — Hurricane Audrey, a killer lasting its punch, veered and struck the Louisiana coast today. Blasting winds of 100 miles an hour at sea skidded to 65 when Audrey hit land.

But winds, high tides and torrential rains caused widespread damage for hundreds of miles along the Texas and Louisiana coast.

Thousands evacuated their homes and resorts as tides up to nine feet above normal battered the shore.

The Port Arthur weather bureau said Audrey, which took 10 lives before it ever hit land, struck at Cameron, La., east of Port Arthur at 9 a.m. EDT.

However, the Lake Charles weather bureau said winds reached 100 miles an hour there—about 40 miles north of Cameron.

Orange, Tex., about 40 miles northwest of Cameron, said a dead calm developed at 9:45 a.m., indicating that the eye of the storm was there. Earlier, winds reached 75 m.p.h. at times.

Persons who had taken refuge in Orange began returning to their homes when the calm came, and authorities sought to get them back in time for the expected blow which always follows the hurricane calm.

Nine men were presumed drowned when the fishing vessel Keturah sank in the storm-tossed waters off Galveston, Tex., late Wednesday night. The vessel, disabled by engine trouble, had been under tow by a coast guard cutter, but the tow line broke and the Keturah was trying to reach port under auxiliary sail when it struck a drilling platform and sank.

MAN IS DROWNED

Lamar Leifer of Chatfield, Tex., was drowned when caught by a huge storm surge underrow at Galveston Wednesday.

Residents of low-lying areas on both coasts fled from the onslaught.

All except a few have been evacuated from Grand Isle, resort centre about 50 miles from New Orleans.

The town of Lake Charles in Louisiana was isolated Wednesday evening with refugees from coastal areas.

Bolivar Peninsula, a narrow strip of land jutting out from the Texas mainland opposite Galveston Island, was virtually isolated by rising tides, and 1,200 residents were evacuated to Galveston.

Airplanes dropped hurricane warnings to isolated communities. National guardsmen in southern Louisiana were put on 8-hour standby duty.

The United States Navy flew 115 persons from Foley, Ala., airport to inland bases to take refuge.

ASK BABY BONUSES

WASHINGTON (CP) — Three resolutions asking for a monthly allowance similar to the one in Canada have been introduced in the United States Congress. They call for the establishment of a special governmental committee to study the Canadian system and thoroughly recommend a similar legislation for the U.S. All praise the Canadian program and regard it as a model for the U.S. to follow.

Grocery Stores Not Allowed to Sell U.S. Beer

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario liquor control board Commissioner William Lighthall today announced the Greater Retail Grocery Association of Ontario will not be permitted to market through grocery stores a beer imported from the United States. He said samples of the brew analyzed by the liquor control board chemist disclosed an alcoholic content of 2.54 per cent by volume.

The beer was brewed and bottled by the Georgia F. Stein Brewery Co., Buffalo, under the name of Light Beer.

Mr. Collins said that as a result of his analysis of the product, the liquor control board considered the beer an intoxicating liquor within the meaning of the Liquor Control Act.

The only avenue for marketing the beer in Ontario, Mr. Collings said, would be through the liquor control board stores. A licence would be required by the brewery to sell the beer in Ontario.

The act defines as a conclusively intoxicating product any beverage with an alcoholic content or more than 2.5 per cent.

The grocers' association earlier said it planned to make a test case of the beer issue if it was denied the right to sell the product through its stores.

In another action, the board decided to permit sale of a weaker brand "which only has enough alcohol to act as a preservative" to be sold at the Maple Leaf baseball stadium in Toronto. The drink, which contains less than five per cent alcohol, went on sale for the first time at the stadium Tuesday night.

Doubled Lung Cancer Rate Stated Due to Cigarets

LONDON (Reuters)—The medical research council said today that a study of cigaret smoking in relation for a doubled lung cancer rate in Britain during the last 10 years—cigaret smoking.

The council said evidence indicated that at least one person in eight lifetime heavy smokers—36 cigarets a day—will die of lung cancer while only one in 200 non-smokers will die of the disease.

The report said that "so far no adequate explanation for the large increase in the incidence of lung cancer has been advanced, save that cigaret smoking is almost the principal factor."

The research council admitted that "knowledge of the causation of lung cancer is still incomplete" but said epidemiological studies "are undoubtedly capable of providing the answer."

But, the report continued, evidence of a link between smoking and lung cancer has mounted steadily and even the most critical investigation has not disproved the connection.

Newsman Says Begging Hard Work But Pays Better Than Reporting

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—A literal reporter with a flair for the dramatic unshackled himself from the city desk Wednesday and announced that his best is a beggar's delight.

Gerlick left the hot pavements of Jersey City in the guise of a deaf-mute, Sheldon Gorlick of the Jersey Journal collected $6.73 in two hours and proved that you don't have to be a professional to be a bum.

Gorlick, who holds a master's degree in English drama from Columbia University, set out to test the claim of a member of the city board of trade that Jersey City is a hobo's heaven.

Not the first to double in brass, Gorlick took up his post armed with a sign saying:

"Would you help a poor deaf-mute?"

Gorlick reported that his fast haul substantiates the contention of William Schulman, chairman of the Journal Square Board of Trade that "syndicate" panhandlers can pull in $30 a day here.

Gorlick reported that one policeman donated to the cause and even solicited persons standing around, although begging is illegal here.

Having earned $3.36 an hour, Gorlick said: "It may be harder work than reporting, but it's more money."

High Board Fence Being Erected Around Site

A five-foot high solid board fence is going up today around the site of the proposed new federal building at the corner of Station and Pinnacle streets.

Buildings razed to make way for the new federal structure include two residential landmarks, the building formerly occupied by Garage Supply and Greenleafs, and the Modern Cleaners.

Growing Season In Quinte Area Best in Years

BEARS ON LOOSE

OSWEGATCHIE, N.Y. (AP)—Bears have invaded this St. Lawrence County community, tipping and selecting from garbage cans, rummaging through gardens and wandering about highways. Children of the community are swept into their homes long before the evening hours, and evening walks have been curtailed.

Operator Gets Wires Crossed

Miss Nancy O'Connor, 302 Bleecker Ave., was almost shocked out of paying her telephone bill for the next fifty years early this afternoon when she received a call from the United States.

Miss O'Connor was at home, probably enjoying her lunch, when the telephone rang at about 12:45.

"Hello! Is that Mrs. Rose?" asked a woman's voice.

"No. This is Nancy O'Connor."

Then the American woman asked Miss O'Connor's telephone number.

"My number is Woodland — 2-4923," returned the Bellevillian.

The next question from the mystery voice was "Where do you live?"

Nancy told the woman that she lived on Bleecker Ave. in Belleville, Ont.wio. Canada.

There was a sudden grasp at the other end of the line.

"Canada!" exclaimed the voice. "I live in Pittsburgh (Pennsylvania) and I was calling Mrs. Rose in Dallas, Texas!"

Conclusion: It seems the world is getting smaller and smaller thanks to Alexander Graham Bell. Next time you call the butcher, don't be surprised if you get Hong Kong.

P.S. — Mrs. Rose's number is Woodland — 2-4923 in Dallas.

C of C Sponsors Tour of Seaway

Twenty-eight Bellevillians toured the giant St. Lawrence Seaway project at Cornwall on Wednesday.

The tour, which was sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, was a "momentous occasion" said Robert G. Hamilton, secretary manager of the Chamber.

The 28 members of the Chamber, Rotary Club and others, gathered at the Kiwanis Centre early in the morning and boarded a chartered bus. They had lunch at Cornwall and were shown films by the Ontario Hydro, followed by the tour.

They returned to Belleville via the Bath Road and arrived here at 10:30 p.m.

Cheese Factories Report High Intake of Milk

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of agriculture says in its weekly farm report that cheese factories in Northumberland County in central Ontario have reported their highest milk intake in history in recent days. There has been a considerable change from butter to cheese.

Generally, hay is being cut. Fairly widespread use of weed control spraying is reported.

In Middlesex County rain and wind caused lodging of some heavy fields of wheat. Standing hay is selling at $10 an acre in Welland County where hot weather has reduced strawberry markings and milk production.

Farmers in Haldimand County are complaining that the heavy crop is not drying as fast as it should. In Grey County ditching machines are in constant operation. In Bruce County all crops are making exceptional growth.

PIGS IN DEMAND

Scab infection in orchards is bad in Dundas County in eastern Ontario. Buyers from the U.S. and Quebec have been active for dairy cows. Weanling pigs are in keen demand.

The hay crop is below average in Renfrew County where additional moisture is badly needed.

The late crop of potatoes is coming up in Algoma district in Northern Ontario. Pre-emergency sprays have been used by potato growers with excellent results.

Young pigs are much in demand at $10 to $12 apiece in the Timiskaming district.

7 Wild Ducklings Become Lost But Get Good Home

TRENTON (Special) — Art Holsey was forced to bring his car to an abrupt halt on Dufferin Ave. and Wreggs St. Tuesday when seven cute little wild ducklings waddled across the road in the path of traffic.

The baby ducks became panicky after they reached the other side and in line astern formation turned around and started heading for the middle of the road again. The bewildered ducklings were wandering aimlessly without a mother who apparently had met with an accident earlier, for she could not be found anywhere. At this point Mr. Holsey took pity upon the orphaned birds. He scurried around and gathered them up and then took them for a ride on the Wooler Road. After he fixed a shelter for them he acquired feeding mash and pahlum to start them eating.

One of the ducklings which appeared weaker than the others died today, but the remaining six seem to be hale and hearty according to Mr. Holsey. He is not sure of their species but his father, an ardent hunter all his life, believes they are either Mallard or Black duck offsprings. It is also his belief they had been hatched in Hanns Park some distance further west of where they were found crossing the highway.

GET PICKEREL LIMIT

A Buffalo visitor fishing in Consecon Lake hooked on an eight-pound, seven-ounce pickerel and landed it after a seesaw struggle yesterday.

Ed Strong who lives on Delaware Avenue in Buffalo, calculates he caught a fish of distinction which measured 29½ inches in length and 16 inches about the girth.

The party he was with bagged their limit of pickerel.

A TICKLISH POINT

Eric Louw, external affairs minister for South Africa, is his country's representative at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London.

Asked by reporters if it was still the intention of Prime Minister Johannes Strijdom to make South Africa a republic, he replied in the affirmative.

He was then asked whether there was "any danger of South Africa withdrawing from the Commonwealth."

"I see no signs of that," Mr. Louw answered, and then qualified his reply by adding "unless other members of the Commonwealth want us out."

This qualifying phrase is open to two interpretations. It can be considered as merely a recognition of the fact that many Commonwealth countries find association with a country which follows the South African National Party's apartheid policies as extremely embarrassing. Or it can be read as a warning that any effort by these Commonwealth countries to interfere with South African internal politics will result in South Africa withdrawing from the Commonwealth.

Precedent, rather than written law, is the guide for the conduct of Commonwealth affairs, just as it is the safeguard of British liberties. Precedent has been established for a Commonwealth country becoming a republic, but still remaining within the Commonwealth. There is, therefore, nothing in the South African plans to eventually divorce the country from the Crown which would require it to relinquish its membership in the Commonwealth.

On the other hand, if the establishment of a South African republic was accompanied by the end of the association of that country with the Commonwealth, other Commonwealth countries would face a difficult problem in ethics. Should the white men in South Africa have the right to take their country out of the Commonwealth, without the majority of its residents having any voice in the matter? Is it not the black and "colored" residents of South Africa as much Commonwealth citizens as any white man walking the Strand or Sparks street? Would not permitting a small group to deprive them of Commonwealth citizenship against their wishes be a shameful betrayal?

PRONUNCIATIONS

The world of English is an exciting one to explore. Perhaps the best way of exploring it is to listen to people in the way they use their native language and pronounce various words.

We like the latter, especially.

Pronunciations give us the same chuckles as wordslips give Scott Young of "The Globe and Mail."

Have you ever noticed the way nine out of ten people pronounce the name of Canada's second largest city, Toronto? The commonly accepted pronunciation is Tronna, with a soft "O" and the accent on the first syllable.

A verb that gets kicked around quite a bit is appreciate. To the folks "over 'ome" appreciate is frequently pronounced apprishiate and immediately is usually immejiately.

Then there are the folks who pronounce goal gool and gaol goal. This sort of thing hits us harder than when we hear people say ain't.

But perhaps the funniest pronunciations we have heard for many years are the ways people pronounce the name of our new Prime Minister.

Is it Deefenbaker, Diffenbaker, Dyefenbaker, Diffenbocker, Deefenbacker or Diffenbiker? We like to tag along with the man who owns the name and call him John Diefenbaker ("Die" as in die-hard, "fen" as in London Daily Mirror, however, has solved the problem nicely. It calls him Deefy.

VALUES HIS TIME HIGHLY

Dr. Joseph Kris has presented a bill for $1,500 to Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Kent Hooper, whose seven-year-old son he attended during and after the child was trapped for 23 hours in a backyard well.

Dr. Kris said he sent the bill on the assumption that the Hoopers had received numerous contributions and could pay it. Learning that contributions had been small, he later withdrew the bill.

Dr. Kris said his time is worth $30 an hour. On the basis of a 40-hour week, he would thus be entitled to $60,000 for a year's work. How many people can afford to pay for medical care at such rates as these? How many doctors charge such rates? For that matter, we wonder how often Dr. Kris has charged such a rate.

JUST FOLKS

SHAVING CUNNEL

I was careless and I nipped
A little piff off my chin.
I suppose the razor slipped,
With the whitehair taking skin.
I have cut myself much more
On the chin and on the lip,
But I never knew before
Just how long a chin would drip.

I have red stains on my vest;
On my collar crimson shows.
Though the cut I firmly pressed,
Still persistently it flows.

I tried all the biting stuff
That is made to close a cut is sold.
But it wasn't quite enough
The escaping blood to hold.

'Twas a orbicularly razor, too,
And a blade they guaranteed.
But I never really knew
Just how long a chin will bleed.

So you shavers all take care;
Heed the lesson that I got.
Of the chin you must beware;
That's a very dangerous spot.

A Young Man's Fancies

New York Times

There is something just a little pathetic about a young man who has just begun to learn the ways of women as they think he knows a great deal, but he does not, and no one can tell him. No one, certainly, who wants to assume the responsibility for discouraging him prematurely. Let him have his dreams, his theories on how simple it will be some day, to wed the girl of his choice and to set up housekeeping somewhere. His own home life, its problems and its ease with which everybody wrestles at one time or another, might suggest to him that the future may always be peaches and cream. But he thinks that when he decides to marry things will be different — he knows, for example, that the bride would wear a mantilla, not a picture hat or ribbon, a modicum of intelligence. This is a young social season and, about now, the most important matter in this young man's life — and in certain young ladys' — is Senior Prom. One has heard about this prom for weeks, and one will remember it by this when the mind of visits to department stores in search of new dresses, visits to the hairdresser, plus other preparations throwing the household budget quite out of gear.

* * *

Attendance at the prom by a certain young lady involves having away from home overnight. It is by this would be a minor matter, requiring the assistance of a small overnight bag. To a girl, this would be the supreme crise in civilian logistics. The young lady being — unlike her parents — practical and sensible, prepares a list of items she will require during the week-end: one pair crinoline petticoats, one pair of seamless hose, one pair of silver-seamed hose, several unmentionables, one pair of white socks, white shoes, plastic dress (for informal dance after prom), Bermuda shorts, one blouse, white jacket, ring (class of '57, a gift from her escort), slippers, pajamas, bathrobe, a "topper" and scarf. To transport these items the following are required: One large garment bag, one very large suitcase, one medium-sized overnight bag.

* * *

It is well that the young-man who is taking this young lady to the prom does not know of this list before he arrives to claim her. He started, he is honored. He is wondering if all this can be lodged in his small car without damage to the more delicate finery. He is wondering what a corsage will cost for the week-end weekend. Or for a week. He is wondering if he will ever be able, some day, to support this young woman in the style to which she, with all the resources of her apparently has become accustomed. He is, in short, learning.

He will learn more, too, very soon. He will learn that he needs a larger car, when this young woman, wearing three crinolines under her formal dress, tries to get into his present one. He will learn that although this young woman eats little at one time, she likes to eat often, and there can be small doubt about how much of all this he really will remember. He is young, and he will be under the spell of the music of the dance. He will emerge bereft of the weight of a large garment bag, a large suitcase and an overnight bag with his dreams of the simple life largely intact. His learning has begun, but it is far from complete (nor will it ever be).

Diefenbaker Is No U Nu

Montreal Gazette

Whatever their politics, newspaper headline-writers across the nation are facing a recurrent problem. How can you get "Diefenbaker" into the single-column heading that only has a unit count of nine or 10?

It is quite possible that the Conservative party leader will take a leaf from the books of other famous personages and officially permit the contraction used in the case of cartoonist, John Collins—"Dief," or as John put it recently, "Dief the Chief."

President Roosevelt was happy to oblige with "FDR" and President Eisenhower officially permitted Ike to be entered the lists for the 1952 election, that "Ike" could be used by him. Songwriter Irving Berlin had already make the nickname famous and provided a campaign cry as well when he wrote the song "There's No Number for 'Call Me Madam.'"

It is at times like these that Canada starts up for the peace of Burma, where the national leader's name is U. Nu.

Books Beat TV Threat

Christian Science Monitor

Books apparently have survived the great television threat just as they did several such previous menaces as radio, the tandem and the Punch-and-Judy show.

Some direct evidence on this subject was furnished recently by a bookseller in Chicago. His "estimate on the reading and writin' business included these statistics:

Total American book sales in 1956 were up $10,000,000 over 1955—to $750,000,000.

A 1954 breakdown shows $115,000,000-worth classified as adult books other than texts or references — an increase in this category of 87 per cent since 1929.

In answer to one adult book, "Why Can't Johnny Read?" the bookseller's reply that it isn't for lack of books. Juvenile sales were up more than adult sales during the same period, having gained 157 per cent.

Population growth accounts for some of the sales increases' suspicion that the ancient lers' suspicion that the ancient art of reading must be mixed up in it, too. It's beginning to look as though TV, movies and books are settling down to a long period of peaceful co-existence.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE WORLD STACKED AGAINST US

You can't make wrong come out right. But never lose you try to make it come out right, it just will not do so. Life is like a jig-saw puzzle. We must fit the pieces into the factors of everyday life—into their proper spaces. They will fit only their opposites. What is right fits into the pattern of righteousness. What is wrong will fit into the pattern of evil. You cannot make right fit into wrong or wrong into right.

The reason for this is that there is a God over this universe and He is a righteous boss. He made the world, He sustains it. He maintains its every detail. Nothing in the world—and we believe in this universe—happens except as the result of its command or His permission. And He has fashioned His creation in such a way that wrong can never come out right nor can right ever come out wrong.

The earth doesn't open and swallow us up if we do evil, nor does a heavenly light surround us if we do well. God's time-schedule is usually quite different from man's time-pattern.

But don't try to fit anything evil into a pattern other than its pattern. A righteous God has created a world against us in that respect—mercifully so.

Here Tongues Were Twisted

Manchester Guardian

The ancient Lancashire feast, known as "Nicky Tarry" or "Charity," used to be observed in Pende Hill, Burnley, when all over the district made the annual pilgrimage, carrying their own stables and drinks — to the hillside, where they camped out for the day.

Nobody was included in the company who could not recite without overmuch stumbling the long tongue twister:

"Thimblering Thistle wattle thievishly thought to live through thick and through thin by throwing thimbles about, but he was thwarted and thwacked, thumped and thrashed, with thirty thousand thistle thorns, for thievishly thinking to live through thick and through thin by throwing his thimbles about."

Old Troughs Of Yesterday

Ottawa Journal

On paceful, tree-shaded, back-country roads, away from the pandemonium of modern traffic on macadam and cement, one occasionally finds a wooden watering trough below a farm and brush covered bank. Each year they grow fewer. But a century ago the hardwood plank drinking places were common, located at spots where the water from a spring above could be conducted into a trough by the side of the road.

The trough was made of dried hardwood planks and when fitted with water the swelling made the joints water tight. The lowest end and made a middly stretch down the side of the road. Then it was filled with waving tendrils of green moss; the bottom of the trough was covered with ripples of grey sediment.

Sometimes a lad put turtles, trout or a few minnows in the roadside trough and then hid in the bushes, hoping a farmer would come along and stop to water his team. It was good fun to watch the thirsty horses plunge their noses into the cold water, and then spring back with a snort with alarm at the meanness to a turtle or snake. And a middle-aged farmer, climbing down from his wagon seat, would curse a bit, thinking of long-ago days.

It is a different world today. Half a century has changed a nation's way of living and horses no longer stop at watering troughs. A car's radiator needs a drink. It can't plunge its head into a trough of cold water by the side of the road, and then snort in satisfaction when it has had a drink.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Don't Nag The Children

A 20th century mother tells me her children wear or leave off what they please in any weather or season and they are all healthy far than most of the children in the neighborhood. So she and her husband join me in laughing at parents who coddle and pamper their children against cold, drafts, dampness, insufficient clothing, etc.

In The Pocket Book of Baby and Child Care, by Benjamin Spock, M.D., a better-than-most author-ity, I find these statements:

"Chilling helps to bring on a cold, but the filtrable virus has to be there in the nose and throat. So the best thing you can do to avoid a cold is to keep away from anyone who has one. It is believed that a person is more susceptible to colds when he is tired or becomes chilled." Then Dr. Spock talks about "resistence" — which is baloney, for no one has proved that there is any such thing as "resistance", other than immunity.

Moreover, Dr. Spock's allusion to "filtrable virus" which he says is a germ so small that it can pass through unglazed porcelain, so small that it cannot be seen through a powerful microscope" is also baloney.

It seems to be the fashion these days to diagnose illnesses one doesn't understand as "virus". Who's qualified to question the doctor who pronounces the trouble a "virus"?

The weight of all the scientific evidence we have and all the experience of sailors, soldiers, hunters, fishermen, Arctic explorers, woodsmen and others who know that exposure to cold and wet and chilling means, is against the notion that everyday exposure to cold, dampness, insufficient clothing, sudden changes etc., causes or predisposes to any disease. Exposure is uncomfortable, but short of frostbite or freezing it does no harm at all.

What the medical authorities of the nineteenth century believed and taught was:

"Cold is now regarded as a factor in lowering the resistance .....As to the close association of pneumonia with exposure there can be no question whatever."

In the tradition of the profession Dr. Osler did not deem it necessary to explain what "resistance" meant. No medical can explain it today.

"Give the patient plenty of fresh air but beware of drafts." This is and still is the existence of medical and popular sick-room hygiene.

What a hokum about exposure makes me think of "Mother, may I go out to swim?" "Oh, yes, my darling daughter. Hang your clothes on the hickory tree, but don't go near the water."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOU ARE NEVER ALONE...

We are never actually alone. We have ourselves, about which we know so little. We can dream alone. We can companion alone. We can observe and think alone. We can keep improving our minds and interests alone. We can look to God and receive help. We need to depend upon ourselves, more and more—alone.

In Nature there are multitudes of discoveries to be made for so long as we live. Life is really an immortal miracle! John Muir, the great naturalist, made California and its trees, animals, birds, and glaciers his companions—alone—and then he wrote his ideas, messages, and happy days into books for us all to own. He walked great distances alone, and gathered every discovery. Alone, yet never totally alone.

We can become our own best discoverer. And that will always give us the greatest satisfaction and pride. We become akin to others by getting close to ourselves. We are self revealers. How few of us ever think that the best reason for unhappiness is that we are too far away from ourselves. We bother too much good from others that we never repay! Trouble, however, is one thing that we often are eager to pay right back! The whole world has plenty of this that it could well afford to lose.

In the midst of beauty and the riches of Nature one sometimes feels quite away, like the morning dew. Here it is the beauty of it and the rush of all the creations of the Infinite Mind. How can we be thus alone? In the laboratory of Nature are to be discovered all the perfections of the Creator. In every leaf and flower every snowflake, every ripple of the stream, and behind every star you may discover His thoughts and designs. How can any of us fail to maintain—

THE PACKSACK

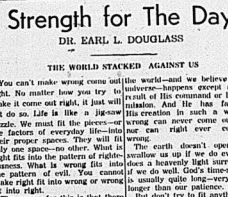
By GREGORY CLARK

One of my friends has been showing me the snapshots he took on a recent canoe trip in the Rockies.

The only trouble is, he took about eight of each scene or each event. He had a lot of snapshots. But actually, there were only about ten or fifteen different pictures he could have secured.

This calls to mind the fact that we camera carriers are divided into two broad classifications: those who unlimber our cameras only occasionally and then go berserk; and those who are camera conscious and use it every time we see a picture, and take only one picture and that's that.

Obviously, the second category is the one we should all try to belong to. Now that cameras are so cheap and so efficient and so simple to operate, they should be carried as naturally and unconsciously as we carry ball point pens in our pockets. There was a time when the camera was kept in a drawer or hanging on a hook, and when we got the sudden inspiration to get a snapshot of this," we would run and fetch the camera and frequently all we got was the place. In order to get the film used up we could have it developed to normal.



I asked one of our leading press cameramen what advice he would give to amateurs with regard to taking good snapshots.

"You can't teach people," he answered me, "by books or pictures. Either they see them instinctively, or they don't. The reason there will be so many millions of punk snapshots taken this summer is because they don't think of a picture when they are taking them. They don't see the picture at least try to see one. And by that I mean that you should move around, viewing what you are going to take from different angles and different lights. You must put the camera up to your eye and look through it to see fire. But look. Move this way, move that, still looking. Come closer, move back. And you can have an interesting picture in the finder, I mean. And rarely if ever take more than two of any subject."

This is rather like telling a typewriter how to make every shot count with his rifle. Imagine that he has only one shell in the gun. But the average typo has a magazine full of shells and knows it. So he takes a handful of as fast as he can. And the game goes off unscathed.

24 County Residents Given Certificates of Citizenship

Twenty-four county residents received their certificates of citizenship at the court house Wednesday afternoon, appearing before His Honor, Judge J. C. Anderson.

Each new Canadian citizen was presented with a Bible by Rev. James S. A. Spearman, representing the Upper Canada auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, Mr. Spearman advised the group to read the Bible daily in order to make it a guide in their lives, thus aiding them in being good citizens.

Mrs. G. Vince, regent of St. Julian chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, represented her organization in welcoming the new citizens. The Argyll chapter was represented by its regent, Mrs. Angus Duffy.

His Worship, Mayor Jane Forrester, on behalf of the citizens of Belleville, brought greetings to the group. Mr. H C. Parker and Mr. G. Durocher spoke on behalf of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration.

Harriet Stevens of the C.J.B.Q. staff, said it would be a good thing if all natural-born citizens could attend a citizenship ceremony, in order not to take our freedoms so much for granted.

NEW CITIZENS HEARD

The Judge called on the new citizens to speak. The few who spoke voiced the sentiments of the group in describing their happiness and desire to accept their new responsibilities.

Judge Anderson said their response showed how deeply they felt the privilege of being new citizens. He added that the country's resources must be developed more fully and this can be done only if the new Canadian citizens and the ones of long standing join together. He told the group to never look down on the traditions of their mother countries, but at the same time to cherish the traditions of Canada.

The winners unloaded an 18-hit attack with every man in the McFarland lineup connecting for at least one hit, off juvenile pitchers St. Louis and Stark.

They built a 3-0 lead in the first but the fourth was a nightmare for Belleville with the Macs bagging ten runs.

"Chuck" Jones and Sammy Mulholland shared the mound duties and limited the city batters to four hits. Jones gave up two hits, fanned six and walked two over the first four frames. Mulholland was touched for two hits during the next three, whiffing three and passing one. The game was called after seven innings.

Gord St. Louis took the blunt of the McFarland hitting, working the first six frames. He was tagged for 18 runs off 17 safeties, striking out three and passing six. Stark gave up two runs, one hit, fanned one and walked two in the seventh frame.

Rightfielder Perry led the winners with the wood, pounding a double and two singles while Denny Hayden crashed three one-baggers. Kingston, Bill Foster, Gord Fuller had singles in a losing effort while St. Louis had a double.

The only time Belleville threatened was in the sixth on Fuller's single and a walk with none out. The next two men went down on fielder's choices while Mulholland fanned Kingston to pull out of trouble.

Billy Michaud of Parkdale suffered a broken arm in a sliding accident at second base.

LEGEND OF THE BAT

A chief's son, escaping from tribal enemies, asked help of the animals.

A nearby field mouse climbed the tree sheltering the boy and gnawed down branches to conceal him. He escaped his enemies and the Good Spirits rewarded the field mouse by giving him wings—hence the origin of the bat.

Women's S.G. Elects Officers

The annual supper meeting of the Women's Study Guild was held in the garden of Mrs. William Hunter's home, MacDonald Ave.

During the business session money was voted to continue aid to the Italian foster child and to the campaign for the local WCTU camp.

A suggestion box provided many ideas for next year's programs. The Guild is to hear Mr. Mathews of the Quinte Secondary School staff speak at the September meeting.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Annual reports were presented and the election results were: —president, Mrs. G. Williamson; vice-president, Mrs. George Wishart; secretary, Mrs. Meades; treasurer, Mrs. A. Orr, forming the new executive.

Mrs. H. Mills led a worship service suitable for the topic of the evening reading many passages from the Bible, dealing with safety, deliverance from evil, trust in God. A short story painted the need of constant contact with the God of strength, a refuge and a fortress. Prayer closed this service.

Mrs. J. Buchanan introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Theo Wheeler, whose command of the subject of Civil Defence provided a very interesting and informative meeting.

She touched on the difficulties of the work and the apathy toward it, outlining the various arms of municipal services which would be required.

She also told of the national situation regarding concentration of population and industry and explained such terms as "target area" and "reception area" and the forms the destruction by bombs can cause.

Coming down to the individual, she gave the suggestions recommended by the Civil Defence organization for safety in case of attack.

A lively discussion followed Mrs. Wheeler's presentation.

She was thanked by Mrs. A. D. Archibald on behalf of the Study Guild.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP . . .

DON'T "CONGRATULATE" THE GIRL . . .

"Congratulate" and "Congratulations" are words you must not use when you greet or write to an engaged girl or when you greet the bride in the receiving-line at the wedding reception. To the fiance and to the bride you give your "good wishes" or say, "Every good wish to you for your happiness, always" or however you wish to express your good wishes. But save the words "congratulate" or "congratulations" for the engaged man and for the bridegroom when you greet him in the receiving-line at the wedding reception.

PARTY TO INTRODUCE BRIDE FROM OVERSEAS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A close friend of mine and I have just read your column concerning "Introducing the Bride to the Groom's Family," and we were so interested in your suggestion that we'd like to ask your opinion concerning a somewhat similar question. Last December this friend's son married a darling German girl while he was serving in Germany. Recently they returned and are making their home, temporarily, with the groom's parents. What should the groom's mother do in the way of introducing and entertaining her new daughter-in-law? — Reader

A most gracious plan it is for the groom's mother and father to give a party to welcome the bride to her new country and to her bridegroom's family, relatives, and friends. Sometimes two parties are given, the first an intimate gathering to which the members of the groom's family and the relatives are invited, and another party, as soon as possible after the first, to which family friends and friends of the groom are invited. (It's an excellent plan, if possible, to give the first gathering on a Saturday afternoon and the second on Sunday, the following day.) The groom's mother and father, the hostess and host, stand first to greet the guests and to introduce their son's bride. This introduction is most important, naturally, and the words should be said lovingly and with a welcoming warmth; for example, "Here is dear Elsa, Bob's wife and our beloved new daughter, Elsa . . . this is Bob's Aunt Margaret."

PROPER FOR HER TO SEND GREETING CARDS NOW . .

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father passed away last February. Please tell me when it will be proper for me to send birthday cards, Christmas cards, and so forth. — Anne C.

It is entirely proper for you to send birthday cards and greeting cards of this general kind whenever you wish to now . . . but these cards should of course be of a conservative design, and the message on them, whether printed or handwritten, friendly and in good taste. As to Christmas cards, it will be entirely correct for you to send them next Christmas, so many months after your father's passing; and these too should be of a conservative kind.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

DO YOUR VACATION SHOPPING EARLY

If you're a typical homemaker, you're busy getting your passport for some faraway vacation spot. We note that housewives rate highest on the list of overseas globe trotters! According to one Passport Office, it's the little woman at home who gets away, come summer. And hooray for that. For she is the traveller who'll get the most out of a trip. She gets a new lease on life, she finds out what other homemakers around the world are thinking about, she sees what they are wearing and cooking, and teaching their children.

She'll have more leisure to enjoy her trip if she plans her travel wardrobe carefully. It certainly doesn't have to be luxurious. The fewer clothes she takes the easier. What is important is choosing them with economy and easy care in mind. If you are planning a trip, don't put off your shopping till the last minute. Start early in selecting the suit, the dresses, the sweaters, and the skirts you may want to take. Hurried shopping is rarely the best kind. And it takes half the fun out of the preparations.

Shopping for the right clothes is half the fun of a vacation — if you do it unhurriedly.

Stores, travel agencies and veteran travellers can all guide you as to the type of clothes you'll need for your trip, and you'll have a lot of fun in selecting them — especially in this season of ultra-charming fashions.

Some years, resort clothes are designed to bring out the gamin in a gal. She can leave her conservative manners and clothes at home when she takes her vacation, and be just as zany as she likes for a change. But not this year.

This year you're supposed to go forth like a lady—in gentle, pastel colors, in pure silk skirts and shirts, in grey and white tweed skirt with matching grey cashmere sweater. That's the latest edict for vacationers. Not that there isn't plenty of sophistication in resort clothes! Fabrics are grand, and bathing suits are about as daring as they can legitimately get. Especially the fitted knit suits that are fitted, indeed!

It's highly interesting to note that some of the most delectable resort clothes are inexpensive. When you can get a pastel-printed pure silk skirt for less than eleven dollars and well-tailored linen shorts under eight dollars, you're clover. The cotton knit outfits are very smart, too, right now. And they include everything from slim skirts to brief shorts and sleeveless shirts.

These, of course, are real treasures when you travel because they're so washable, so easy to dry over the shower rod with no ironing involved. The pure silks are washable too, as well as the linen shorts and cashmere sweaters. You needn't take along any laundry problems to clutter your holiday

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

INVITE HIM AND SEE WHAT HAPPENS . . .

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

My sister and her boy friend broke up nearly two months ago over some silly trifle they quarreled about. Since then, she has been very upset, and I know she wants them to get together again.

Her birthday is coming us soon, and I thought I might plan a surprise party for her and invite her ex-boy friend. Do you think that would be a good idea? I don't want him to think she's chasing him, but maybe he wants to make up, too, but just doesn't know quite how to go about it. — Miss W.

Dear Miss W.:

You may be right, of course, that the young man in this case may be as anxious as your sister is to make up their quarrel and just needs a face-saving approach. On the other hand, it would seem to me that if he is very anxious to make up, your sister would have heard something from him before now.

However, it certainly can do no harm for you to make a try by sending him an invitation to the surprise birthday party. Don't let him think, though, that you're planning the event solely in the hope that he can be persuaded to come. Make it a nice party, anyhow, and if there are any other young men you could also invite, it would be a good idea.

Just drop the special young man a note, saying you're going to have this surprise party for your sister and you hope he can come. It would be better to send the invitation by mail than to give it over the phone, as you would be embarrassed if he declined the invitation verbally, whereas if you got the refusal in a note from him, you wouldn't feel it quite such a slap in the face. Of course, if he does decline, you needn't ever tell your sister that he had been invited.

Good luck to you!

BETTER FIND OUT HOW SINCERE THIS MAN IS ABOUT MARRIAGE

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

About six months ago I was introduced to a man by a friend and we hit it off at once. Since then, he's taken me out many times and seemed to enjoy our dates as much as I did. I'm 23 and he's 31.

Now, all of a sudden, I've heard that he has a wife from whom he is separated, and I can't understand why he never told me this. When I asked him about it, he said that his wife has refused to give him a divorce, but he believes that eventually she'll give in, and then he wants me to marry him.

All of this was a dreadful shock to me, as I had really fallen for him and had been hoping he'd ask me to marry him. Now I don't know what to do. — Frances M.

Dear Frances M.:

I'm sorry, but I find it very hard to believe that any man who allows a girl to fall in love with him under a false impression can be trusted. I don't like to suggest this, but if he allowed you to be misled about his marital status right in the beginning, what reason have you to believe that he may not be misleading you when he says that he wants a divorce from his wife so he can marry you? I may be quite wrong, of course, and he may be a more trustworthy man than I think, but I do believe this is something to which you should give some serious thought.

My own feeling is that you would be wise to tell this man very frankly what a shock this has all been to you and that you're confused about what you should do. Then say that there is one thing you're sure of, which is that a young woman should wait until a man is free before going out on steady dates with him, and that you would not have dated him before if you had known he was married. Add that you think it would be better for you not to see each other any more until the whole matter is cleared up.

If you do this, you will doubtless quickly find out just how sincere he is when he says he wants to marry you.

Motoring Guests Are Expected

By Mary Moore

We are in the same unsettled state as many of you are—expecting motoring guests but not knowing just when they will arrive. Ours are coming from Michigan and as I write this, since I am still in Calgary at Herbie's and Marianne's, we are constantly looking for their car to drive up, while we cook, change beds, polish, etc.

Some of the cooking we have done and which will not deteriorate if it has to be held for 24 hours includes:

SWEA'S PORK AND BEANS

Swea is Herbie's mother and since their guests are Herbie's brother Bob and his family we thought their mother's pork and bean dish would make them grin a little wider. I visited her in Castlegar, B.C., two weeks ago and tasted these. I think you should all add them to your permanent files for they are tops for flavor, economy and nutrition.

Soak 1 pound of pinto beans in cold water to more than cover, overnight. Boil them in the morning for about ¾ hour or until tender. While the beans are boiling, pour boiling water over ½-lb. cut up lean salt pork. Mix together 2 tablespoons each brown sugar and flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon mustard, shake of pepper. When these dry ingredients are mixed together well, add 1 or 2 tablespoons molasses and ¼ cup hot water and stir to form a paste. Put the soaked pork in the bottom of the bean pot, then add the drained beans, then 1 small whole onion. Pour the paste over and add hot water to nearly fill bean pot. Add 2 tablespoons catsup. Cover and let simmer for 5 to 6 hours (the longer the better) or bake them at 300 deg. Fahr. Add water as and if needed. Stir them up from the bottom carefully with a fork once or twice during the cooking period. You must have a simmer element if these are cooked on top of the stove.

Another Castelgar Special we have stashed away for future use is:

SWEA'S POUND CAKE

Three-quarters cup "fruit-cake-mix" or mixed peel or sliced candied cherries, ¼ cup almonds or other nuts chopped, 3 cups sifted pastry flour or 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, ½ teaspoon each baking powder and salt. Sift together the dry ingredients and stir the fruit into it. Cream ¾ cup butter well and add 1 cup fine sugar and cream well into butter. Add 3 eggs, 1 at a time, beating well between each addition. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla. If desired 1 tablespoon each lemon juice and water may be added. With or without this extra liquid the cake is good.

With it, it stays moist a little longer. Turn into greased loaf pan and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 1½ to 1¾ hours. Never leaves the cake in the oven sometimes two hours with the oven at 325 deg. Fahr. This cake is at its best when 2 or 3 days old after having been cooled and carefully wrapped in aluminum foil and stored in the refrigerator.

Next week I will give you 2 recipes for meat casseroles that are dependable, easy and may be varied according to ingredients on hand. Keep your eye open for Katie's Casserole and Louise's Pork Chops.

So-Ed Outdoor Club Enjoys 1000 Is. Cruise

On June 22, a number of the members of the So-Ed Outdoor Club participated in a tour of the 1000 Islands which was sponsored by the Y.P.U.C. of the Bay fo Quinte district. The anticipated attendance was between 500 and 600 persons.

The Outdoor Club left Belleville shortly before 7 a.m. Saturday morning, and arrived at Gananoque at approximately 8.30 a.m. The cruise lasted from 8.55 a.m. until shortly after 11 a.m., docking at Gordon Island for lunch and a swim and general relaxation. The length of your stay on the island was left to your own discretion; boats going to the mainland stopped there every few minutes.

One of the highlights of the cruise was Boldt Castle which had never been finished, although more than a million dollars had been spent on its construction. It was also pointed out that 16 of the isles had been purchased by the government and turned into parks and camping sites open to the public.

It was an extremely interesting day, and in the true spirit of So-Ed, a group arranged to go to the dance at Presqu'ile Saturday evening to finish off the day.

Women's Activities

SALEM W.A.

The June meeting of Salem W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. V. Hagerman of Carrying Place, a former member. The president opened the meeting and Mrs. Johnston thanked the hostess, Mrs. Hagerman, for the kind invitation to meet her.

Roll call showed 19 members and five visitors present. Correspondence dealt with a letter of thanks had been sent to Mrs. H. Reid, for the gift of a jewel box, and a letter of welcome to the society.

Mrs. E. Brown extended thanks for the sick cards she had received.

It was decided to re-decorate a bedroom at the parsonage.

In Mrs. Bishop's absence, Mrs. Lorne Hagerman volunteered to help at the next supper.

The treasurer reported $132 cleared at Hoard's Sale Barn in May. A committee of Messrs. J. B Hagerman and Orville Jackson was formed to get information about the hall floor.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Frank McGee.

Mrs. J. B. Hagerman read the Scripture, Job 5:1-16, and the meditation was taken by Mrs. Stanley Thompson.

Mrs. Arnold Hay read a poem, "A Little Child," and little Miss Kathy Wickens sang two selections which were much enjoyed.

Mrs. Mel Wickens gave a splendid report on the convention held at Trenton recently. A reading, "A Man With A Smile," was given by Mrs. Bert Heagle and Mrs. George Sine rendered a solo with guitar accompaniment. Jesus Took My Burden and Left Me with A Song," and Mrs. Harry Mayo gave a missionary reading, "On the Food Front in Malaya."

Mrs. Orville Jackson voiced thanks to the hostess, program and lunch committee for the lovely afternoon spent together. The collection was $8.45 and the special roll call collection was $4.40.

St. Andrew's W.A. Holds 'Rose Garden' Tea at 'Alameda'

Sun-dappled lawns, an old world rose garden with stately fence and ornamental wrought iron gateways, and lovely flowers provided spacious rooms could be Quinte's cosy-lapped breezes created the many attractions during the "Rose Garden" tea held yesterday afternoon at "Alameda," gracious home of Mrs. C. H. Graham, Trent Road, under the auspices of the combined Bon Accord and the Wesleyan Sisterhood groups of St. Andrew's W.A.

Receiving the guests were the hostess, Mrs. Geoffrey R. Graham; Mrs. H. D. MacLean, Mrs. W. G. Pollon and Mrs. B. Alexander.

Mrs. J. H. Lewis presided as treasurer for the afternoon.

The long living room, which faced the bay, was most attractive with vases of pink and white Canterbury bells, deep purple and pale blue delphiniums and feathery spires, and also little side tables gay with purple-hued pansies.

STATELY TEA ROOM

The tea room was dignified and stately with its satiny mahogany sideboard of antique design, and the long table with its Italian cutwork linen and lace cloth, centred by a quintet of silver vases filled with golden coreopsis and sprays of hyacinths, and over all the glistening chandelier of iridescent prisms.

Mrs. Gordon J. Shaw was the gracious hostess at the tea table while who presided at the stove services were Mrs. R. Chadwick Mrs. A. Campbell and Mrs. C. E. Higgs.

Some of the two groups serving included Mrs. J. A. Phillips, Mrs. Edythe Williamson, Mrs. F. Burger, Mrs. H. C. Watson, Mrs. C. Fawcett, Mrs. A. Argue, Mrs. B. Ketcheson, Mrs. L. Reynolds and Miss Mary Louise Skinner. Those who replenished were Mrs. J. Marshall, Mrs. G. Robertson, Mrs. G. Pollman, Mrs. H. Mockridge, Mrs. R. W. Smith and Mrs. A. Argue.

HOMEBAKING

Convening the homebaking table, which was situated in the music room overlooking the bay, were Mrs. R. Pickard and Mrs. G. Glendenon, assisted by Mrs. A. Charlin, Mrs. J. Fullerton, Mrs. R. Ketcheson, Mrs. R. Mott and Mrs. J. Hayman. There was a fine assortment of pies, cookies, cakes, chocolate macaroons, angel cakes, lemon tarts, lemon squares, date loaves, coffee rolls and a basket of fresh leaf lettuce in aid of the salad bowl.

Another little table with some gorgeous pink and white Canterbury bells, presided over by Mrs. R. Ketcheson, displayed samples of bridge table covers, in various kinds of felt, adorned with hand-fashioned white daisies and other colorful flowers. Orders for Christmas gifts, and for other occasions were taken.

The tea and, after, many guests availed themselves of the opportunity of viewing the lovely rose gardens, bituminous begonias and pansies, which in their arrangements and walks carried one across the sea to the lands where flowers bloom unceasingly.

A delightful tea, and pleasingly successful, mid beautiful surroundings.

ROSE GARDENS

Most types of roses require deep, rich, substantial soil for best results in growth.

TO BE SWEETHEART OF SIGMA CHI

At the end of Canadian convention of the Sigma Chi fraternity in Toronto, there'll be a new sweetheart for the 75,000 fraternity brothers to think about. She'll be Maureen Cherry, of Vancouver, left, or Judy Johansen, Northwestern University, Illinois, centre, or Suzanne Bowden, University of Alabama. They are the finalists in a contest to decide the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," who is elected after the regular business of the convention has been attended to.

Power of the bomb surprised the scientists who designed it but radioactive fallout was said to be very slight.

Metro Unlikely To Get Leave To Fluoridate

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto officials have indicated they will ask the Ontario government for legislation soon to permit fluoridation of Toronto's water supply. But their appeal is not likely to be accepted.

Provincial officials said Wednesday they are "delighted" with the Supreme Court of Canada ruling that municipalities lack the right to order fluoridation of their water supplies.

Officials said they have always opposed "cramming down people's throats" medical treatments.

Metropolitan Chairman Fred Gardiner said: "It now is up to the province to clarify the whole situation."

Metro Unlikely To Get Leave To Fluoridate

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto officials have indicated they will ask the Ontario govern- ment for legislation soon to permit fluoridation of Toronto's water supply. But their appeal is not likely to be accepted.

Provincial officials said Wednes- day they are "delighted" with the Supreme Court of Canada ruling that municipalities lack the right to order fluoridation of their water supplies.

Officials said they have always opposed "cramming down people's throats" medical treatments.

Metropolitan Chairman Fred Gardiner said: "It now is up to the province to clarify the whole situation."

GETS SIX MONTHS

TORONTO (CP)—A lawyer said to have been overtaken by debts contracted partly through his own gullibility was sentenced Wednes- day to six months in jail for stealing $54,700 from clients. The lawyer, Carl Herman, 34, was dis- barred two days ago.

Liberal Workers Forged Over 195 Names Is Claim

TORONTO (CP) — An RCMP handwriting expert has testified three Liberal party workers forged between 195 and 364 voters' signatures on federal election forms in Toronto St. Paul's riding.

Sgt. Roy Huber, a document examiner at the RCMP's laboratories in Ottawa, was a witness Wednesday at Chief Justice J. C. McRuer's inquiry into irregularities in revision of St. Paul's voters' lists during the election campaign.

He said party worker Nora Conacher had written all or most of 100 signatures—and possibly another 61—on applications for inclusion on the voters' lists.

She had denied signing any Tuesday.

He said Mrs. Kathleen Vollum, who had admitted signing "at least seven," signed 18.

Sgt. Huber Thomas Middleton forged all or most of 99 signatures and possibly another eight.

REPUDIATED ADMISSIONS

Middleton had earlier repudiated statements he had made admitting forgeries. His later position was that he had signed only four—one for a woman with mutilated hands, another for a drunk and a third with an alias in addition to one with his proper signature.

Chief Justice McRuer asked him: "Do you realize that if you tell what is not true at this inquiry you may be prosecuted for perjury?"

He did not answer. The judge repeated his question.

"Yes," replied Middleton.

"With that in mind do you want to make any change in your evidence?"

Middleton hesitated. "I could have signed some but which ones I don't know."

When Miss Conacher was recalled to the witness stand Senator David Croll, representing Liberal candidate James Rooney, asked that himself or another Liberal lawyer be permitted to act as her legal adviser. She had no other.

Chief Justice McRuer said this would embarrass both Miss Conacher and Rooney's advisers. It would be better if she had an independent counsel.

The senator agreed, with the reservation that a counsel who had missed part of the hearing would be handicapped.

Senator Croll described Sgt. Huber's evidence as technical and unexpected. "It would take two weeks and $2,000 to have another expert check it so that the ends of justice would be achieved, he said.

U.S. SCIENTISTS REPORT ATOM BOMB WITH NO FALLOUT

Four top U.S. atom scientists have reported to President Eisenhower that atom weapons now can be produced with essentially no radio-active fallout. Left to right, Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, Atomic Energy Commission chairman Lewis L. Strauss; Dr. Edward Teller, known as the father of the H-bomb, and Dr. Mark M. Mills. It is believed that they recommended that the atom bomb tests continue in spite of the world-wide demand that all tests cease.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was taking a walk with pop to help his appetite, and I mean went past talking a fortin language and waving their hands to make it more intristing, and I said, Are they talking Dutch, pop?

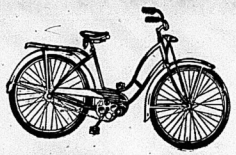
No, they're speaking French, pop said, and I said, G, pop, can you speek French?

No, pop said, and I said, Then gosh, how could you tell?

I must have a naturel gift for languages, pop said, and I said, Oh boy, pop, I wish I could talk 8 languages. Do you think anybody can, pop? I said.

Yes indeed, they tern on the difrent languages just like terning on the hot or the cold water, pop said, and I said, But hot and cold water would only be 2 languages, not five.

The other 3 would be like terning on lukewarm, boiling and salty pop said, and I said, Anyways, pop, would it take a long time for me to learn 5 diffrent languages?



It surely would, and all that time would be full of work, pop said, and I said, Heck.

Dont be discourraged, I have another suggestion for you, pop said. Just learn English as well that you can write grate books in it, and you'll be translated into all the languages of Europe and Asia without even bothering to learn to speek them, he said, and I said, Oh boy, then that's what I'll do.

Which maybe I will, being pritty good already writing compositions for school even with my spelling still kind of bum.

Strike Staged By Non-Whites

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Eighty per cent of non-white workers stayed away from work in Johannesburg Wed. in a one-day "day of freedom" protest strike against the South African government's racial segregation laws.

The usually teeming market was described as "dead," with no Indian buyers and African workers present.

No incidents were reported. There were no strikes in the gold mines of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State where the labor forces live in special compounds.

Blind Want More To Maintain Seeing-Eye Dog

HAMILTON (CP)—The monthly cost of maintaining a seeing-eye dog is more than the $46 granted by the government for the upkeep of a blind person, says an official of the Canadian Federation of the Blind.

National Secretary Rodney Young, commenting on subjects under discussion during the society's three-day convention which opened here Wednesday, said resolutions will be presented urging an increase to $60 a month of blind pensions; revision of earning limitations for persons receiving the pensions and establishment of a school for blind children to serve the prairie provinces.

The federation, which celebrates its 30th anniversary this year, acts independently of the federally-sponsored Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Its chief problems are education of blind persons, particularly children, and adequate pensions. Mr. Young said seeing-eye dogs were provided in large numbers by European governments to assist their blind populations. In Canada, the cost of maintaining such dogs, about $50 a month, is considered excessive and few sightless Canadians have them.

Education facilities for blind children is considered inadequate by the federation. Some 30 per cent of the pupils at the CNIB school at Brantford are from the Prairies.

'Drys' Triumph In Two South Ontario Centres

TORONTO (CP) — The "drys" triumphed convincingly in liquor plebiscites held Wednesday in two Southern Ontario centres.

Beer and liquor outlets were rejected by voters in Tara, a Bruce County village about 12 miles west of Owen Sound, and in Wainfleet Township, a predominantly rural district near Welland on Lake Erie.

Tara recorded a 95 per cent turnout of its 345 eligible voters, a record for the village, in defeating by almost a 2-to-1 margin proposals for men's and women's beverage rooms, dining lounges and cocktail lounges.

Wainfleet voted more than three to one against men's and women's beverage rooms, dining and cocktail lounges and the sale of beer and wine with meals. Some 77.5 per cent of the electorate of 3,200 voted.

NEED 60 PER CENT

A 60-per-cent vote in favor of outlets is required before the Liquor Control Board of Ontario may consider applications for licences.

The figures:

In Tara—men's beverage room —for 111, against 202; women's beverage room—for 104, against 205; dining lounge—for 106, against 202; cocktail lounge — for 102, against 206.

In Wainfleet — Consumption of beer on licensed premises with men and women admitted—418 for, 1,290 against; consumption of beer on licensed premises for men only—365 for, 1,333 against; sale of beer and wine with meals—395 for, 1,319 against; dining lounges— 387 for, 1,304 against; cocktail lounges—365 for, 1,308 against.

Crabb's Mother Says He Died Serving Country

LONDON (Reuters) — A new mystery developed today in the case of frogman Lionel Crabb.

A coroner ruled Wednesday that the body of a headless, handless man found in a Sussex river was that of the former naval commander, but said the cause of death could not be determined.

Crabb, 46-year-old wartime Royal Navy hero, disappeared a year ago April during the visit to Britain of Russia's Premier Bulganin and Communist Chief Khrushchev.

Crabb embarked on a secret mission in the Portsmouth area while Russian warships were at anchor there. The Russians spotted him and protested.

NEW STATEMENT

British officials denied that Crabb was working for the government. There have been allegations he was working for foreign countries.

The new element of mystery was injected by Crabb's mother, Mrs. Beatrice Crabb, who instructed her lawyer to issue a statement saying that Crabb died in the service of his country.

"There have been irresponsible conjectures regarding the last operation upon which Commander Crabb was engaged prior to his disappearance, including even suggestions that he was in the employ of a foreign power," said lawyer A. W. Geddes.

"It is desired therefore to emphasize that every particle of evidence in our possession points conclusively to the fact that this very gallant gentleman died, as he had lived, in the service of our country and of no other."

Asked to elaborate, Geddes said: "I cannot say any more—my hands are tied."

NAMED CO-RESPONDENT

LONDON (AP) — Danny Chamoun, 23-year-old son of the president of Lebanon, today was named as co-respondent in a divorce suit. Victor Silvester Jr., 33, son of a well known dance band leader, cited Chamoun in suing his wife, Patti Morgan, one of Britain's top models. Miss Morgan, an Australian, is not contesting the suit.

PICTON JUDGE

Rose was one of 19 persons fund guilty of espionage after the disclosures in 1945 of Igor Gouzenko, former cipher clerk at the Russian Embassy here, who detected with evidence of a Russian spy ring in Canada. Gouzenko now is a Canadian citizen living "somewhere in Canada."

Of the 10, nine, including Rose, were sentenced to terms ranging between two and six years. All have served their terms and now are free. The other paid a $500 fine. Nine others were charged but were acquitted.

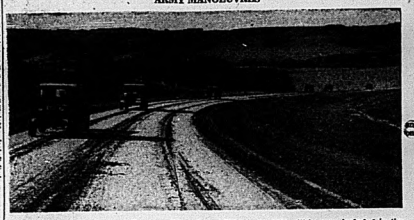
Rose came to Canada in 1920 and grew up in Montreal. He was an electrician by trade.

FIRST LPP IN HOUSE

He was a member of the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party and was elected to the House of Commons under the LPP banner at a byelection in Montreal Cartier Aug. 9, 1943. He was the only LPP member ever elected to Parliament.

Ater his conviction June 20, 1946, he automatically lost his seat in Parliament and served four years; and seven months of his six-year sentence in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, near Montreal.

He was released Aug. 9, 1951, and slipped away behind the Iron Curtain, first to Czechoslovakia, in late 1953. His family joined him early in 1954.



In 1955, there were reports in Montreal that the Roses were "fed up" with life behind the Iron Curtain and were thinking of coming back to Canada.

Former immigration minister Pickersgill said then the government could do nothing "at the present time" to prevent the Rose family from returning to Canada. They were Canadian citizens.

Murdockville Miners Lose $1,000,000 in Wages so Far Due to Lengthy Walkout

MURDOCKVILLE, Que. (CP)—A lengthy walkout at this fledling town's only industry has cost workers and the company millions of dollars, cut business by half, and delayed the process of hewing a new community out of the Gaspe wilderness.

Officials of Gaspe Copper Mines Limited, where a long labor dispute erupted into a strike March 11, say the workers have lost more than $1,000,000 in wages so far.

Roger Bedard, spokesman for the striking United Steelworkers of America (CLC) counters that the company has lost more than $7,000,000 in profits "and the public is finding them a lot more than it's hurting us."

TRADE BADLY HIT

Businessmen in the new town in the Gaspe peninsula hills say the effects of the strike will be felt long after a settlement is reached.

"Even if this strike is settled tomorrow — and it certainly doesn't look as if it will—it will be months before business returns to normal," said one of the owners of the town's only hotel.

The dispute that led to the strike began a year ago when the USWA organized the workers. Claiming membership of 95 per cent of the employees, it applied to the Quebec labor relations board for certification.

Before a decision on the application was announced, the company charged omissions and illegalities by the board in dealing with the request and obtained a writ of prohibition freezing all proceedings in the case.

AUTOMATIC CHALLENGE

By its action the company automatically challenged an article in the Quebec Labor Relations Act stipulating that none of the board's decisions can be appealed or reversed by the courts. The same clause is also being contested in another certification dispute which is expected to set the pattern for a decision in the Murdockville case.

The writ was granted the company last August. The strike started this March following the termination of employment of Theo Gagne, president of the union local here. The company said he was laid off because his duties had been completed. The union argued he was fired and called the strike of 1,000 employees.

Also involved are union demands for average wage increases of 50 cents an hour, which it says will bring pay to a par with employees of the International Nickel Company mines at Sudbury, Ont. Basic wages here when the strike began were $1.07 an hour for laborers, $1.40 for miners and $1.66 for smelter workers.

The company says one reason wages here are lower is that employees have less experience in mining.

"Most of these men were fishermen and farmers before the mine opened," said a company official. "It takes time for them to learn their new jobs and while they're learning they don't produce as much as experienced miners."

BIG ENTERPRISE

Although the greenish rock that indicates copper was reported here during the time of Samuel de Champlain, it wasn't until five years ago that Gaspe Copper, a subsidiary of Noranda Mines, announced it was prepared to spend $300,000,000 to extract the mineral.

To do so, the company had to establish a town in a mountainous area previously known only to hunters and fishermen. It sank a shaft into the side of a mountain and built a concentrator and smelter. Homes were built for workers.

At present about 2,500 persons are living in the town but the population is expected to increase to more than 5,000 in the future.

Murdockville sits in a valley in the Shickshock Mountains, 2,000 feet above sea level and 30 miles inland from the shore of the St. Lawrence River port which the company plans eventually to ship its copper to Montreal by freighter for refining.

At present, the copper goes by truck over a hilly and bumpy highway to the port on Gaspe Village and from there to Montreal by rail.

SUBMARINE POWER CABLE

When the Murdockville project started there was no adequate power supply in the south shore of the St. Lawrence River. The Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission undertook the laying of a cable under the river from Manicouagan, on the power-rich north shore, to Les Boules.

After a year of technical trouble the link was successfully completed early in 1956 and power flowed along 146-mile overland lines from Les Boules to Murdockville.

The community itself has been set up on a company-town basis though it is technically an open town since individuals can buy property.

The mayor is the local bank manager but the four town councillors are all company employees and include W. G. Brissenden, the company manager. The mayor and council were appointed by the provincial cabinet in 1953 for a five-year term.

The original plan was for the first municipal election to be held next year but it now appears this may be delayed.

SC Candidate Wins Recount

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C. (CP)—Tom Irwin, former Speaker of the British Columbia legislature, Wednesday was confirmed as winner of the Burnaby-Richmond seat in the Commons by a margin of 59 votes.

The Social Credit candidate had an edge of 30 votes in the first count by the electoral returning officer for the June 10 federal vote.

Progressive Conservative John Drysdale, closest opponent in the four-way contest, asked for a recount.

It was completed Wednesday and increased Mr. Irwin's edge over the Conservative to 59 votes. More than 36,000 ballots were examined by county court Judge F. K. Grimmett and lawyers for the two candidates.

Final figures:

Irwin 7,998; Drysdale 7,940; Robert Pritlie (CCF) 7,662; Goode 7,121; rejected ballots 261.

How to Tell Sex of Whoopers Still Unknown After Parley

OTTAWA (CP)—How do you tell whether a whooping crane is male or female?

This question remained unanswered Wednesday as delegates from across Canada closed their annual federal-provincial wildlife conference.

It was raised by Dr. D. A. Munro, Canadian wildlife service whooper expert and member of a Canadian-U.S. committee trying to bring together two Texas whoopers with matrimony in mind.

One bird is at San Antonio and another at Aransas and officials hope, if they are brought together, they will have young in captivity.

Steps were being taken to clear the project with U.S. officials.

Dr. Munro said there are only 27 whoopers known to be in existence. Nine of the old-white cranes are now nesting in Wood Buffalo National Park.

Earlier, the conference room in Parliament's centre block echoed to the call of the wild goose when a demonstration of a controversial electronic hunting device was made by a U.S. game official.

The chattering of ducks and geese feeding and calls of the waterfowl were so realistic the conference passed a resolution calling for strict control of the use of the device in Canada.

Manitoba's director of game, G. W. Malaher of Winnipeg, told the conference that Canada's deer would have to be culled to ensure healthy populations.

"There is a lot of sentiment against cropping deer," but Canada had to be impressed with the importance of a systematic harvest.

Over - population would result only in the death of the white-tailed deer by starvation.

The conference passed 10 resolutions, including a request for federal-provincial control of pollution of Canadian waterways; control of the interprovincial sale and shipment of poison used in killing animals; legislation by which the federal wildlife service could assist the provinces in wildlife research; and proposed the establishment of a Canadian fur council to stimulate the sale of Canadian furs at home and abroad.

INVESTIGATE POSS IBLE SABOTAGE

Sabre jets of No. 3 fighter wing at Zweibrucken, Germany, are ready for action during an "alert" exercise. The RCAF is investigating the possibility of sabotage in a recent series of jet crashes at the base. Four airmen have been killed since May 20. An RCAF spokesman said investigations so far do not point to sabotage but that is a possibility still being investigated. (CP from National Defence).

Geiger Counter, Radioactive Material Being Used to See How Queen Bee Buzzing

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal scientists are using a geiger counter and radioactive material to see what's buzzing with the queen bee.

Staff of the agriculture department's bee division, under Dr. Cecil A. Jamieson, are conducting the experiments in a little cabin behind their Ottawa station.

The thorax or trunk of the queen bee is dabbed with some radioactive material. The "nozzle" of the geiger counter, placed at the entrance to a bee colony in the cabin, keeps track of her movements, transmitting them to a recorder.

DISPROVE THEORY

So far, the federal bee keepers have been able to disprove the theory that a queen bee mates only once.

"They mate an average of seven times," said Dr. Jamieson. The station has 250 colonies with about 75,000 bees to a colony.

Scientists at the experimental farm station here and at other federal farms across the country are studying the problems of pollination and disease as well as the habits of the bee. Research is also being done on a tougher type of bee for colder climates.

Dr. Jamieson was born on a farm near Harris, Ont., and graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College, Macdonald College and Cornell University. He has been with the bee division since 1938 and director since 1949.

STUDYING DISEASES

Specializing in the diseases of adult bees, especially the queen, he is collecting queen bees from across the country for research.

One arrived by mail during the interview in a container about half the size of a package of cigarets, complete with candy and water, and a bee to feed the queen.

"I have to kill these," said Dr. Jamieson as the workers buzzed frantically and the queen was dropped in a jar of alcohol, to kill and preserve her.

He couldn't put them with colonies outside the building because the "guard" bees would kill them as "strangers" anyway. Bees guarding entrances to hives pounce on bees from other colonies the minute they try to enter.

EASY REMEDY

Joe Austin of Toronto, a graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College, displayed the geiger counter and warned a nervous reporter to walk slowly and carefully as he took him through colonies of about 150,000 swarming bees.

No one was stung, but Mr. Austin suggested if there was a sting, "just pull out the stinger—fast."

The stinger is about 3-16th of an inch long, topped by a tiny poison sac. The poison which causes swelling goes into the body from the sac through the stinger if left in the skin.

"Don't grab at the sting or you'll squeeze the sac, injecting the poison just like a hypodermic needle," Mr. Austin said. "Scratch it out. We usually keep one fingernail long enough for the job."

"I'm in favor of it. I get exactly the same wage Henry does. He wouldn't dare keep any back!"

Labor Council Hears Address By City Editor

At their last spring meeting before recess for the summer, the Belleville and District Labor Council had another full meeting at the Odd Fellows hall, on Front Street. The guests for the evening were the city editor, Claude D. Tice, of the Belleville paper, Bro. Henry Nokes, the Canadian Labor Congress representative for this district of Peterborough, and Bro. Stan Clair, the president of the union label department of the Canadian Labor Congress of Windsor. Due to another engagement, the president called on Claude D. Tice, the city editor, so it would be possible for him to leave immediately after his address.

Mr. Tice started off his address with a complete run-down on the operation of a newspaper, starting with the publisher and so on down to the final stage of the paper reaching the householder.

The speaker has been employed with the paper for 37 years, which is a remarkable record. Mr. Tice's second subject was the Recreation Committee, which he has assisted to foster since its inception in the city and, as an alderman for 12 years, this is one project that he really knows and is dear to his heart. He stated the membership in the Senior Citizens' Club alone has risen from a mere handful to well over the hundred mark and he hoped that the city council will approve the necessary funds to renovate the building on the old Belleville Lock property and plans are to make this one of the best in the province for community functions.

DEALT WITH ARENA

Then the speaker went on to the Arena Commission, of which again he is one of the main stays. He went on to say that after a few dark seasons, the arena, with the taking over of hockey and supplying Senior "A" hockey to the district, for once it did finish the past season in the black. At the conclusion of his address, Mr. Tice held a question and answer period and, in his canny way, would not disclose any plans for this coming winter, but with a smile on his face it was plain to be seen that second place was not going to be good enough for Belleville this coming winter.

Mr. Tice was thanked for his address by the president, D. Burshaw, and a rousing round of applause from the delegates present.

The various committees reported after the regular order of business was completed and plans are under way to try and have space at the Belleville Fair for the boosting of the union label. At this time, Bro. Stan Clair, the president of the Union Label Dept., of the C.L.C., Windsor, addressed the delegates and from his address it was really interesting to hear the speaker explain just how union members can promote increased buying by demanding that an article have the union label. Plans are to be made to survey the city to see just what merchants do handle union made goods and those that don't will be asked to assist in the purchasing of union made goods. After Bro. Clair concluded his speech, the meeting adjourned until September. The president, D. Burshaw, asked each delegate to bear in mind that strength lies in unity, and thanked all for their co-operation so far this year.

The Mystery Of Amelia Earhart's Last Flight

On July 2, 1937 she took off from New Guinea on the last lap of her round-the-world flight — and was never seen again. Was she shot down over a secret Japanese base? Did she crash-land on an isolated island? Why could searchers find absolutely no trace of her?

In July Reader's Digest read the actual events leading up to this tragic mystery — and what probably happened to the world's most famous woman aviator. Get your July Reader's Digest today: 25 articles of lasting interest, condensed to save your time.

Review Planned By Government Of Eskimo Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government plans to review the old Liberal administration's policy toward Canada's Eskimo population.

Generally speaking, the Liberal policy was aimed at introducing the Eskimo gradually to the 20th century so that he would eventually be able to fit into the white man's civilization.

To this end, schools and houses are being built for Eskimos in Arctic hamlets. Northern service officers try to show them, without pushing, the advantages of community as opposed to nomadic life.

However, privately, some authorities on the Arctic argue that this policy is only destroying the Eskimo's self-reliance so that he will eventually become dependent almost entirely on the government.

CLEVER AND SHREWD

They said that the Eskimo has always been able to look after himself, to adapt himself to new ways without coaching from white men. The Eskimo was clever and shrewd. What was more, he hadn't asked for any government help.

One of the dissenting officials disputed the often-used phrase in the northern affairs department that the Eskimos are "stone-age" men.

He said this is nonsense. Two decades ago, when fur prices were good, many Eskimos had modern motor boats and rifles and made a good living as hunters and trappers.

When the bottom fell out of the fur market, the government tried to find some new means of livelihood for the Eskimo without moving him out of his native environment.

WRONG METHOD

The object might have been worthy, the dissenters say, but the method was wrong.

Instead, the Eskimos could have been brought south, especially the school-age ones. They could have been placed in schools in such places as Churchill, Man., and Goose Bay, Labrador, thus saving the large amounts of money for new schools in the arctic.

In a generation, most of the Eskimo population could have been integrated into the Canadian scene. The United States was accomplishing just such a policy in Alaska.

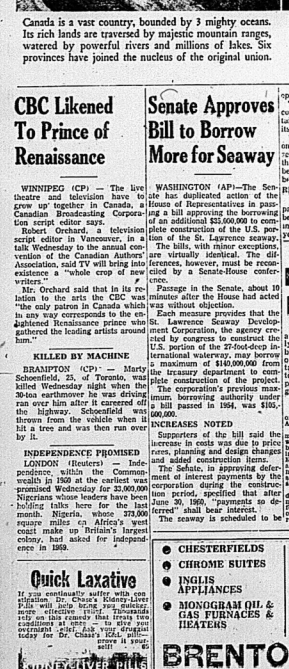
Canada Celebrates 90th Birthday



In Canada, a young people has since 1867 been steadily working its way toward a national consciousness. The really vital task since Confederation has been the creation of a great nation from the diverse elements which skilful statesmanship brought together into a central parliament. From a bold dream, the Fathers of Confederation fashioned a practical plan which down through the years has welded 10 far-flung provinces into a powerful nation.

Canada is changing from a primarily agricultural country to an industrial nation and has in recent years transferred much of its energy to new industries based on its wealth in minerals, water power and magnificent forests.

The true measure of a people lies not alone in its material wealth and in the might of its arm, but in that pursuit of liberty and learning without which no nation can achieve greatness.

Canada is a vast country, bounded by 3 mighty oceans. Its rich lands are traversed by majestic mountain ranges, watered by powerful rivers and millions of lakes. Six provinces have joined the nucleus of the original union.

Mutual aid projects, such as the Canada Dam at Massanjor, India, testify to Canada's growth in the realm of international responsibility.

A recent count reveals a population five times the figure for 1867. This has resulted not only from the birth of new babies but through the influx of eager new citizens whom older countries have, down through the decades, sent for the peopling of a new world, abounding in opportunity. Canada's story since Confederation has been one of continuing growth in those vital areas of activity by which a young country moves toward maturity.

CBC Likened To Prince of Renaissance

WINNIPEG (CP) — The live theatre and television have to grow up together in Canada, a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation script editor says.

Robert Orchard, a television script editor in Vancouver, in a talk Wednesday to the annual convention of the Canadian Authors' Association, said TV will bring into existence a "whole crop of new writers."

Mr. Orchard said that in its relation to the arts the CBC was "the only patron in Canada which in any way corresponds to the enlightened Renaissance prince who gathered the leading artists around him."

KILLED BY MACHINE

BRAMPTON (CP) — Marty Schoenfield, 25, of Toronto, was killed Wednesday night when the 30-ton earthmover he was driving ran over him after it careered off the highway. Schoenfield was thrown from the vehicle when it hit a tree and was then run over by it.

INDEPENDENCE PROMISED

LONDON (Reuters) — Independence within the Commonwealth in 1960 at the earliest was promised Wednesday for 32,000,000 Nigerians whose leaders have been holding talks here for the last month. Nigeria, whose 373,000 square miles in Africa's west coast make up Britain's largest colony, had asked for independence in 1959.

Senate Approves Bill to Borrow More for Seaway

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has duplicated action of the House of Representatives in passing a bill approving the borrowing of an additional $37,000,000 to complete construction of the U.S. portion of the St. Lawrence seaway.

The bills, with minor exceptions, are virtually identical. The differences, however, must be reconciled by a Senate-House conference.

Passage in the Senate, about 10 minutes after the House had acted was without objection.

Each measure provides that the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, the agency created by congress to construct the U.S. portion of the 27-foot-deep international waterway, may borrow a maximum of $140,000,000 from the treasury department to complete construction of the project.

The corporation's previous maximum borrowing authority under a bill passed in 1954, was $105,600,000.

INCREASES NOTED

Supporters of the bill said the increase in costs was due to price rises, planning and design changes and added construction items.

The Senate, in approving deferment of interest payments by the corporation during the construction period, specified that after June 30, 1959, "payments to be deferred" shall bear interest.

The seaway is scheduled to be opened early in 1959.

The Senate foreign relations committee's report on the bill contained one sentence that explained its prompt passage. It said:

"Unless the bill is passed, work on the American portion of the seaway will come to a halt, and the $100,000,000 which has already been committed to the project will be lost."

REPAY FROM TOLLS

Under the terms of the bill passed by the House loans are to be repaid from toll collections during a period not to exceed 50 years.

The seaway, a joint enterprise with Canada, will provide ocean-going shipping direct access from the Atlantic to the Great Lakes.

Representative John Blatnik (Dem. Minn.), who introduced the House bill, said that although the increase in borrowing authority is only 33 per cent "actual increase in construction cost is practically 100 per cent."

"The basic construction cost," he said, "has risen from $66,815,000 in 1953 to $133,000,000 in 1957, an increase of $66,185,000 or almost 100 per cent."

He said 50 per cent of the overall increase resulted from the addition of construction items.

He said he was "convinced there was "absolutely no intention" on the part of planning engineers to mislead Congress "by filing a low estimate just to get the 'camel's head under the tent.'"

Representative George Fallon (Dem. Md.) a vigorous opponent of the seaway authorization bill when it was enacted in 1954, said:

"There is no telling what the ultimate bill (for the seaway) will be when you consider that connecting channels and harbors in the Great Lakes must be deepened to accommodate larger ships."

He said the cost of such work might equal that of the seaway and, he added, "there'll be no tolls to pay for it."

Backache; Aching Leg Muscles; Bad Stomach

When the stomach is upset and food fails to digest properly, when poor kidney action brings on night rising, backache or rheumatic aches and pains, take a short treatment of Syrotana Herbal Compound and experience the grand relief it gives.

2 Years' Suffering

Here for example, is the experience of Mrs. Sylvia Bourgeoy, 668 Lorne Avenue, London, Ontario, who says:

"For two years I was unable to sleep at night and my nerves were so bad that the muscles in the back of my neck would tense up causing terrific headaches and backaches. My kidneys often disturbed my sleep as much as 4 or 5 times during the night. All in all I was tired out with no satisfaction. My stomach would add misery after my meals.

"Recently I read about Syrotana and decided to try it. To my surprise I noticed in only a few days that my food was digesting better. So I kept on taking it and now I have the final relief from those aches and pains. I eat better without distress afterwards, my nerves are calmed down and the kidney irritation is so improved that I am getting more sound restful sleep during the night. All in all I am feeling like a million in the mornings and have more energy."

Syrotana is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan the Druggist.

Merchants Hold Off Madoc To Win 7-5

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Belleville Merchants built a five run margin in the early innings and held off a late uprising by Madoc to defeat the tail-end village crew 7-5 in a Belleville and District softball league game last night.

Southpaw Bobby Green held Madoc hitless over the first six frames while his mates forged ahead 5-0. He lost his no - hit bid in the seventh when the visitors cut the margin by three. Belleville got a pair back in their half but Madoc struck for single tallies in each of the final two frames for the close 7-5 score.

Green went the route and was touched for five hits in all. He allowed only two runners during the first four frames, both on walks. The Merchant hurler struck out eight but walked nine.

The winners combed Madoc pitcher Ken Pigden for nine assorted safeties. Pigden claimed one strikeout victim while walking four.

Two walks, followed by an out, an error, gave the Merchants two runs in the second. Another miscue, a single and an infield out made it 3-0 in the fourth.

Claude Carr tripled, Green walked, Wayne Brown doubled and Guidolin singled for the other pair in the fifth before a double play quelled the rally. Green was in trouble in the top of the fifth when two walks and a dropped third strike filled the sacks with none out. A force play at home, a strikeout and another force at third ended the frame without damage.

DeMille singled for Madoc's first hit in the seventh following a walk. They went on to score three on Pigden's single, another walk and a fielder's choice. Barclay walked, Claude Carr placed a bunt down first with Barclay taking third to open the Merchants' seventh. Green drove in Barclay with a fly and Brown singled Carr across.

Hagerman singled, Whiteman walked and DeMille also hit safely for one Madoc tally. They bagged their fifth on another walk and Hagerman's long triple in the ninth. Green got the final out with the tying runs on third and home.

Claude Carr, the Merchants' leading batter, upped his average with a triple, double and single in four trips. Floyd Crawford had a triple and single and

Committee Boss Says

Brooklyn Has Lost Battle To Retain Beloved Dodgers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Celler, a Democrat from Brooklyn, said today the borough has lost its battle to keep the Dodgers.

Celler sought for 2½ hours Wednesday to pin down Dodger president Walter O'Malley on the Brooklyn baseball club's future. O'Malley was testifying before a house anti-trust subcommittee which is considering legislation on application of the anti-trust laws to professional sports.

O'Malley said he is not committed to moving the Dodgers to Los Angeles—but that people in that west coast city are "working very rapidly and very intelligently" to get the National League team there.

Celler asked O'Malley point-blank whether the Dodgers will play in Los Angeles next year, and the Dodger president replied: "I do not know the answer."

But today, Celler told newsmen: "He's over the brink. He has made up his mind. He can't very well say now that he'll move—it would ruin attendance this season."

The subcommittee recessed its hearings after its session with O'Malley.

It announced resumption of hearings July 10, with about three more days of baseball testimony in sight, as well as witnesses speaking for football and hockey.

Wayne Brown a double and single. Rep Guidolin and Doug Bone also hit safely.

Clare Hagerman with a triple and single and DeMille with two base hits topped the losers with Pigden getting the other knocks.

Canadian Open May Attract 140 Golfers

MONTREAL (CP) — Entries for the $20,000 open golf tournament, starting July 4 over the Montreal Islesmere course, stood at 136 Wednesday and are expected to reach 160 or more.

Tournament manager Ken Murray said the field will include all previous winners of the tournament that had its inaugural in 1953. They are Doug Ford, winner of the Masters this year, Bud Holscher, Gene Littler and Bill Casper.

Murray said his guess is that anyone firing 274 for the 72-hole distance will be the winner. Islesmere's par is 72 and the competitive record for the course is 65, set by the host club pro, Stan Horne.

The 72-hole record is 283, shot in 1945 by Byron Nelson. At that time, however, rains had so drenched the course that regulations were made for preferred lies, allowing the ball to be moved.

What now has become a one-day preliminary show by National Hockey League golfers will be staged July 3. This year, for the first time, all six hockey clubs will be represented by two-man teams. They are:

Montreal Canadiens, Jean Beliveau and Bernie Geoffrion; Boston Bruins, Johnny Pierson and Fleming Mackell; Toronto Maple Leafs, Ted Kennedy and Jim Morrison; Detroit Red Wings, Gordie Howe and Marcel Pronovost; Chicago Black Hawks, Johnny Wilson and Glen Skov; New York Rangers, Jean-Guy Gendron and Lorne (Gump) Worsley.

The hockey stars will play in four threesomes. The two-man team with low medal score for 18 holes will win the Conn Smythe trophy The Kiwanis Club of Montreal will provide a prize this year for the individual low scorer.

Rates Musial Best Player In Baseball

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Eddie Stanky, who has observed the top stars of both leagues in his 14 years in the majors as a player, manager and coach, rates Stan Musial as the greatest all-around player in baseball today.

The former manager of St. Louis Cardinals who now is coach under Kerby Farrell at Cleveland, in reply to a series of questions, made the following observations:

1. The best hitter—Ted Williams.

2. The most powerful batter—Mickey Mantle.

3. The best defensive player and base stealer—Willie Mays.

4. The player with the greatest potential—Mantle.

5. The most exciting player—Mays.

6. The greatest all around player —Stan Musial.

"Musial," Stanky said, "is the best conditioned 36-year-old athlete I have ever had the pleasure of seeing. He is more spry and agile than a man 10 years his junior. I select him as the greatest all around player today because of "1. His tremendous batting eye and ability to hit any kind of pitch to all fields.

"2. His inspirational effect on his teammates.

"3. His wonderful temperament and the way he handles himself under adverse conditions.

"4. His great baseball instinct to make the right play at the right time.

"5. His tremendous team play and insistence on playing despite injuries or illness.

"6. His utter lack of first person complex."

Wins Walking Race in Mercy Effort

NORTH BAY (CP) — Laurant Oiano of the French island of St. Pierre, off the south coast of Newfoundland, Wednesday won a 30-mile charity walking race from South River to Callander.

The walk was staged to raise funds for Alfred Wyley of South River, victim of a spinal disease.

Each entry had a sponsor from among district merchants who contributed $1 for each mile his man covered. The 21 entries raised $600.

Second was Pierre Flowers of Montreal followed by "Crazy Legs" Guglehr of South River. The winning time was 5½ hours.

Doctors say Wyley, the father of one child, will die unless he receives medical attention in the United States.

Ten walkers finished the grind and all of the entries covered at least 18 miles.

VILLAGE QUEEN WINS

BOTHWELL, Ont.- (CP) — Village Queen, owned by Clair Hazzy of Seaforth, captured the 2:30 event from a field of 16 horses in the Bothwell Driving Club's first race card of the season Wednesday.

The race was run in four heats. Village Queen captured both the second qualifying heat and the final.

On the Tracks

CHICAGO (AP) — Calumet Farm's silver anniversary as a golden era of fast horses and fat purses will be celebrated today at Arlington Park, scene of Warren Wright's first turf victory.

It was June 27, 1932, when a horse named Warren Jr., after Wright's son, and ridden by Earl Sloffen, sped 5½ furlongs and won $650.

His was the lone win scored by Calumet in 1932, a year that brought in only $4,160 in total earnings.

Since that time, 1,540 other Calumet thoroughbred horses have entered the winner's circle, making Calumet's devil red and blue silks a highly respected competitor. In 25 years, right down to this week, the stable's thoroughbreds have won more than $18,500,000.

Such turf greats as Citation, Whirlaway, Bewitch and Twilight Tear have carried the colors of Calumet and won.

Following today's fifth race, the Calumet Farm trainers Ben and Jimmy Jones will be presented sterling silver gifts by executive director Benjamin F. Lindheimer, and Mrs. William T. Young, Jr., wife of Arlington's new president.

Six of Calumet's thoroughbreds have won the Kentucky Derby—Whirlaway, Pensive, Ponder, Citation Hill Gail and Iron Liege. Whirlaway, in 1941, and Citation, in 1948, were triple crown winners.

Warren Wright died in 1950 and since then his widow, now Mrs. Gene Markey, has directed the Calumet operations.

BOSTON (AP) — Greek Spy came from far back under the capable handling of jockey Eric Guerin for a one-length victory Wednesday in the $97,800 Massachusetts Handicap at Suffolk Downs.

The four-year-old colt, owned by Mrs. C. Ulrick Bay, closed with a tremendous burst of speed in the sixteth to overtake the field in the 1¼-mile race.

Ilusionist also fought from behind but was unable to catch the flying Greek Spy and finished second. Nick York, in second place from the first quarter mile to the stretch, willed and wound up third.

Greek Spy was clocked in 2:03 1-5 and earned $39,190.

George D. Widener's Jester turned on the power in the final furlong to win the 10th running of the $35,840 colt division of the National Stallion Stakes for two-year-olds at Belmont Park, New York.

Jester, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, stepped the five furlongs in :56 2-5. Jimmier finished second and Clandestine was third.

The victory was worth $20,085. Porterhouse, owned by Llangollen Farm, scored a six-length victory in the $20,000 Speedo-Spare Handicap at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Calif.

Porterhouse won with room to spare, with jockey Johnny Longden easing up at the end of the seven-furlong race, timed in 1:21 1-5.

Liberal Art was second, and El Rhobar, stakes star from New Zealand, third.

Beau Fond captured the 11th running of the $18,700 Long Branch Handicap at Monmouth Park, Oceanport, N.J., by a length over favored Cedrus.

Owned by Mrs. Henry H. Hecht, Beau Fond ran the 1 1-16 miles in 1:45 1-5 over a sloppy track. The four-year-old earned $10,680.

Combustion 2nd was third.

Fred W. Hooper's Alhambra led all the way and nosed out Leather Button in a photo finish to capture the $17,750 Primer Stakes at Arlington Park, Arlington Heights, Ill.

Third was Rellim S. W., finishing 1¼ lengths behind Leather Button.

Alhambra was clocked in 1:06 3-5 for the 5½ furlongs. The victory netted Hooper $10,755.

Yesterday's Stars

Pitching: Connie Johnson, Baltimore—Allowed only three singles, walked none and struck out four to beat Kansas City 1-0 for third consecutive shutout by Oriole staff in duel with Arnie Portocarrero.

Hitting: Dee Fondy, Pittsburgh —Rapped seven hits in 11 trips, three doubles, to gain 14 points in doubleheader and take league batting lead at .363 as Bucs beat Chicago Cubs 15-5, then tied 5-5 in nightcap called after 11 innings because of darkness.

BASS SEASON OPENS MONDAY

The preliminaries of the season's piscatorial tournament are over. The "brookies" and others of the trout class have had their day. Fighters, some of them, but the majority are nautical ring craftsmen. Now comes the day of the main bout scrappers.

On Monday, Kid Black Bass and Mike Muskellunge step into the fight picture. And if you think either of these veteran scrappers are set-ups you're just guessing. Kid Bass, as the oldest fish-quoin extant states "pound for pound is the gamest fish alive." Mike Muskellunge has never been known to "take a dive," in boxing parlance, that is.

There has been no change in the official opening date as many anglers have surmised, according to requests received here. Some of the casting clan have been under the impression that the date was set forward to Saturday, June 29, on account of the long holiday week-end, but the departmental brass says "No". It is Monday, July 1st, hereabouts—and that's that.

However, there has been one important change. The regulations call for a day limit bag of six bass with no size limit. Last year this meant the first six fish caught constituted the bag regardless of size. This year, you do not have to take the small fry providing they are in more or less healthy condition. You can throw them back and wait until you get a lot of the good "keeper" size. But remember, a fish that is injured to the extent that it may die must not be thrown back.

With good weather prevailing it is expected the weekend will see the greatest exodus of bass fishermen in the history of the district. Based on reports received to date the fighting brownbacks, both small and largemouth, are in plenitude in river, lake, swamp, marsh and morass this year.

The water has been low all spring and early summer and with the weed production not yet reached its peak, bass fishing should be extremely good. The diet hasn't changed. You will be able to get the fighting smalls and larges on green frogs, minnows and worms, besides the artificial lures.

Spawned from fighting stock the black bass is a scrapper from the time he shakes off the old man's nursing shackles at the hometown gravel bar or shoal. He is an ornery cuss from birth and will tackle anything that comes near him, hungry or not. There are times, however, when he goes snooty and you can dangle lobster Newburg or stuffed crab with mushrooms under his uplifted gills and he'll shake his fins with a "no-take-a-jump" gesture.

But once he "takes holt" you'd better clear decks for action. He doesn't know the meaning of the word "uncle" until he lies gasping on the deck of your boat. He'll battle you every inch of the way—but he is well worth the struggle.

As was mentioned before, with the water levels low and the weed growth not yet at peak production, lovers of the largemouth bass should have a field day, so to speak, on Monday. This fish is reported to be in goodly numbers and can be had along the marsh fringes and swampy areas. The Rideaus and Kawartha Lakes will be the meccas for largemouth seekers for these areas produce as many largemouths as any other spots in the province.

The average size runs from two to three pounds but some lunkers tipping the scales at seven and eight pounds have been known to take the lure.

According to departmental reports, smallmouth fishing should be good in the Bay of Quinte and other district waters. There should be some battles in the Moira River and other well-known not-too-far-out-of-town spots.

The best smallmouth bass fishing this once-in-a-blue moon fisherman experienced occurred some years ago. We went with a party of five other newspapermen to the deep end of the shoals of Wanpoos in Prince Edward county. The water was clear and cold and in the depths you could see the shadowy lunkers drifting lazily, just itching for a scrap.

Over went six gobs of worms with an almost identical plop. Simultaneously six lunkers made their play and scored. The battle was on.

An hour later we had thirty-six of the finest fighting smallmouths you ever smacked a lip on. And we could, as the boatman said, "have had a bloody millrun." But being, like all newspapermen, good and upstanding citizens and cognizant of the wants of fellow anglers, we reluctantly left the spot and its army of battling bass to the lures of others of the angling fraternity.

And just in case you land a whopper which you may think is something of a record breaker, it might be interesting to know that the world's record largemouth was caught in Georgia and weighed 22 pounds four ounces. The daddy of the Canadian smallmouth specimens in Lake Nipissing a few years back and weighed nine pounds two ounces. The records say the world's top smallie was hooked in Florida and weighed 14 pounds.

The biggest smallie we ever saw hooked was caught in Vista Lake, Algonquin Park, a few years back, when we were holidaying at Killarney Lodge. Ed Riley, a lavern-keeper of Lockport, New York, who flew up there just for the bass fishing, hooked the big fella with a piece of crab meat. He weighed eight pounds, five ounces, and reaped Ed some $200 in contest money.

"Old Black Joe," as he was dubbed, was a battle-scarred old smallmouth cruiser, who had weathered several battles with hooks and sinkers. The Joe was ripped in places where he had shaken lures. At that he gave Riley a stiff hour's battle before he was boated.

Riley stated he had been coming to the lake for fourteen years looking for "Old Joe" and had hooked but lost him on several occasions. However this time did the trick, and "Old Joe" celebrated, although didn't appreciate it, with a few slugs of American bourbon.

Later, it was proven, we had told those stories in the wrong company. "Old Black Joe" turned out to be "Old Lady Josephine."

Cards Emerge From Shelling Four Points Over Redlegs; Leaders Edge Bosox, Tribe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago White Sox are still on top of the American League today but their half game lead doesn't look very big.

After their disastrous weekend in New York—they lost three out of four—Chicago backed into the lead again Tuesday as Cleveland whipped Yanks 11-2 while they downed Boston 3-1.

Wednesday night they had to call on their bullpen to check two Boston rallies and eke out a 7-5 victory over Red Sox. They had led 5-1 at the end of three innings.

Meanwhile Yanks also needed relief help in the ninth inning to beat Indians 3-1.

PITCHERS SHINE

In other games, Jim Bunning posted his eighth win for Detroit, holding Washington to six hits for a 4-1 verdict and Jim Busby figured in the fifth to the only run of the game as Connie Johnson threw-hit Kansas City 1-0.

Jim Wilson won his eighth for the White Sox but was relieved in the eighthafter Ted Lepcio's two-run homer cut the lead to 6-5. Dixie Howell came on to save the day for rising.

Les Moss and Bubba Phillips homered for the winners and Billy Klaus also homered for Boston. Willard Nixon, the loser, handed Red Sox dropped their seventh straight to Chicago.

SACRIFICE FLIES DO IT

New York scored all their runs on sacrifice flies, two of them by Hank Bauer. Johnny Kucks won his fifth with Bob Grim's help in the ninth.

Grim came on after two singles and two infield outs had produced the only Tribe run.

Bob Lemon lost it as Indians winning streak ended at four.

A three-run seventh, with Ray Boone's RBI double and J. W. Porter and Ron Samford batting in a run each with singles won for Tigers. It was the fifth straight win for Senators and Chuck Stobbs' 12th loss of the season. He has won one.

Johnson, who beat the As 2-0 with a two-hitter earlier this season, struck out four and walked none. It was the third shutout in a row for Baltimore pitching and the seventh win in nine starts for Orioles. They now are 1½ games behind fifth-place Boston.

That "hot" National League pennant pace of last year begins to look like a "runaway" compared to what's going on these days, with no less than six teams scrapping and only 10 percentage points separating the first four.

The whole league exploded under the pressure Wednesday in what was exciting, if not brilliant, baseball—with 20 home runs (one shy of the major league record for a five-game day), 125 hits and 76 runs off 25 pitchers. Of the hits, 55 were for extra bases.

Three winners had to power from behind to do it. One game ended in a tie.

After the shelling, St. Louis Cardinals retained first place by four points over Cincinnati Redlegs. Both were beaten. Third-place Philadelphia, a half game behind, walloped Chicago 11-3 and Redlegs were clobbered 17-7 by sixth-place New York Giants. The latest club to declare itself "in" on the pennant fight.

DODGERS FIFTH

Milwaukee's fourth-place Braves, also a half game back and within two points of Redlegs, battered Brooklyn 13-5, leaving Dodgers in fifth, two games behind—and only 1½ ahead of Giants.

Pittsburgh quit the cellar in a doubleheader with Chicago Cubs, winning 15-5 to plunk Bruins back to eighth before a 5-5 tie was called after 11 innings because of darkness.

Southpaw Curt Simmons got away with a nine-hitter for his seventh win as Cards' Stan Musial loaded 16 hits, handing Lindy McDaniel a fourth defeat. Rookie Harry Anderson got a lift for with a homer that triggered a three-run sixth inning. Phils; led by Chico Fernandez, 4-for-5 and three runs batted in, got four more in the seventh. Rookie Jack Bob Miller, an 18-year-old, $25,000 bonus kid making his debut, with three runs in the ninth on three hits and three walks.

20-HIT BARRAGE

Giants won their 11th in the last 15 games as Bobby Thomson drove in five runs and Willie Mays four. Both were 4-for-4 jobs. Mays' 20-hit barrage that nailed Johnny Klippstein with a decision for his loss. Sal Maglie won his second in relief.

Milwaukee crunched Don Newcombe with seven runs on four homers, one short of the major league record off one pitcher in one game. It was Hank Aaron, Eddie Mathews and Wes Covington who hit successive homers in the fifth to narrow Brooklyn's lead to 9-7. It was the second time this season Newk has given up three in a row. Braves bagged it with six in the sixth off Clem Labine, now 3-4. Mathews had two home runs, good for four runs, in a 15-hit spree that gave reliever Gene Conley his first victory.

Pittsburgh's Dee Fondy who pinch-hit Tuesday in his first appearance since June 1 hit in the face by a thrown ball last week, started and was 7-for-13 in the league's first doubleheader since Stan Musial 7-365 to .353) with a 16-point jump. Fondy got 49 hits in the twinbill, 21 by Pirates, and 22 were good for extra bases. Bill Virdon homered in both games for the Bucs, who had nine for the day. Vern Law won the opener, scattering 10 hits. Both clubs scored twice in the nightcap ninth to deadlock it.

PROTEST DECISION

Marlene Enters United States Women's Open

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP)—Low scores were predicted today as 32 women golf professionals and 66 amateurs started down the fairways of the rugged Post Golf Women's Open championship.

The amateurs, led by little Marlene Stewart Streit of Foothill, Ont., who won the U.S. Women's Amateur championship last fall, must be reckoned with. One of them, Barbara McIntyre of Toledo Ohio, tied Mrs. Kathy Cornelius of Dayton, Ohio, after 72 holes last year but lost out in a playoff. She's back for another try.

Mrs. Streit was paired with Wiffi Smith, of St. Clair, Mich., for the first round of the 72-hole medal play tournament. They are scheduled to tee off at 11 a.m. EDT.

PRAISE COURSE

The professionals, who play all kinds of courses on their year-long tour; were almost unanimous in praising Winged Foot's 6,246-yard east course as one of the best.

"It's as good as any course I've played on," said Miss Smith, a first-year pro who already has slamped herself as a top contender in any tournament.

The links may be the deciding factor, but it's a course where you can get a good score if you play it," said Mrs. Cornelius, the defending champion.

One of the girls did shoot a 69 in practice this week and would only mention it in whispers to intimate friends. She was afraid United States Golf Association officials might hear about it and place the pins over on the corners of the greens, near the yawning traps. That's one way to score would become impossible.

Hoad Headed For Crown; Bedard Beaten

WIMBLEDON, England (CP)—Australia's Lew Hoad, a wealthy 22-year-old who is too busy to accept the best professional tennis offers ever made, blew over another opponent Wednesday in his rush toward a second straight Wimbledon championship.

Another all-Australian final appeared to be shaping up with Ashley Cooper as the other principal — as the Tist Wimbledon championships moved through the third day without a major upset.

Hoad, who has constantly rejected fabulous bids from pro tennis promoter Jack Kramer, defeated Trevor Fancutt of South Africa in the second round 6-4, 6-2, 6-1. The second-seeded Cooper had everything — power, finesse, speed and positioning—in his 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 victory over Alexander Drobny, the 1954 champion.

If Hoad defeats Cooper in Wimbledon singles championship July 5, it will be the first time since Californian Don Budge shot the same player has won twice in a row. Budge did it in 1937-38.

BEDARD BEATEN

Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., was beaten by Jackie Brichant of Montreal 6-4, 6-4 in his second-round match.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, the 1953 winner who is seeded sixth, and seventh-seeded Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., registered wins over Indian opponents.

The day's only upset of importance came in a first round women's match begun Tuesday. Mrs. Darlene Fawcett of South Africa took the interrupted third set from sixth-seeded Mrs. Thelma Long of Australia and won 6-8, 9-7, 9-7.

Blair Talks Back to West Will Play West. Ont. Teams

WHITBY (CP) — Wren Blair, manager of Whitby Dunlops, of the Ontario Hockey Association senior league, this year's Allan Cup champions, Wednesday described as "untrue" a statement made Tuesday by Ed Benson of Trail, president of the British Columbia Hockey Association.

Benson said in an interview in Calgary that the majority of the replacements to Whitby Dunlops —selected in May to represent Canada next year in the world hockey tournament — will come from Eastern Canada.

"It's about time they decided to pick some good Western players" Benson said.

Blair said in a statement to the press that it is "highly untrue" that all replacements will come from the East.

"Letters from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association have already gone to all leagues in Canada asking for recommendations from within their branch as to whom they feel can help the team," Blair said.

"Replacements to the team will be the best players we can get. Geographical location will have nothing to do with it."

Redlegs Better Than Scoreboard

CINCINNATI (AP) — For the second time this season, Cincinnati Redlegs' new scoreboard ran out of numbers Wednesday night.

The big board out in left field is geared to display a maximum of 19 runs and 19 hits.

When the Giants, beating the Reds 17-7, got their 20th hit in the ninth the board showed 17 runs and 19 hits.

The other time the board ran out of numbers was when the Redbirds of Chicago Cubs 22-2, a few weeks ago.

but would not affect the Dunlops' standing in the Allan Cup challenge.

Wren Blair, Dunlops' manager, said the idea was to give the Dunlops a wider cross-section of competition before they leave for Europe Jan. 25.

Only three clubs — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, Chatham Maroons and Windsor Bulldogs—appear set for next winter. Owen Sound Mercurys announced they could not enter unless a new organization takes over the team. Stratford Indians were not represented at the meeting and earlier this year the Stratford parks board announced it was dropping sponsorship of the team.

Swimmers Say 'Pep Pills' Did Not Help

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—A medical expert says that two swimmers took "pep pills" before the Atlantic City water marathon —and failed to finish.

Dr. Joseph R. Wolffe, president of the American College of Sports Medicine, mentioned the swimmers—whom he did not name—during an interview Wednesday in connection with a medical study of the marathoners.

Alfredo Camarero, 26, of Argentina won Tuesday's 25-mile grind in a terrific display of courage and endurance through rough and dangerous waves. There were 25 starters.

Wolffe mentioned the "pep pills" when he was asked about a recent New York medical report of widespread use of the stimulants by athletes.

A heart expert, Wolffe said he was astonished to find that Camarero and other water marathoners didn't show the usual clinical signs of exhaustion after leaving the water.

HEART BEAT NORMAL

"Their heart beat was regular and normal despite the extreme exertion," he said. "Perhaps it is because they were in the water for around 13 hours and chilled—they were blue with cold. Perhaps it was something to do with salt water. We don't know yet.

"We spotted a couple of exceptions in our tests. We detected a somewhat different pattern [illegible] two men—both fine sportsmen—who volunteered the information that they had taken the so-called pep pills before beginning the race which they were forced to leave before the finish.

"One actually blamed the pep pills for forcing him to quit. The other said he didn't think it made any difference one way or the other."

Leafs Nudge Columbus 7-6; Royals Beaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vicente Amor, Havana pitcher, would be mighty happy if he never again saw Gene Green of Rochester—at least not on a baseball field.

Three of Green's nine home runs in the International League this season have come off Havana pitching and all three have been at the expense of the Cubans' righthander. No. 9 for the season and No. 3 off Amor was struck Wednesday night with two mates aboard in the fourth inning and stood up for Rochester's 3-2 victory over Havana.

After losing a 6-1 advantage, the first-place Toronto Maple Leafs edged Columbus Jets 7-6 on a ninth-inning pinch single by Jack Daniels to retain their half-game lead over Richmond Virginians.

Richmond easily defeated Montreal Royals 6-2 and Miami downed Buffalo 5-1.

A crowd of 9,156, with all proceeds going to the aid of cripples children, saw home runs account for eight of the 13 runs in the Toronto-Columbus game. Lou Morton hit a three-run homer and Don Jethroe a solo for Leafs. Jim Rice walloped one with two mates on base and Hawk Goss connected with the bases empty for Columbus. Rocky Nelson also came through with three doubles for Toronto.

John Jacjuk drove in three runs with a single and two-run homer and Harry Hall collected two doubles and a triple for a perfect night at the plate in leading Hamilton Hi-Hi attack on four Montreal pitchers.

Young Dick Bunker and ageless Satch Paige checked Bisons with eight hits, three by Leo Ortiz, while Marlins jumped on Rip Coleman for five hits and four runs in the first inning.

The meet is sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. Canadian championships will be at stake in events for senior men and women, midget boys and girls, juvenile boys and girls and bantam girls.

The entry list indicates that most provinces will be represented and many of Canada's competitors at the 1956 Olympic Games are expected to be on hand.

Cadillac

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Greatness Is Never Achieved Suddenly!

It has long been true, in the affairs of men, that only time can confirm the gift of greatness.

Artist, statesman, writer, craftsman—each must await the years for the maturity of his talent and for the verdict of his judges.

In every human effort, time is of the essence. No single act, no brief moment in the sun, has ever overshadowed the life's work of a master.

And as it is in the affairs of men, so it is in the world of commerce. Nothing great was ever created suddenly—whether the product be that of an individual or of an organization.

Here, most certainly, is the very genesis of the unique position which Cadillac currently occupies in the hearts and minds of the world's motorists.

Since the first Cadillac car made its appearance more than fifty-five years ago, it has always been created to a single objective; to make it as fine a motor car as it is possible to produce.

And, without question, the mission and the accomplishment have been one and the same.

The goodness of Cadillac has, in fact, been so apparent over that lengthy span that the Cadillac name stands today as an accepted synonym for quality wherever highways exist.

The pretenders have come—and they have gone. For time is an exacting taskmaster—and only the principles that have created the great Cadillac car and only the devotion that has given it being, have been equal to the challenge.

Never has this fact been more deeply etched in the public consciousness than it is during the present automotive year.

The motor car that now represents Cadillac on the highways of the world has advanced the Cadillac tradition to an extraordinary degree.

It is thrilling to behold—it is wonderful to ride in—it is rewarding to drive—and it is inspiring to own—as never before in history.

If you have yet to discover this fact for yourself, you should hesitate no longer to visit your authorized Cadillac dealer.

Waiting for you in his showroom is proof beyond doubt that Cadillac is—in fact as in reputation—the Standard of the World!

Keep Baseball in New York Is Battle Cry

NEW YORK (AP) — A civic group has filed a franchise request to keep metropolitan New York in the National League—and maybe even give the big town four major league clubs.

Warren Giles, president of the National League, said only that the application would not be considered "at this time" after receiving the telegraphed request Wednesday.

The group interested in acquiring a franchise, whether or not Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants move to the west coast, is headed by George V. McLaughlin, a Brooklyn banker and once New York's police commissioner.

McLaughlin said that his group "would ask the board of estimate for approval to float a $25,000,000 bond issue to construct a 50,000-seat stadium in Flushing Meadows, the old world's fair site, or its location at Van Cortlandt Park."

McLaughlin added that he has "informed Mr. Giles that we are prepared to give him what we regard as convincing proof of financial ability to perform, that our people are reputable and that we will have a suitable stadium."

The Flushing Meadows site, in Queens County, is the same land offered to the Dodgers by the city for a stadium project, with which Giants have been granted National League approval to move to California, want a site in Brooklyn.

Boyd Verdicts Castellani in Dullish Bout

CHICAGO (AP) — Bobby Boyd, his tender jaw rarely in jeopardy, flicked his way to a unanimous decision over middleweight veteran Rocky Castellani Wednesday night and Castellani stated: "I've had better fights in the gym."

Castellani's manager, Alvin Naiman, called it a "home town" decision.

The 10-round event which was mevertnil except for some brief flurries in a few rounds, evoked boos from the almost-record crowd of 3,772 several times.

The hardest shots in the bout were delivered by Rocky who apparently was trying to dislodge Boyd's jaw. Boyd, from Gary-Gadillo in Cleveland last September. He connected solidly in the fourth, hit the target three times in the sixth and delivered a hard right and left to the bout's eye in the ninth.

But Boyd, who racked up his fourth straight decision since his knockout by Giardello, came back strong each time, jabbing and countering effectively. The 23-year-old Chicago Negro scored mostly with looping lefts to Castellani's head and kept flicking away with his left in trying to set up some right hand shots.

Boyd came into the ring at 160 and Castellani at 160½.

Harness Racing

OTTAWA (CP)—Attorney's Boy from Durham, Ont., and Divorce from Buckingham, Que., each won a first and a second place in the two-heat Seaway Invitation Pace at Connaught Park Wednesday night. The winning times were both 2:12 2-5.

Andy K. Blue from Pembroke captured a mile D pace in 2:14 4-5. Bill Pipe was at the reins. Mighty Johnny from Morrisburg was second and Red Comet from Prescott third.

Another Morrisburg horse, Lorne Todd, turned a 2:14 1-5 mile to win a D trot. O'Dany Guy from Iroquois was second and Ann Elgin from Brighton third.

MONTREAL (CP) — Scotch Knight, a six-year-old bay horse owned by C. and E. Lacroix of Quebec City, trotted the mile in 2:09—best time of the night on a slow track—as the $900 event at Blue Bonnets raceway Wednesday night.

Driven by Jules Giguere, Scotch Knight paid $11.10, $5.70 and $3.70. Highland Paul was second and Gay Note showed.

Ontario horses had a bad night as they failed to win a single race.

In a $900 mile C pace, Jack Gordon drove Peggy Hal from Cobourg in for second money and Betty Hal 5 from Newton Robinson with Bill Rowe at the reins was second in another C pace.

Arnar from Brockville driven by Hans Bagga was third in a $900 mile D trot.

Doug Sanders Starter in Ontario Open

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Doug Sanders, the only amateur golfer to win the Canadian Open golf championship, is to be among a record starting field teeing off today for an 18-hole qualifying round in the Ontario Open.

He submitted his entry Wednesday and with Gerry Magee of Lambton, a long-hitting amateur who has given Sanders trouble in previous tournaments.

The Ontario Golf Association has received 166 entries, a record. Previous high was in 1954 at Cedar Brae when 155 started.

Sanders, now a pro playing out of Miami, Fla., last week tied for fourth place in the $27,000 Open. He placed fourth in the Ontario Open at Brantford last year, finishing behind Gerry Kesselring, Magee and Jack Penrose, another Florida golfer.

Penrose may be a post entry in the tournament. Kesselring has already entered.

Magee will be playing in his first tournament of the year. Last year in the Canadian Amateur at Edmundston, N.B., he eliminated Sanders, but in the quarter finals in the U.S. Open at Richmond, Va., in July, Sanders whacked out Sanders in the third round.

The Ontario tournament, to be played at the St. Catharines Golf Club, offers $2,650 in prize money, $1,000 to the winner. Amateurs will get eight prizes.

The Open is to be the final test for 15 professionals to try to get on Ontario's four-man Willingdon Cup team. Current leaders, based on results of invitational tournaments at Burlington and Brantford, are Bill Morland, Mick Weslock, Bruce Castator, Gary Cowan and Phil Farley.

Dutchies Lose To Oakville

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

If Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen fail to do well in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League, they will have to blame Oakville Oaks. Dutchies have lost only five games in 13 starts but three of them have been to Oakville.

Wednesday night was no exception as veteran lefty Jim Paton threw a sparkling two-hitter at the Dutchmen, beating them 7-2 in Oakville for his second win against Kitchener. Striking out 13 and walking two he boosted his record to 4-2, top in the league.

The clubs went into the game tied for second spot, a full game behind league-leading St. Thomas Elgins. Oaks moved half a game closer to the leader, Kitchener dropped to third, 1½ games off the pace.

Story of Jewish Mayor Of Dublin to Be Dramatized

By CHARLIE MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The story of Robert Briscoe, Jewish Lord Mayor of Dublin, will be dramatized live tonight on Playhouse 90 (CBS-TV), Art Carney in the starring role.

The life of Briscoe is fascinating. Overcoming family opposition, he became a gun-runner and secret agent for the Irish republican movement. Then followed many years as a leading Irish politician and a happy marriage to a woman whose father opposed their wedding.

Briscoe's warm personality and incisive mind made a great impression when he toured the United States and Canada recently. Among the many deeply interested in Briscoe was Elick Moll, who wrote the script for tonight's drama.

NATURALLY DRAMATIC

"His life falls naturally into a dramatic form," Moll told this department not long ago. "I wrote the script after thorough research—and then I flew to New York while Briscoe was here to discuss it with him."

Briscoe suggested one or two changes, but was not adamant about them. Moll was so impressed by the dramatic validity of the lord mayor's suggestions, however, that he revised the script even though he didn't have to.

Speaking of Playhouse 90, its live dramatizations generally have been superior to its filmed dramas. Last week's filmed presentation of "Ain't No Time for Glory was an exception, however, when Barry Sullivan starred in a war drama with an all-male cast.

War dramas have tended to be pretty stereotyped on television. Among the cliches which many dramas have perpetuated is that old one that officers persecute their men. So it was good for a change, in Ain't No Time for Glory, to see in the role of a company commander played by Sullivan a man who cared about his men.

ACTUAL EVENTS

While the method of capturing a German fortress in Brittany seemed impossible, it made for an exciting, dramatic story. It was based on an actual event, and reminds one that war is composed of improbable events.

The subject of live and filmed television recalls the fact that the Robert Montgomery live dramatic show bowed off NBC-TV this week after seven years. Its final drama, Part '2', a modernization of the Dr. Faustus legend, unfortunately is a half-hearted effort.

The dramas in the series have been uneven this year. Yet the disappearance of another live anthology program from television is a disappointment to all those who care about varied, stimulating television entertainment. It can be good but live drama is and—let's hope—always will be the most important form of the TV medium.

Earning Power of McCrea Shows No Sign of Diminishing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Act your age, Joel McCrea advises his fellow leading men of the veteran category.

Joel has been a screen luminary for more than 25 years, and his earning power shows no sign of diminishing. Part of that is due to the force of his own personality and acting skill, but it's also the result of careful planning. He is one of Hollywood's wisest heads on career matters.

"I think actors of my vintage make a mistake in trying to appear much younger than they are," he observed. "Let's face it—we're getting up there. But that doesn't mean we have to quit.

"We can stay in business as long as we don't try to fool anyone. It's a mistake to attempt playing passionate love scenes with a girl who is young enough to be your daughter—or try to impersonate a dashing hero in his 20s or 30s.

"You only call people's attention to the fact that you're no longer a kid."

Joel's views coincide with a poll by extension magazine, a monthly which is pushing leadership. A high percentage of those polled thought Hollywood's male movie stars should either retire or cut out the love stuff.

Joel himself suggested that he had thought of retiring.

"During the war, I did some touring to entertain the troops, and I ran into a lot of young guys who seemed to have the looks and personality to become stars in pictures. I figured that I'd quit, that I could gracefully step aside and let the youngsters take over.

"But it didn't turn out that way after the war. Most of the kids who were given a try at pictures couldn't make it. Maybe they didn't try hard enough; maybe they just didn't have it to stay.

"Whatever it was, I found myself in the peculiar position of getting better scripts than I had ever had before. They were roles with character that I had longed for when I was younger but never got.

"I figured as long as I was doing a good job in something I had devoted my life to and really enjoyed, why quit?"

His latest film is Trooper Hook, and it carries out his thinking. He admits in the picture that he is 47. Actually he's 51.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

In the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, June 28, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—There's no better day than this for straightening out plans, giving your best to small but really necessary details and to achieving worthwhile activities. But do be systematic.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Avoid extremes now. Be your usually sensible self in making plans, instituting procedures. Do not let your sympathies involve you in unwise associations, endeavors or activities. Maintain your sense of balance.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—You can overcome obstacles, offset the irritability of others when you really try. Remember this today when there are some pitfalls to avoid, some fine advantages from which to choose. Choose well!

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Don't seek out difficulties or you will find them. And don't be oversensitive. A bright attitude, faith, hope, and diligence will advance your cause today.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—You can either go forward happily with this day, keeping things under control or you can make it a tiring, nervous period — depending upon your will power and attitude. Think! Be consistent.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Things may not run as smoothly as you wish, but don't let it worry You. Just dig in with cheer, good humor and the will to accomplish. Credits will accrue.

September 24 to October 23— (Libra) — You are a careful thinker and a practical do-er. Put these assets to thoughtful use and don't heed dissenters who are out to confuse. Maintain your principles.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Don't overtax yourself and injure health; neither daily and lose ground. Strike that happy medium.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Note Scorpio today. However, your planet Jupiter, in excellent aspect, suggests a little more aggression. Discharge duties cheerfully.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Don't become involved in the disputes or disagreements of others unless you know you can smooth things out. And do be careful in what activities you join. Advance your own interests.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — There is a job to be done and there are obstacles to bridge. Start with good humor and respect for those you must contact or work with. Don't just "do things"; think first, then do better.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Most matters are really up to you. Curb a tendency to delay or give up easily. There is always a way. Today you should find that way more quickly. Start early.

You born today are versatile and sensitive; can accomplish wonders when really trying, but can also waste time brooding, day dreaming. Assuming you do your best with your many fine talents, you will attain much. You probably love to travel, but would not be happy without having your family share your journeys. Work bringing you in contact with people stimulates you. Get lots of outdoor exercise; stop worrying; Have faith.

Birthdate of: Jean Jacques Rousseau, Fr. philosopher; King Henry VIII, of England.

CHURCH BUILDING DESTROYED BY FIRE

Recently sold to the British Methodist Episcopal church, this frame house at Rice Lake, Ont., goes up in flames, while firemen work to keep the blaze from destroying other buildings. The house was bought as a vacation centre for the church's multi-racial congregation and it caught fire a half an hour after its former owner vacated.

THOUSANDS DIE IN LOUISIANA

Russian Urges Stassen Reveal Whole Arms Plan

Must Know All Proposals Before Working on Details

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Liberal Progressive executive has given a vote of confidence to leaders Louis St. Laurent and Premier D. L. Campbell during a 1½-hour election post-mortem here.

During the Thursday meeting Ald. Peter Taraska, unsuccessful Liberal candidate in Winnipeg North in the June 10 federal election, said there had been a lack of co-operation by the provincial Liberal-Progressives in the campaign and called for an end to "demarcation" and a return to "Liberal principles."

Premier Campbell, in reply, rapped the alderman for a press statement Friday in which he charged intra-party feuding.

D. G. McKenzie, Liberal organizer in Manitoba for the federal campaign, urged unity between the federal and provincial party camps in order to restore Liberal fortunes in Manitoba.

TELLS BACKGROUND

Premier Campbell told the meeting that the background of the Liberal Progressive government, including the coalitions under John Bracken, had influenced the present-day division between federal and provincial Liberal camps in Manitoba. He said that the wartime coalition had also contributed to it.

Outside the meeting room, Ald. Taraska told reporters he and other critics of Premier Campbell's Liberal Progressives did not contemplate starting a new "straight Liberal" party.

What they wanted was a unified party, and observance of "Liberal principles," and if these were not forthcoming, the critics would withdraw support.

One Man Killed

HULL, Que. (CP)—A man was killed and another seriously injured Thursday when their pickup truck crashed into contact with high-tension wires on a railway bridge at nearby Irondale.

Dead is Dermont Marqui, 37, St. Norbert, Que. Bernard Lyons, 19, Hull, Que., suffered a fractured skull, broken leg and back burns.

Police said apparently their weight pushed metal of the bridge scaffold down against the wires. The men toppled 30 feet to the paved road below. A power current flashed through the platform.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: Warm moist air is flowing northwards over the eastern half of the country ahead of the remnants of hurricane Audrey. This storm, though weakening as it moves southward through the lower Mississippi Valley, is giving extensive areas of rain. Its remains are expected to reach the lower Great Lakes region late Saturday.

Frequent shower or thundershower activity is expected over southern sections of the province today and Saturday. In Northern Ontario, an old storm centre, moving slowly eastward from Manitoba, is expected to spread showers over most of the district this evening and these should continue through Saturday.

LONDON (AP)—American delegate Harold E. Stassen appeared unmoved today by increasing Soviet pressure to lay all his disarmament cards on the table at once.

Despite the Russians' impatience Stassen indicated he would continue to set forth the new United States disarmament plan bit by bit at the London meeting of the United Nations disarmament subcommittee.

Soviet delegate Valerian A. Zorin told the five-power group Thursday that Russia would have to know the complete American plan before agreeing to the appointment of working groups to map details of the Western proposals for treaty. He urged Stassen to speed up his presentation.

TAKE SEVERAL DAYS

Stassen replied that it would take a number of days for him to outline the plans formulated May 25 by President Eisenhower and his advisers. Western officials said the presentation has been slowed by the need for prolonged consultation among the Western Allies.

There also is speculation that the U.S. is taking its time in the hope of dissipating the propaganda advantage Russia won two weeks ago with its offer to let UN inspectors into Soviet territory to oversee a moratorium on nuclear tests.

Stassen said the fact that agreement on a partial arms reduction treaty now is in sight after 11 years of disagreement makes it even more vital that the subcommittee not attempt to move too fast at this stage.

Stassen has spent more than a week presenting the broad new U.S. disarmament plan. As yet he has only touched on conventional weapons, manpower levels and a control organization to enforce a disarmament, treaty. Still to be presented are proposals on some of the more controversial items, such as aerial inspection and nuclear weapons.

Britain, France and Canada—the other members of the subcommittee—expressed general approval Thursday of the U.S. plan for a disarmament control organization, but Zorin refused to commit himself.

Plane Located

WINNIPEG (CP)—RCAF officials in Winnipeg say that a light plane reported missing in Northern Ontario has been located by an RCAF plane.

They said the plane, a single engined Piper equipped with floats was sighted beached on a lake about 40 miles northwest of Sioux Lookout, Ont.

The Dakota's pilot, FO Alec Achron, reported that two men were sighted beside a campfire.

Could Hardly Ask for Nicer Guy To Run Into You Than Prince Philip

LONDON (AP)—A motorist in a position to know says you could hardly ask for a nicer guy to run into you than the husband of the Queen.

From all accounts, however, the Duke of Edinburgh is a safe driver.

The motorist is Ronald Sutcliffe, 34, secretary of the royal customs and excise service. He was touring along in his pint-size sedan of private vintage two months ago at Staines, near Windsor Castle, when it happened.

"When I felt the knock," Sutcliffe told a reporter, "I got out of my car thinking, 'some stupid clod's hit me.' I was expecting an argument."

Sutcliffe walked around his sedan and found a big sports car with one of its headlights knocked off. At the wheel was Prince Philip who had just made a speech at a safe-driving meeting.

"The duke," Sutcliffe said, "was so pleasant he took the wind right out of my sails.

"'It's all right,' he said. 'It was my fault.'

"There was a lady by his side who I now realize was the Queen. But I'm only used pictures of Her Majesty smiling—and she certainly wasn't smiling then.

"I told my wife all about it later I said, 'she looked just as though she could have would if I had accidentally run into the back of another car.'

"Their spotlight was smashed and the glass strewn over the road, but the only damage I had was a small dent."

Sutcliffe said he probably won't bother to have his dent fixed.

"It's almost what you would call a royal souvenir."

FINANCIER WILL AID RHEUMATIC HEART RESEARCH

$500,000 Foundation To Be Established

TORONTO (CP) — James Alexander, president of a Toronto investment firm, has announced a gift of $500,000 to stimulate research into rheumatic and heart diseases.

The money will be used as the initial capital of a foundation for rewarding scientific investigators who perform outstanding research in the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of those diseases.

Mr. Gairdner, in a statement read Thursday by his son, J. S. Gairdner, announced the gift to the closing banquet of the ninth international congress on rheumatic diseases. The congress, attended by more than 1,000 delegates from all parts of the world, concludes today.

Headquarters of the organization to be known as the Gairdner Foundation, will be in Toronto.

FOR TWO TYPES

The capital investment and its earnings will be used for two classes of awards, the primary award of $25,000 to be given at least every four years and an annual award of $10,000 with up to $10,000 for distinguished research into rheumatic and heart diseases.

Canada Will Keep Forces In Mid-East While Needed

LONDON (CP) — The Common-probably the only answer. The wealth leaders moved on to Far East discussions today after a general discussion of Middle East problems.

It was understood one of the chief developments was an assurance by Canada that she will keep military forces in the Middle East until it is generally felt that the need for them has ended. The forces referred to are the Canadian element in the United Nations Emergency Force.

It is believed Prime Minister Diefenbaker also expressed willingness to go along with any concerted plans for doing something about refugees in the Middle East. Commonwealth leaders seemed in agreement that resettlement is

Mechanical Defect Blamed As A-Bomb Fails to Explode

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP) A mechanical failure today made a dud of what was scheduled as the sixth atomic blast of the Nevada Energy Commission current test series.

The device, mounted on a 500-foot tower, failed to fire at the scheduled hour, 7:45 a.m.

Twenty minutes later the AEC said "mechanical failure" caused the shot to be called off as an attempt to test the device today.

Orders were given to evacuate troops and reporters from advance areas. Some 1,900 troops had already been loaded in trenches 4,000 yards from ground zero. The reporters were on a hill 14 miles from the tower.

The blast would have been the 51st explosion at the site.

When officials completed the count-down at blast time, nothing happened.

Some 1,900 troops crouched deep into trenches 4,000 yards from ground zero at 8-hour. Five minutes later they were still crouching—waiting for the blast. Fifteen minutes later they were still awaiting it.

In an underground steel bunker 2,000 yards from the 500-foot tower at ground zero 15 mag—scientists and navy radiation experts—waited long, grim minutes for word from the control point.

Careless Smoking Blamed for Death

TORONTO (CP)—Careless smoking was blamed for the death today of a 59-year-old woman whose body was found by firemen in a basement apartment.

Police said Mrs. Iva Kirby died from suffocation and severe burns.

All Burglars Got for Sweat Was Tear Gas

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP) — A couple of burglars worked several hours at midnight Thursday to bore through a three - foot cement wall and all they got for their sweat was tears.

They apparently thought they were breaking into a vault but found it was only the wall of the offices of City Motors Inc.

Once inside the office they used a sledgehammer to knock the combination off the safe. This set off tear gas — and the burglars fled with empty pockets and sore eyes.

Fine Weather Forecast for Weekend's Start

TORONTO (CP)—Skies are expected to clear in Ontario Saturday on the first day of Canada's long Dominion Day weekend. But the weather outlook for the remainder of the holiday is uncertain.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected to continue today in southern Ontario.

Dominion weather forecasters said a centre of low pressure over Chicago is expected to head off a mass of warm, moist air flowing northwestward from the remnants of hurricane Audrey. The moist air had been expected to bring much rain to Ontario.

VOTE PADDING OWN IDEA SAYS LIBERAL WORKER

Justice McRuer Not Happy With Evidence

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal party worker says forging names to voters' lists during the federal election campaign was her own idea and no one instructed her to do it.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer said he didn't believe her.

Nora Conacher returned to the witness stand Monday to repudiate previous testimony she had given in Chief Justice McRuer's inquiry into alleged padding of voters' lists in Toronto St. Paul's riding.

Earlier she had denied signing names to applications for inclusion on the voters' lists. But after an RCMP handwriting expert said at least 100 signatures were hers she admitted about 100 forgeries.

She said three other persons helped her in the scheme. Earlier in the hearing Thomas Middleton and Mrs. Kathleen Vollum had admitted forgeries and Miss Conacher identified the third person as Beatrice Price.

DENIES OTHERS

She denied there were others. She denied there was any plan to create under the forged names.

"Miss Conacher, don't try and protect anyone," warned inquiry counsel J. W. Swackhamer.

"Were you the chief collector of this scheme?" asked Chief Justice McRuer.

"Yes, sir," she replied.

The chief justice said the names could have been added only for some political purpose. Earlier,

"I never thought about that sir," CAN'T BELIEVE IT

"I just can't believe you were playing a game of solitaire. I can't believe for a moment you were the architect of this. What was the purpose of putting those names on?"

"I don't know, sir. That's what makes it so awful. I don't know why I did it."

"And you expect me to believe it?"

"I hope you will, sir."

Two Killed As Car Hits Back of Truck

TORONTO (CP) — Two people were killed Thursday night when a car crashed into the back of a truck stopped in a turning lane and bounced into the path of traffic on the Kingston Road in the east end of the city.

Dead are Gerald Hugh Bennell, 24, of Toronto and his wife Doreen, 24. Mrs. Bennell died a few hours after the accident during an emergency operation at Scarborough General Hospital.

Another car driven by Edward Lloyd Bennell of Scarborough, who was following the Bennell car and also smashed into the truck driven by Ernest Charles Cartwright, Scarborough. The Monk car shot along the road 100 feet and came to rest on the boulevard of the four-lane highway. Neither Monk nor Crozier were injured.

Stock Salesman Sent for Trial

MONTREAL (CP)—Stock salesman Charles Laveman, 27, Thursday was committed for trial on the fall term of Court of Queen's Bench, on charges of obtaining money by false pretences from a number of persons, including several prominent in the National Hockey League.

Laveman was originally charged with obtaining $21,000 from 10 persons, but five cases were dropped and the crown is proceeding with the other five, involving $13,375.

The carried cases include general manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings, who claims he was bilked of $1,250. and Wings' coach Jim Skinner, $65.

Forty Tattered Survivors From Marshlands On Coast Bring News of Tidal Waves

Come in Hurricane's Wake Drowning Whole Families

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Hurricane Audrey's death toll climbed to the 150-mark today and a drenched sheriff said the storm's victims could reach 3,000 to 4,000.

While there was no official estimate of casualties, Red Cross officials said they knew of at least 1,000 persons in the Cameron area who did not evacuate as the ravaging hurricane moved inland early Thursday.

Deputy Sheriff Lee P. Vincent of Cameron told reporters that when he arrived on a coast guard boat today he believed "3,000 to 4,000 drowned' as tidal waves swept over the marshlands.

Of the thousands of refugees pouring into Red Cross shelters few were from the Cameron area which bore the brunt of the storm.

Deputy Sheriff D. P. Vincent was among 40 tattered survivors who reached here today from the Cameron area which lies on a ridge only a few miles from the edge of the Gulf of Mexico.

E. L. Begler, a chief boatswain's mate and skipper of the coast guard boat Blue Bonnet, disrupted some of the reports and talk of losing families of six or nine."

HARDEST HIT

Cameron, a fishing village with a constantly changing population, bore the main brunt of the hurricane Thursday as it roared in from the gulf near the Texas-Louisiana line. Civil defence officials said it was impossible to estimate how many persons were in the area where hundreds remained when the hurricane struck.

"I lost all my six children," one old woman mumbled and counted them on her fingers.

Cameron lies about 50 miles west of Pecan Island where the sheriff's office said Thursday night 150 remain and feared about 85 per cent of them were lost.

Begler said three other coast guard boats were in the area picking up survivors. Three other boats headed for the Cameron area with supplies.

A coast guard plane flew over Cameron late Thursday and reported "a tremendous amount of destruction." The pilot said the town was under water and buildings demolished.

The storm whipped tides into a frenzy as it hit Louisiana's coastal area while moving inland Thursday as a low that began off southeast Texas. Spending most of its might near the coast, the hurricane dug a trail of destruction in Louisiana as it headed northeast into northwest Mississippi, western Tennessee and Kentucky, accompanied by heavy rains.

Searchers Hunt

At the Vermilion Parish (county) sheriff's office in Abbeville, some 30 miles north of Pecan Island, Al Moss reported tides seven to eight feet above normal and winds 90 miles per hour.

"About 150 people stayed in the Pecan Island area," he said, "and we're afraid 85 per cent of them are lost. Houses in the area are just floating around."

Motorboats and helicopters left at dawn for the area.

Vermilion Parish General manager of radio station KROP in Abbeville, placed the number unaccounted for in the area at 200.

Civil defence leaders here had reports of several hundred persons remaining at Cameron, south of Lake Charles. Three coast guard cutters were sent there.

State police and national guardmen tried to reach Cameron on Thursday, but failed. They rescued six persons in one family stranded on the floating rooftop of their house for eight hours. A seventh was washed off the rooftop and presumed drowned.

The Red Cross sheltered 19,000 in Lake Charles alone Thursday and issued food rations to 30,000. Hundreds were evacuated to the smaller towns from the Louisiana lowlands and more than 5,000 sought shelter at Port Arthur, Tex., and Orange, Tex.

The Red Cross said 138 injured were treated at Lake Charles hospitals, but most for minor injuries.

Two Americans Missing, Third Body Recovered

WINDSOR (CP) — Two Americans are missing in Lake St. Clair and the body of a third has been recovered along with their oversized boat, the United States Coast Guard reports.

The three, who disappeared Thursday, have been identified as Flit Sanders, 24, whose body was recovered by the coast guard, and Albert DiVincenzo, 24, and Albert Ecie, 15, all of Dearborn, Mich.

The three hired a boat at Point Pelee, Ont., on the lake from here, for a day's fishing. When they failed to return the coast guard and RCMP search of Lake St. Clair was started.

Their boat was found near the Belle Isle coast guard station and Sanders' body was found nearby.

"I lost all my six children," one old woman mumbled and counted them on her fingers.

Cameron lies about 50 miles west of Pecan Island where the sheriff's office said Thursday night 150 remain and feared about 85 per cent of them were lost.

Begler said three other coast guard boats were in the area picking up survivors. Three other boats headed for the Cameron area with supplies.

A coast guard plane flew over Cameron late Thursday and reported "a tremendous amount of destruction." The pilot said the town was under water and buildings demolished.

The storm whipped tides into a frenzy as it hit Louisiana's coastal area while moving inland Thursday as a low that began off southeast Texas. Spending most of its might near the coast, the hurricane dug a trail of destruction in Louisiana as it headed northeast into northwest Mississippi, western Tennessee and Kentucky, accompanied by heavy rains.

Searchers Hunt

At the Vermilion Parish (county) sheriff's office in Abbeville, some 30 miles north of Pecan Island, Al Moss reported tides seven to eight feet above normal and winds 90 miles per hour.

"About 150 people stayed in the Pecan Island area," he said, "and we're afraid 85 per cent of them are lost. Houses in the area are just floating around."

Motorboats and helicopters left at dawn for the area.

Vermilion Parish General manager of radio station KROP in Abbeville, placed the number unaccounted for in the area at 200.

Civil defence leaders here had reports of several hundred persons remaining at Cameron, south of Lake Charles. Three coast guard cutters were sent there.

State police and national guardmen tried to reach Cameron on Thursday, but failed. They rescued six persons in one family stranded on the floating rooftop of their house for eight hours. A seventh was washed off the rooftop and presumed drowned.

The Red Cross sheltered 19,000 in Lake Charles alone Thursday and issued food rations to 30,000. Hundreds were evacuated to the smaller towns from the Louisiana lowlands and more than 5,000 sought shelter at Port Arthur, Tex., and Orange, Tex.

The Red Cross said 138 injured were treated at Lake Charles hospitals, but most for minor injuries.

Two Americans Missing, Third Body Recovered

WINDSOR (CP) — Two Americans are missing in Lake St. Clair and the body of a third has been recovered along with their oversized boat, the United States Coast Guard reports.

The three, who disappeared Thursday, have been identified as Flit Sanders, 24, whose body was recovered by the coast guard, and Albert DiVincenzo, 24, and Albert Ecie, 15, all of Dearborn, Mich.

The three hired a boat at Point Pelee, Ont., on the lake from here, for a day's fishing. When they failed to return the coast guard and RCMP search of Lake St. Clair was started.

Their boat was found near the Belle Isle coast guard station and Sanders' body was found nearby.

While Sergeant He Did Not Curse, As Civilian, Language Got Worse

LONDON (AP)—A British doctor told a strange story Thursday of a man who went to a hospital to cure himself of cursing.

Writing in the British Medical Journal, Dr. Richard D. Mitchell, 45, said the man now 30, began swearing when he was nine. Recently, he said, the man's wife tried to stop him, but nothing helped. His violent language got progressively worse.

Then he went into the army and —this will surprise no soldier—immediately rose to be a sergeant.

Oddly, the cursing stopped.

But, after finishing his service and returning to civilian life he began to feel a compelling urge to swear. Six months later, at the age of 25, he was spouting all the old bad words. He developed a tic and jerks of the head, arms and

Four Committed To Stand Trial For Manslaughter

OTTAWA (CP) — Four husky youths, two of them juveniles, were committed by Magistrate Frederick Stather here today to stand trial for manslaughter in the accidental death of 17-year-old Rene Jodoin.

Rene Delorme, 16, Vincent Tamelin, 17, and two boys under 16 will go before judge and jury at the fall assizes of the Ontario Supreme Court next October.

Jodoin died of head injuries last May after he was hurled by a fight outside the Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help. The brawl followed trouble in the church hall where Jodoin, two of his brothers and another youth had gone uninvited to a dance.

LOOKING FOR FIGHT

In committing the four the magistrate said that while they undoubtedly regretted the incident he had no doubt they resented the presence of strangers at the gathering and wanted to chase the invaders from the hall.

"They did not have to follow the Jodoins and the others outside, but they did follow them. They were looking for a fight.

"It is not up to me to decide who struck the fatal blow. That will be up to a jury to decide."

Kingston Woman Dies of Injuries In Hospital

Critically injured in a two-car crash on Highway 41 near Mazinaw Lake last Sunday, Mrs. Doris Mallory, 30, of 185 Clergy Street, Kingston, died Thursday evening in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Mallory was one of seven persons injured when the two cars crashed head-on. Injured in the crash were Mr. Herbert Mallory, a daughter Barbara Mallory, 20, two Indonesian students, and the two occupants of the second car Theal Larouche and Florian Grimond, both of Lorrainville, Quebec.

Handsome Sloop New Addition To Yacht Club

A handsome thirty-one foot sloop eased its way into a mooring berth at the dock of Quinte Yacht Club the other day.

The stalwart vessel and beauty is the newest addition to the club's sailing flotilla.

She is the "Sobesten", built in Copenhagen, Denmark. "Sobesten" in English is "Six Horse".

Recently purchased in Toronto by Edwood Wickerson, well-known power boater in the city, "Sobesten" is a floating epitome of the European boatbuilders craft.

She is a racing cruising sloop which once belonged to a member of the Swedish Cruising Club. She has a registered tonnage of 5.7 tons and an actual tonnage of 3.345.

"Sobesten" has a beam of seven and one-half feet with a neat compact cabin. She can "sleep four". She is equipped with a 5.3 Danish motor and besides her mainsail carries square Genoa and storm jibs.

Storage space is cunningly tucked away in many lockers. There is a small galley and the cabin is compactly comfortable. The deck is immaculate and devoid of excrescences that mar the port of the former owner.

"Sobesten" is the fourth sailing craft to come under the ownership of Mr. Wickerson who, by the way is the quadron's rear commodore. His first love was the "Flame" successor to the famous "Flame" herself. Then came the "Cygnet" which had a habit of overturning when sailing under the bay bridge, and now the new Danish beauty.

"Sobesten" will not race in any of the club's events this year, being acquired too late for entering. She was brought to Belleville from Toronto this week by Rear Commodore Wickerson, Morley Smith and Bob Boyce. Ill-winds marred the trip but the Danish motor lived up to all requirements, even to accepting a substitute for gasoline.

Seven-Man Committee Will Be Named to Study Details Of Joint Disposal System

A seven-man committee comprised of three members from the city and two each from the townships of Thurlow and Sidney, will be appointed to go into details of construction stages for a joint sewage disposal system to serve the three municipalities.

Cost of the system which is expected would have to be built in several stages would be in excess of three million dollars.

The three municipalities have the choice of contracting the work themselves and arranging their own financing, or have the Ontario Water Resources Commission construct the plant and operate it, the cost to be debentured over a period of up to 20 years.

At a meeting of the Ontario Water Resources Commission held at city hall Thursday evening the general manager Dr. A. E. Berry told representatives of the three local municipalities that his department was ready that the project be proceeded with as soon as possible.

"Pollution control was vitally important and must be taken care of," he said.

The local municipalities concerned would have to decide what type of system they want but Dr. Berry noted practically all municipalities were asking the Water Resources Commission to carry out construction and financing.

SEWERAGE OUTLINED

After hearing the proposed sewage treatment system outlined by Dr. Berry and Engineer W. Argo, engineer with consulting engineers Gore and Storrie who have been engaged for the system, it was decided to form a committee made up of representatives from the three municipalities to go into further details.

Mr. Argo said the initial phase to be undertaken would be construct the treatment plant to look after the city. This with a river outfall sewer and sanitary and collection of sewage from the MacDonald Avenue New Sunbury street sewers, would cost an estimated $1,333,000.

The engineer said pollution in the Moira River above the CPR bridge where sewers are discharged into the river was "abominable."

The next step would be provision for the collection of sewage from Thurlow township north of the city. This phase would cost an estimated $240,000, while a third phase would look after the built-up area in Sidney township west of the city would be $695,000. If Farley Ave. district in Thurlow was included a further $200,000 would cost an additional quarter of a million dollars, he said.

As sections of the urban area were built up additions to the plant would be necessary, it was suggested that sewage from Thurlow, east of the city, be treated separately.

It was emphasized that the above cost figures took into consideration only trunk sewers, the cost of local sewers not being included.

WORK AT COST N

Dr. Berry said if the water commission was asked to do the work it would be responsible for engineering, construction, operation and financing. The work would be done at cost and would be paid off over a long period with debentures running up to 30 years.

When the plant was completely paid for the municipalities could own the plant if they desired. It was pointed out, however, that ownership did not make much difference as after debentures were paid off the water resources commission would still continue to operate the system at cost. The question of costs was a point coming in for close consideration on the part of council representatives attending the meeting.

With per capita debts already high, councillors wanted to know how much higher they would go with construction of a sewage disposal plant.

Although details would have to be worked out it is expected the costs would be split between the water users and the property owner. A figure was suggested of 75 per cent of the cost to be borne by the water user on a sewer rental charge, and 25 per cent on the general tax rate.

In the case of an industry, which is a heavy user of water and a small user of sewers, the rate to be charged industry could be determined by council.

Dr. Berry stressed, however, that where industrial wastes were required to be treated as sewage, industry was expected to pay their share of the cost.

TREAT OWN WASTE

Industries could either treat their own waste or have it treated in the municipal sewage plant, but generally the latter course was chosen.

Mayor Jane Forrester wanted to know whether partial treatment of sewage would be suitable for this locality. The engineer said the plant which Trenton was now constructing provided only for partial treatment.

In reply Mr. Argo said that a saving of possibly $250,000 could be achieved by partial treatment at Belleville but he stressed this would not be desirable. The possibility of partial treatment being under a prolonged east wind working its way east to the vicinity of the filtration plant made it desirable that sewage be fully treated.

Trenton, on the other hand, did not get its water supply from the bay, so partial treatment was satisfactory. Nature's cleansing action in the 12-mile stretch of water, would result in no ill effects at Belleville from Trenton's partially treated sewage.

Dr. Berry said it was the responsibility of each municipality to treat its own sewage so it would not become other municipalities. All municipalities in the province were being asked to take the required action to prevent pollution.

Industrial plants upstream from Belleville would be required to take action to prevent pollution. The Corbyville plant will install its own treatment plant but a joint sewage treatment plant to serve Belleville and the built-up suburban area surrounding the city, was desirable for this area. Any other solution would be much more costly.

Also, if the city went ahead with a plant adequate only to serve its own uses, it would be much more costly to Sidney and Thurlow to come in at a later date. As a joint measure, sewers would be put in large enough to serve all three municipalities.

"All municipalities must go ahead jointly or little will be accomplished," said Dr. Berry. "The municipalities could proceed with their own plant, but this is not recommended.

It was estimated that it would take eight to two years to complete the first stage of construction as suggested — that of providing the sewage treatment plant and for collection of sewage from the Sunbury and Pinnacle areas.

The cost of storm sewers required to separate storm water from sanitary mains, estimated at an additional $300,000, would be financed as part of the sewage treatment plant, it was said.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market moved irregularly higher today amid the lightest morning trading of the year.

Western oils, led by Central Del Rio and Security, gained 1¾ points on their index but industrials and base metals had minor index losses, although industrial gains held a slight edge over losses. Golds were narrowly higher.

The trading pace was the slowest since Nov. 23, 1956. Volume at 11 a.m. was 570,000 shares compared with Thursday's 796,000 at the same time.

Page-Hersey Tubes and Canadian Oil led industrials with one-point gains. Algoma Steel was off 1⅛ points to 146.

Senior base metals were mixed in fractional-range trading. Uraniums were firm. Willroy featured low-priced mines with an 18-cent climb to $1.89.

Central Del Rio jumped 93⅛ cents to 10 points and for a time was at an all-time high of 10¾.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Most classes and grades of slaughter cattle at the Ontario public stockyards this week sold at steady prices.

Demand for replacement cattle was centred around top-quality grades. Calves closed at prices steady to last week though trading in the earlier part of this week showed gains of up to $2 a hundredweight. Hogs were a full 50 cents to $1 a hundredweight higher while sheep and lambs were easier with sales barely steady to 50 cents a hundredweight lower.

There were about 900 head more cattle than last week—up about 1,000 from the same week 1956. Western cattle receipts numbered 300 head, 100 over last week.

Shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers were comparable to last week at four carloads with no exports to the United States reported.

The demand for slaughter cattle this week was slightly improved.

Butcher heifers sold fairly readily at no change in price. Yearling cattle were more difficult to sell. Cows sold well throughout the week at steady prices. Bulls were reported actively firm.

LET'S HAVE ANSWERS

All too frequently we read or hear accounts of amateur pilots crashing their planes into a farmer's field, a tree or body of water. More common, though, are stories about privately owned aircraft making forced or precautionary landings in fields or on highways.

When such incidents occur, how often do we later hear anything about the Department of Transport's investigations? Not often.

Has to crash before the Department feels obligated to make public at least part of its findings.

We are firm believers in carrying all sorts of news, as quickly as possible, to our readers and we appreciate their right to know. Therefore, it is also our belief that the public would like to know why a privately owned, light aircraft crashed.

The Department of Transport recognizes that some note of explanation must be released to the public when an airliner crashes and the armed services provide brief explanations when they have a plane crash.

We can't remember learning from the Department of Transport what caused an inexpensive, privately owned aircraft to crash, even if there has been loss of life.

Even though it has been about fifty years since aviation was born in Canada many people still regard luxurious Viscount airliners, F-86 Sabre Jets and Tiger Cubs as being slightly improved versions of James McCurdy's Silver Dart.

Each time we hear of a plane crash, military or commercial, and a note of explanation follows quickly, the majority of them dismiss some fear of flying. Yet when a small, light airplane has an accident, and no explanation is put forth, if one suggests to them that they go for a ride in a Piper Cub or its equivalent, their reaction usually is reluctance.

It might help if the Department of Transport would realize that the public is interested in why small planes crash.

As a matter of fact, people might even be astounded when they learn that the majority of plane crashes are caused by the same element that makes highway accidents inevitable - - - human error.

WHERE'S THE TARGET?

Bertrand Russel, in an essay attempting to explain Einstein's theory of relativity to the layman, once pointed out how convenient it was for man that places on his world stayed put. Owt in space, he said, every spot was racing to get someplace else, which would make it difficult for a space traveller to calculate the location of his destination.

Here, though, when the Londoner boards a train for Edinburgh, he does not have to enquire where Edinburgh is this morning and in what direction it is moving. This, as Russel pointed out, is soothing for the railwayman and for the traveller.

Since that time, though, new travellers have entered the scene and now it does not take a vivid imagination to realize how much easier defence officials would feel if Washington, London and various other points were buzzing about the countryside.

Their stability, relatively speaking of course, is not, however, quite so big a headache as one might imagine. Air Chief Marshal Sir Philip Joubert, who was deputy chief of Britain's air staff during the Second Great War, has written an article on "Britain's New Air Strategy" for the United Kingdom Information Service. In it he says that Britain "is the first country to remold its defensive strategy into a pattern which takes account of the missile, both guided and ballistic, as the newest and probably the most powerful weapon of war." He added, however, that "conventional arms have still a part to play" and later comments that "the missile's target has to be predicted on the basis of calculations that may well be faulty. Surveys of partly developed countries, such as Russia's, are notoriously inaccurate."

So, even with a stationary target, there is still the problem of determining exactly where it is stationary at. First thought might be that this gives "point" to developed countries such as Russia's a decided edge. However, further thought will suggest that for accurate calculations it is just as important to know exactly where a missile is when it starts its flight as it is to know exactly where its target is located.

About the only conclusion we can reach is that, barring some device to make our cities copy the habits of objects in space, we had better shoot all surveyors, as obviously engaged in pinpointing our whereabouts.

Whoever is put in charge of world disarmament should not forget that Daniel Boone was never shot at when he owned the only rifle in Kentucky. — Windsor Star.

JUST FOLKS

THE METHOD

How do couples get along?
One of them is surely wrong.
When good nature takes to flight
Both of them cannot be right.
When I knew I couldn't win,
At that moment I gave in.

Wouldn't say we never heard
Down the years an angry word;
For the foolish things I'd do
Got the silent treatment, too.
And it often floored me flat,
I found ways to handle that.

I could speak as fast as she.
There were some that I would choose
That she'd never think to use.
This my weakness down the years:
Couldn't answer back her tears.

Never had a good reply
When she started in to cry.
When I saw her trembling chin
I lost all desire to win.
Then and there I said I was wrong.
That is how we got along.

Diefenbaker's 'Big Four'

Ottawa Journal

Mr. Diefenbaker has not formed a "cabinet of all the talents." But he has gathered around him a number of able men (and one able woman) who represent all three wings of Parliament and should be able to know their way around the departments within reasonable time.

An effective cabinet does not require a galaxy of geniuses. Given four or five especially competent members, a man who becomes a sort of "inner cabinet" directing overall policy, it can afford a number of other ministers who may be merely good administrators. That was true of Mr. St. Laurent's ministries, and probably true of all our cabinets since Macdonald's.

Mr. Diefenbaker clearly conscious of this, has added External Affairs to his own duties as Justice. Nothing here, as a sign of Mr. Diefenbaker's magnanimity and of harmony within the party, that two of the ministry's senior posts, Finance and Transport, have gone to the two men who were Mr. Diefenbaker's rivals for leadership at the December meeting — Mr. Fleming and Mr. Hamilton.

How many men, the "Big Four" of Mr. Diefenbaker's captains, will acquit themselves creditably will be answered by time. What can be said of them now is the public record in Parliament and their professions they would seem to be competent, and certainly in the House of Commons, Mr. Fleming and Mr. Harris were especially distinguished.

For remaining posts, some minor but important, there have been some interesting choices, such as those of Mrs. Ellen Fairclough as Secretary of State, an innovation; the first woman in a cabinet to become a cabinet minister.

In the long history of parliamentary government in Britain there had never been a woman minister until Mrs. Sidney Webb attained to that distinction in the first labor cabinet of Ramsay MacDonald in the 1920's. Mrs. Fairclough, if our memory is not at fault, is the second woman to reach such honor in a British Dominion.

Of almost equal interest, and an innovation, too, is the choice of Mr. Michael Starr as minister of Labor, the innovation that Mr. Starr is a representative of French-Canadian, Anglo-Saxon or British culture, but is Ukranian in origin, a fact that gives him one more claim to be the voice of our mosaic races. That he has demonstrated during the post seems to be evidenced by the fact that he served as Minister without Portfolio in the Cabinet of Mr. Ernest C. Drury of Ontario and in Parliament himself attained an enviable record in labor problems.

Major-General Pearkes VC, as Minister of Defence has its Inspiration in the past, but an interest stemming from the belief of some that, until now, the defence department should be a civilian.

Which belief is not one that prevails in Britain; Lord Alexander was the civilian minister and Sir Winston's choice of distinguished soldiers who headed the British War Department. It is related on this continent and notably in the United States where the United States National Security act provides that the Secretary of Defence shall not be chosen from civilian life and that "a person who has within 10 years served in active duty as a commissioned officer in a Regular component of the armed forces shall not be eligible for appointment as Secretary of Defence."

Sam Hughes, a soldier, was Defence Minister (it was Minister of Militia then) in the cabinet of Sir Robert Borden, and his regime (as Borden's memoirs testified amply) was not exactly happy. But it may well be argued that he was more due to Sir Sam's temperament than to the fact that a soldier and Major-General Pearkes, who rose to military eminence from the ranks, as did Sir Sam Hughes, He is in truth a fine Canadian with proven less ice in the military mind than may be found in some who have never worn a uniform.

Mr. J. M. Macdonnell, long the Conservative party's financial critic, is a minister without portfolio — merely the price of Finance. No doubt this is hard disappointment, just as it was hard disappointment to the brilliant Sir George Foster when, after 1911, he saw the post he so much coveted fall to a younger man, Sir Thomas White. Mr. Macdonnell, indeed, a scholar and philosopher, may well recall the lines:

"Ah but a man's reach should exceed his grasp
Or what's a heaven for."

Mr. Macdonnell's reach has fallen short not because of lack of intellectual fitness, but because the accent of this cabinet is on youth, and also because his long years of arduous service has brought some impairment of health. But respect for Mr. Macdonnell's courage and sincerity will remain, and in the cabinet without the drudgery of a particular post he will be a strength to Mr. Diefenbaker with his counsel.

Quebec, for the first peacetime cabinet since Confederation, has but two representatives — Mr. Balcer as Solicitor General and Mr. Hamilton as Postmaster General. But this undoubtedly comes only from the fact that Quebec's small contingent of elected Conservatives did not provide Mr. Diefenbaker with the necessary cabinet material — and probably explains why five cabinet posts have been left vacant for the time being.

Newfoundland, for the second time since entry into Confederation, gets a cabinet representative of its own, Hon. Gordon Browne, a native son, instead of that exile from Manitoba and Ottawa, Mr. Pickersgill.

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island each have representation, and British Columbia more (some may say) than its share.

Summed up, there is not here, we repeat a "cabinet of all the talents" and no aggregation of "supermen" or "supergenius," but a collection of ministers who, if they keep themselves free from the contacts of politics of predecessors, should serve successfully.

Railroads' Comeback

Kingston Whig-Standard

The nineteenth century was the great age of the railroad. They opened up the Canadian and American West and even so late as 1903 a lady wrote of Sir John A. Macdonald rode through the Rockies on the cow-catcher.

Those were the days of smoothing smokestacks, clanging bells, hissing pistons and the sad eerie wail of the steam whistle.

The last 20 years have seen the railways fall from their position of eminence. They no longer excite the venturesome, nor do their modern streamlined diesel engines exercise the same fascination over today's young fry. Even the railways are not finished, not by any means. Accordin to Philip Bandinah, the International President of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, railways travel is headed for a boom. Air travel, said Mr. Randolph, is the fastest, the speed, because you cannot see anything travelling by air. Motor cars are inevitable, he admitted, since they exact a terrible nervous toll from drivers on crowded highways and streets and city streets. Further, you cannot drive an automobile while you sit at the scenery at the same time.

Mr. Randolph says that streamlined, electrically operated, air conditioned railroad stock looks more enticing to a fatigued businessman commuting between conferences. There is privacy in modern railway coaches, he declared, since there are even cocktail bars (which you can drink because you are not driving).

From the dome-car you can see more of the country-side than you could from any other conveyance and from the stations you can get good meals at moderate districts and good hotels in the bigger centres.

Indeed, Mr. Randolph makes rail travel look most alluring, so alluring that I do not see why we are all going to get back on the rails.

Letter To The Editor

Thinks High Interest Rates Not Justified

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

Are the high interest rates of the former government's tight policy justified? I think not, and here are my reasons:

They make certain purchases prohibitive for those least able to afford them but do not affect those who are profiting by inflation.

If financial penalties are desirable to restrain purchasers, should not the government also restrain lenders? Failing to do so, it would appear, makes excessive interest rates a stimulant rather than a curb on inflation.

We can and do have "tight money" regardless of the interest rate as many residents know, so low-priced housing, which is badly needed, must be burdened with unnecessary expense.

And industrial expansion, denied by unnecessary interest, was encouraged a few years ago by doubling the rate of depreciation.

Youth Not Air-Minded

"Canadian Flight," Montreal

Like others in Canada we have been wondering why so many of our youth appear to be lacking interest in flying and aviation generally.

We find it difficult to understand why most teenagers do not have any desire to learn to fly and why the flying training centres are not swamped with well - qualified young men anxious to build a career in aviation.

Admittedly, aeroplanes are no longer a novelty, pilots are no longer regarded as Supermen and the cost of flying is high, but we cannot believe that is the reason for the lack of interest why our young people are staying on the ground.

It is quite a shock to discover that only a very small percentage of our population has ever flown; and even among seasoned and air travelers it is a surprising lack of knowledge of how the aeroplane comes to be the type of transportation in the all-important matter of safety.

It is unfortunate, too, that so many people have the impression that when one reaches the top old age at 18 it is time to stop learning to fly.

What is needed in Canada is an all-out air age educational program.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

There's No Change, Ma'am

The middle-aged woman — that's anywhere from 35 to 55 — who has any discomfort or disability, or any new complaint or symptom of fear or anxiety will seek the advice of her physician if she has good sense. If perchance she selects one who is a fossil, say by telling her that most women have some mild disturbance at here at the "critical" time of life, she would be wise to look around for a twentieth century physician.

That bugbear of middle age, the "hot flashes," sudden flushing or flustering associated with distressing warmth and sweating, is a disturbance of metabolism (oxidation or combustion rate) which occurs most frequently in middle aged persons but is by no means confined to women. It just seems that way because the women talk about it (to each other) whereas men prefer to keep quiet about it, lest they become subject to jest.

I believe the middle aged person with a reasonable amount of general exercise every day, such as walking to and from work or business and instead of riding, doing ordinary housework or other physical activity that relieves the pressure on the ischial tuberosities for an hour or more, is much less likely to have hot flashes than is one who gets little or no general exercise.

Too many men and women have become settled in bad habits by the time they reach the "dangerous age," eating too heartily, drinking, smoking and just sitting when they should be doing something.

For relief of hot flashes it is a good idea to boost your calcium metabolism by following a high calcium diet and-or supplementing your ordinary diet with an optimal daily ration of Ca and D (vitamin D, that is, which is essential for normal assimilation and utilization of calcium). If this does no good, and in any case it can do no harm.

Another remedy for hot flashes, which only your physician can administer or prescribe, is ovarian hormone. Various preparations of the hormone, for intramuscular injection or for oral administration (tablets), are estriol, theelin, permarin. Hormone treatment should bring definite relief in a week or less; if not, it should be discontinued.

REVELATIONS

There are miracles all about us if we only set our eyes upon them. At my Summer Island retreat I have had fun watching the antics of the red squirrel. In mid-season he will go to the top of a pine tree and nip quickly and accurately the cones that fall to the ground for his chore of shelling later on.

Each day is interesting fellow. He has no time for the top of the cone. Quickly he will toss the bottom of his cone to his agile forepaws and most skillfully cut away the harvest sheath, discovering those two small bits of meat—and he will continue the process until he has the cone clean, the entire cord as neatly stripped as though it had been done by a magician. Then he trots off glowing with pride.

I once witnessed one of these "reds" clean his face with dried leaves after partaking of too many of these pine cones. He uses the forepaws much as a cat does when eating. Edwin Way Teale has called this dry leaf wiping away of the pitch "the squirrel's napkin"! Another thing about this busy body of the forest is that he will make wild jumps and rarely miss his objective, but if he should fail he will try it again with a perfect confidence.

Today the squirrel such magic? The very first squirrel knew exactly how to strip a cone? These are revelations all through Nature—really they are miracles and, if you will look, all animals are experts in all that they do. They take no training. If we never read a book, and used our eyes and our reason, we could not help but become intelligent and reasonable.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On a social service committee with which I helped serve as an executive adviser, we tried every dodge to persuade one of our wealthiest philanthropists to agree to serve on a finance committee chief function of which was to offer suggestions about corporations into contributing fairly lavishly to the funds.

Two years in succession we failed. He was invariably busy, unable. Finally, in desperation, three of us called at his office.

Secretary: "He is engaged helplessly, "why I won't serve on that committee. I won't serve on it. I'm a fresh person or on it!"

Smith, which of course isn't the real name, is another owner of real estate as many readers know, so low-priced housing, which is badly needed, must be burdened with unnecessary expense.

And industrial expansion, denied by unnecessary interest, was encouraged a few years ago by doubling the rate of depreciation.

"Look, boss," he said. "Smith buys his suits at the same store, all identical. He buys a gross of shirts, three dozen ties, all the same. He buys a dozen pair of identical shoes. He hates shopping. He says what he likes, but it sticks to it. His house is full of clothes, but they're all the same."

"Oh," said the tycoon, pausing and reflecting. "I never thought of that. Okay, I'll serve on the committee."

I mention this story to show that some of our big shots are just as dumb, cantankerous and set in their ways, pesky prejudices as the rest of us.

Move Over - - - Fast

Detroit Free Press

Firemen made a run recently in time to keep a 14-year-old girl from throwing herself from the ninth window of a blaze. A little delay and they might have gotten there faster. But not much. Every day we see stupid, rattled or just plain ornery drivers delaying or impeding fire apparatus answering alarms. One such driver could spell the difference between a live girl and a dead girl on that run. Bear it in mind. Please hear the siren and see the red lights flashing. It can be up to you whether somebody lives or dies; whether by getting out of your way you help save a life or by not getting out of the way you've had a part in one being taken.

VOTE PADDING

"Well, your hopes will be sadly shattered. No rational person could believe that."

Mr. Swackhamer asked her if she knew the contents of lists being typed by a Mrs. Dorothy Hardwicke at Liberal campaign headquarters. After prodding by inquiry counsel, she said the lists were of applicants for inclusion on voters' lists. They had been kept in a locked steel cabinet. Only Kenneth Glancy, campaign manager, had the key.

ASKS REASON

Mr. Swackhamer asked why, if there was a "desperate shortage" of campaign workers as other witnesses had testified, one typist should spend days on a list of about 1,000 names.

"I am suggesting it looked as though the purpose was so that people could use that list to cast votes on election day."

"It would look like that," conceded Miss Conacher.

"I put it to you that that is exactly why and you knew it."

"No, sir."

Miss Conacher is a former softball player and a member of the athletic Conacher family.

MANAGER TESTIFIES

Mr. Glancy testified that Donald F. Downey was the policy-making campaign chairman and it was he who gave instructions to Mrs. Hardwicke to type the list of applicants' names.

The applicants had come to Liberal headquarters to request inclusion of their names on the voters' lists and it was fairly certain they were party sympathizers. The list was to ensure they had an opportunity to vote on election day.

Mr. Glancy said at first he had thought the list was a waste of time but when the explanation was pointed out to him he saw its wisdom.

FINANCIER

A winner of the award, like a winner of the Nobel Prize, will not be told how to spend the money. "If he wishes to buy his wife a fur coat out of the proceeds," Mr. Gairdner said, "it would be quite in keeping with the spirit of the gift."

Mr. Gairdner estimated the foundation's earnings from the initial grant at $25,000 a year. At this rate awards should continue indefinitely, he said, but the foundation was open.

"We'll take anybody's money," he said.

ACTUALLY REWARDS

Mr. Gairdner, an arthritis victim himself, emphasized that the foundation's awards were actually rewards. The foundation would not subsidize specific projects; but simply reward significant research.

Directors of the foundation will be Mr. Gairdner, personal advisors and members of his immediate family, and the holders of three leading Canadian medical positions—professor of medicine at the University of Toronto, and the chairmen of the medical advisory boards of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society and the Ontario Heart Foundation.

Respective incumbents of these positions, all from Toronto, are Dr. Ray Farquharson, Dr. Wallace Graham and Dr. Carl Burton.

Awards of the foundation are not limited to Canadians but may be made to researchers throughout the world.

Bank Finds Lost $27,500 In Garbage

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Embarrassing moment for any bank:

The Concord branch of the Crocker - Anglo Bank, noting a shortage Wednesday of $27,500, hurriedly asked its garbage collector to check his load. He did and came up with a deposit bag containing $27,500.

How did it happen?

"We're just not talking about this," said manager Lawrence M. Boehmen.

Minor Baseball

Vaughan's defeated Northern Electric 11-7 in a midget baseball game last night.

Gordie Vaughan pitched the distance for the winners, allowing seven hits, fanning four and walking two.

Bill Kelleher was the loser in relief, tagged for five runs on three hits in 3 1-3 innings. He whiffed three and walked as many. Masterson started, suffering three and walking one while giving up six runs on six hits in 2 1-3 innings.

Duggan slammed a three-run homer in the sixth inning to give Vaughan's the decision. John Brennan tagged a bases-empty homer for the winners in the second frame.

Rushlow had a triple and single and Dickey two singles to lead the Vaughan attack. Howard doubled and Harvey tripled, while Plane had a single.

Masterson collected a triple and single in defeat while Masters tripled, Kelleher doubled, Emerson, Denyes and Mavety also hit safely.

Municipal Hydro Body Fears Price War With Gas

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Representatives of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association fear that a price war between power and gas suppliers, will start once the trans-Canada pipeline is completed.

Dr. V. S. Wilson of Etobicoke, an executive member of the OMEA told a district meeting of the body in nearby Niagara-on-the-Lake Wednesday that gas companies could apparently afford to channel an unlimited amount of money into advertising their fuel and products.

He recommended that the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission and all provincial public utilities commissions start a publicity campaign to promote electricity.

Centenary Celebrated by 'Open House'

ROSLIN — On Saturday, all roads led to Roslin. From early in the morning until late in the evening old friends and new gathered to attend "Open House" at Chisholm's, who were celebrating their 100th anniversary in business under the same name.

The great grandfather of the present owners established the business in 1857 on the banks of the Moira, which consisted of a grist mill where the grain was ground with stones, and a saw mill for sawing lumber.

During the years, many changes and improvements have been made. In November, 1945, a fire completely destroyed both grist and saw mills. These have been re-built and enlarged, and at the present time they have besides, a planing mill, a modern seed cleaning plant and a mammoth showroom where all types of building supplies are available.

Weddings

LABELLE—McPHERSON

St. Joseph's Church, Belleville, was the setting for a recent pretty wedding when Blanche Rose Mary McPherson, of Cannifton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McPherson, became the bride of Leo Joseph Labelle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Labelle. The Reverend J. J. Buckley officiated before an altar adorned with carnations.

The Reverend Sister Wilhelmina provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Robert McPherson, the bride was lovely in a cocktail-length bridal gown of white lace over white taffeta, featuring a fitted bodice with matching bolero with long sleeves tapering to "V" points over the wrists. Her finger-tip veil of white lace was held in place by a crown shaped headdress studded with seed pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of red and white carnations.

Miss Barbara Derzaw, of Belleville, was bridesmaid, and was gowned in a cocktail-length dress of blue lace with matching headdress, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Gerald Labelle, of Belleville, R.R. 4, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

Following the wedding a buffet luncheon was held at the Odd Fellows hall, where the bride's mother received, wearing a green and white print, with white accessories, and white carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother, who assisted, was attired in grey, white and blue print, with navy blue duster with white accessories and corsage of pink and white flowers.

For the wedding trip to New York State, the bride chose a green cotton ensemble with white accessories and white carnation corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Labelle are residing at 315 Bridge Street East, Belleville.

Guests were present from Cannifton, Belleville and Wellington.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. C. Harrison, of Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. George Richard Post are pictured signing the register following their marriage in Holloway Street United Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Shirley Ellen Alyea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Alyea, of Belleville, and her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Post, of Stirling. POST — ALYEA

On Saturday, June 15, at 2.00 p.m. a lovely summer wedding was solemnized in Holloway St. United Church, when Shirley Ellen Alyea, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Alyea, became the bride of George Richard Post, of Stirling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Post. The Reverend A. C. Keeler, of Vernon, Ontario, uncle of the bride, officiated, assisted by the Reverend C. Coleman, pastor of the church, before a pretty background of pink and white peonies, interspersed with ferns.

Mr. Linton D. Read, guest organist, furnished the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in her bridal gown of embroidered Swiss organdy over taffeta, fashioned in waltz-length with molded bodice having a Sabrina neckline, short sleeves and cummerbund waistline. She wore a bridal cap encrusted with seed pearls and sequins, and finger-tip veil of tulle illusion, and carried a white Bible crested with a white orchid and satin streamers.

Mrs. Douglas Reid, of Belleville, attended the bride as matron of honor; while Mrs. Gordon Zimmerman, of Toronto, and Miss Carol Pope, of Dundas, Ontario, were bridesmaids. All were gowned alike in waltz - length azure blue crystal - charm, fashioned on princess lines, with white picture hats, white accessories, and carried cascade bouquets of white Shasta mums.

Little Miss Brenda Post, sister of the bridegroom, was a sweet flower girl in her embroidered organdy over pink taffeta, with matching floral bandeau. She carried a basquette of pastel - tinted sweetpeas, pink, blue and white cornflowers.

Master David Calnan, of Carrying Place, was ring - bearer, proudly bearing the ring on a white satin cushion.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Don McCurdy, of Belleville, while Mr. Melvin Alyea, and Mr. Elmer Alyea, of Belleville, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was held in the church parlors, where Mrs. Morley Dempsey, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. Irene Scott, poured tea.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake in all white, topped by a cluster of deep pink roses. Bouquets of peonies and cornflowers added a lovely nuptial accent.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Alyea was gowned in aqua lace over taffeta with white accessories, corsage of pink Sweetheart roses, and white picture hat. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Elmer Post, assisted in the receiving line, wearing beige lace over taffeta with matching accessories, beige picture hat, and corsage of yellow tea roses.

For the wedding trip to the Lake of Bays district, and northern Ontario, the bride chose a printed silk sheath and champagne linen duster ensemble, with matching picture hat, and accessories, and orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Post will reside at 1120 Cleveland Avenue, Evanston, Illinois, where the bridegroom is doing post graduate work at the Northwestern University.

Guests attended from Toronto, Sault Ste. Marie, New Jersey, Kingston, Ottawa, Barrie, Millbourn, Vernon, Rochester, Oregon, Burlington, Wellington, Port Credit, Saskatoon, and Scotland.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Calnan, with Mrs. Noxon Foster, and Mrs. Beecher Mikel, as co-hostesses, at a tea given by Mrs. Clifford Calnan, and at a combined shower and wiener roast given by Mrs. Douglas Reid and Mrs. Richard Ellis, at which the young couple was presented with a silver tea service.

So-Ed Club Holds Dance, Scavenger Hunt

On Wednesday, the So-Ed held a "Scavenger Hunt" and dance at the Y.M.C.A.

The participants in the scavenger hunt were divided into groups of about four or five persons, each headed by the driver of a car. Lists were given to each team of numbers, requiring them to bring back one each of the following items: live dew worm; live fly; 1954 license plate; fireman's hat; drive-in theatre program; blue garter; white rock; copy of Shakespeare's "12th Night; an empty nail polish bottle; brass door knob; turquoise tie and poison ivy leaf.

Time allotted was one hour. The winning team was composed of Ray Dearborn, Doreen Hollonby, Lena Bradshaw and Tony Pearce. The prize was one theatre ticket each.

The consolation prize to the other teams was a dose of poison ivy for their foolishness .It was also a consolation for the girls to find out that men don't wear turquoise ties.

After the scavenger hunt there was a refreshment period, followed by the dance.

Color Portrait Of Eisenhower Is Presented

WASHINGTON (CP) — Two years ago Elizabeth Lefort sat down in her home in the village of Point Cross, on the northern tip of Cape Breton Island, and began a tapestry portrait of President Eisenhower.

Thursday, as a gesture of Canada-American friendship, the 45-year-old tapestry artist presented the portrait at the White House. It was accepted for Eisenhower by Howard Pyle, special assistant to the president.

Miss Lefort said she copied the portrait, which took three weeks and 150,000 stitches to complete, from a photograph obtained from the Republican national committee here. It is the first time since its completion it has been on exhibition.

A descendant of Nova Scotia's famed Acadians, Miss Lefort puts an early Canadian background to work in tapestry portraits. She first draws the design of the picture on canvas and then dyes yarn on a wood stove to obtain the precise coloring of the original photograph.

She said she plans to write Prime Minister Diefenbaker of Canada and offer to do a portrait of Queen Elizabeth for presentation when she visits Canada this fall.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IF YOU REALLY WANT HER, I HOPE YOU GET HER

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

For nearly a year I've been going with a girl I hoped to marry some day. I've asked her many times to become engaged, but she has always refused, saying that she's not sure she loves me. She's 20 and I'm 21.

For the last few months we've had an affair, and now she tells me she's pregnant. Immediately I begged her to marry me, but she again refused, giving me the same reason.

I love her and want her to marry me, and I don't want her to bear the disgrace of having a child out of wedlock. How can I persuade her that we ought to get married? — Bill T.

Dear Bill:

If this girl is as determined not to marry you as she seems to be, you certainly can't force her to do so.

I might say that she doesn't seem to me to be a young woman of very good character if she would enter an affair with a man under the conditions you describe, and I'd have my doubts about the kind of wife she would make. If she had been swept away by her feeling for you into this affair, it would at least have been understandable. But when she went into the relationship without having any idea whether she loved you or not, it puts a wholly different light on it.

For that matter, I can't say that I think very much of you, either, because if you really loved this girl, as you insist you do, wouldn't you have thought too much of her to draw her into a premarital affair, well knowing that she would be in danger of finding herself in the very situation she now faces, and which you now deplore? Could it be possible that you deliberately did this with the thought that if she did become pregnant, she might then consent to marry you?

Under the circumstances, about all you can do now is to be as considerate and attentive as possible — assuming your full share of responsibility for this thing and standing by her throughout. Quiet loyalty and devotion may win out where your repeated urgings have failed, and if you really want gift of this type for your wife, then I hope things eventually turn out as you wish.

MODERN GROOMING GADGETS ARE PRETTY AND PRACTICAL

Released by King Features Syndicate

A multi-striped turban of terry cloth conceals pincurls as you wend your way through the supermarket.

Shopping around, as we often do, for new items to make life easier and prettier — around the home, we often run across gadgets that fascinate us. Woman-like, we want to tell you about them immediately for we always figure that while lots of you have no time to shop around yourselves and maybe see things even before we do, some of you may not. This, we imagine, is especially true of working wives. With one eye on the job and the other on the home, it's often pretty hard to see what's going on in all the shops. So let me tell you about my latest discoveries.

If you're like most women, you have probably lost your temper more than once when dresses or blouses made of delicate material casually slide off their hangers onto the floor. Now someone had the good sense to get a little gadget which will cure this problem. It's a short strip of colorful plastic foam which slips over the hanger hook, drops down over the wire hanger "arms," and then snaps taut at each rounded end. These hanger covers are also useful for drip dry laundry. The foam pads the wire hanger, and keeps it from rusting. When these strips are soiled, just slip them off the hangers and swish them through lukewarm soap or detergent suds. Rinse well and, if you're in a hurry, pat them dry between two layers of toweling.

You can look pretty at home, or even on the street, when your hair is drying after a shampoo. Tuck your curls under a special kind of turban made of terry-cloth towling. It comes in a mad multi-stripe pattern, is very absorbent, and can be washed in a matter of minutes. Just slip it on and adjust it to your particular headsize by pulling a button in drawstring. You'll also find it ideal for keeping curls under control while you soak in the tub.

We're always interested in work gloves because, frankly, we're very fussy about our hands. And these days there are so many of them — gloves for house-cleaning, for laundering, for dishwashing, for gardening, for washing the car. A busy woman's hands can take a terrific beating any day in the week, when she does no more than just the necessary jobs around the house. It's a pity that a lot of us learned to shy away from work gloves — just because the old-fashioned kind fit too tightly and made our hands feel too clammy and hot. Work gloves have come a long way in the past few years. Manufacturers who are up-to-date on the subject are turning out wonderfully comfortable work gloves — and they even look pretty!

We're especially partial to the rubberized type with cotton linings, that fit loosely enough to be comfortable, yet tightly enough to let you forget you've got them on. A pretty pair of turquoise work gloves can actually make you feel dressed up. They're a flexible, yet light-weight, yet protect the hands so efficiently in any housecleaning chores. And they're grand for sudsing sheer nylons, when a rough fingernail might snag a thread.

After each use, just suds them quickly, rinse them, and hang them over a towel rod to dry. If you can get the habit of using work gloves, you'll never give them up — especially for dishwashing, since your hands can comfortably stand hotter suds when you're wearing gloves. And, as you know, it's the suds that do the best dishwashing job.

I have noticed that calorie charts differ in the amount of calories in given foods . . . want to lose some weight . . . want to diet . . . yet do not want to feel weak as I have a good deal of outside work to do. I am 5' 5", have heavy bone construction, am 37 and weigh 170 pounds. Measurements are 38 - 29½ - 41. I used to weigh 128 lbs. but have been my present weight for 8 years. I restrict my diet by not eating pastries, cakes or candy, we break fast before 6 A.M., have dinner at 12 and supper at 6. I find it hard to go that long between meals without something. Here is my present meal pattern: Breakfast 6 A.M.: 1 orange, soft boiled egg or slice of cheese, 1 slice whole wheat bread toasted and lightly buttered; M i d-morning: Slice whole wheat bread, no butter, about 1 teaspoon honey, 1 glass skim milk; Lunch: Sardines or 2 slices whole wheat bread lightly buttered, with meat, egg or cheese, and fruit or potatoes, or fruit (fresh) and ¼ cup raisins; Afternoon: same as morning; Supper: Good helping lean meat, ½ cup each of 2 vegetables (no potato) or 1 vegetable and salad, fruit or custard and ¼ cup raisins. Before bed: 1 glass skim milk and 4 crackers thinly spread with cheese.

ANSWER

It gives me a singular pleasure to tell you that I was in your little town momentarily while the "Day-liner" stopped two weeks ago.

Anyone who has reduced from 128 to 170 lbs. and who is as disciplined as you are can lose another lb. without too much trouble. But because you are so hard working and young I would advise you to be content with losing 2 lbs. per month. Starting today make a record of your weight and waistline measurement. I presume you are not losing or you would not have appealed to me. Reduce the bread in mid-morning and afternoon snacks to ¼ slice and eliminate crackers at night and increase nightly cheese to 1-inch cube. If you are too famished from your hard morning's work to last till lunchtime, eat one of the "25% carbohydrate" foods: a tomato or juice, cucumber, celery. Also eliminate those raisins. They are very high in calories. English doctors advise their overweight patients to eat dried fruits because of their deceptively high calorie value. Substitute a whole orange or ½ grapefruit.

Do waistline and hip exercises lying on your back. If you want me to describe about 6 of them that require only about 10 minutes, said which I do, write again. If your weight does not go down on this routine, eliminate all butter. Let me know how you progress.

QUESTION:

. . . It is just like old friends to have a chat with you each day . . . our village Church is planning a garden tea . . . I have been asked to convene the tea table . . . If this is not suitable would you please send me a meal plan that would be? Am I eating too much bread? Joyce M

Mother's Helper

IS THAT accomplished young sock of yours about to spread her large rake with a spoke, gooey filling—jam, perhaps? Tell her to sprinkle powdered sugar over the surface before she does it, to keep that filling from disappearing by soaking into the cake.

I have attended such events and the sandwiches were all dried out. Could I serve something else? I dislike the idea of covering the food . . . there might be from 50 to 100. I thought I might have small cookies or tarts, assorted, or else angel food cake uniced . . . M. M.

ANSWER:

Professional caterers solve the problem of out-of-door parties by providing foods that have an outside surfacing: i. e., rolls, muffins, biscuits — some filled or containing ingredients; and petit fours and cookies. While an uniced angel food when sliced or pulled apart is attractive and popular, it will deteriorate quickly when exposed. My suggestions are: Chicken-salad filled tiny tea buns and small cheese and biscuits and tiny date-bran muffins; vari-coloured petit fours, tiny cutout shortbreads and not sprinkled brownies, and tarts, if desired. If I have suggested too many varieties, select just two items from each course. Have alert helpers to keep the plates from looking depleted.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

WHEN THE GUEST ARRIVES LATE TO DINNER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a guest arrives at a dinner so late that the hostess, feeling that she should not keep the other guests waiting so long, begins the dinner, should the late-arriver be served the first course of the other guests have finished that course? — Hostess

Generally, no. Since the late-arriver hasn't been considerate enough to arrive on time, he or she should be considerate enough, after apologizing for the lateness, to ask the hostess to let him or her begin the meal at the course that is being served. The gracious guest takes this practical procedure for granted . . . and the hostess should, wisely, agree with this suggestion.

PAPER SHOWER . . . INEXPENSIVE, DECORATIVE, USEFUL GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

So many showers these days! And will you please help me with my special shower-problem? A dear friend of mine is to be a late-July bride, and she has had several showers given her. Important ones) given for her: china, crystal, linen, kitchen shower, "beauty" shower. For one very important to me, I want very much to give her a shower too, but quite a few of the girls I want to invite are on limited budgets, and although I want the party to be a shower, I want it to seem more like a get-together of these special friends of the guest of honor. Could you think of some kind of shower and gifts (inexpensive ones) that would answer these requirements? — A.L.

Why not a Paper Shower? The gifts (or this can be very inexpensive, but also decorative, charming. They can be practical, too, most welcome incidental equipment for the new home. Suggestions: shelf-papers and gay edging for shelves; paper doilies (particularly beautiful these days) in all sizes and in many designs and colors; paper napkins, in lovely designs, wide range of colors, convenient sizes; place-mats and tray doilies; bridge sets; white place card, with plain edges or silver or gilt edges; playing cards; scrap books; paper and parchment lamp shades; nests of boxes for dresser drawers; a group of decorative wrapping papers; pictures; decorative and sturdy paper boxes, lovely and useful waste baskets; box of personal book-plates; rolls of paper towels and holder, for kitchen use; small guest towels; finger-tip towels, in boxes or in special plastic holders, which may be monogrammed; group of "Remember" cards or Telephone-Message pads; cookbooks; reference books, for purse; shopping or marketing lists, to be hung in Kitchen; boxes for pins of various kinds and sizes; engagement pad; boxes of tags and stickers of various sizes.

An especially thoughtful and useful present is a container of small labels printed with the new name and address of the guest of honor. Or: a box of generous-sized cards to be used for cooking recipes. Or: a box of glistening (red, green, blue, gold, silver, or white) match-books stamped with the guest of honor's new initials, or gaily "The Harrisons."

Sunday School Lesson

At War With Our Memories

By ROY L. SMITH

If it is drama you want, read the Old Testament! You will find it on almost every page.

Take the case of this week's Sunday School lesson, for example. The 11 sons of Jacob, driven in from the desert by a famine, and begging for even a little grain with which to feed themselves and their children, suddenly find themselves at the mercy of a brother whom they had sold into slavery almost 25 years ssarlier.

He whom they had wronged — had even tried to kill — is now in a position to sentence them to death, or to save their lives in the midst of a famine!

And the meeting is being held in secret!

WHEN LIFE RUNS REVERSE

In a swank Chicago club someone told the story of a circumstance that had developed in one of the big offices of the city that morning.

In a particular outfit in the South Pacific there had been an officer who was an arrogant sort — one of those individuals who knows no way to impress other men with with his authority other than by being "hard."

The uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 30: "Joseph, Man of Mercy." Genesis 41:53—50:26.

Added to his conceit was a certain sense of inferiority which took the form of a dread. His spite against a younger officer who was a quiet mannered man, quite self-contained, who left the impression of being a gentleman of quality. Day after day the hard-boiled one "rode" the younger man, apparently for the sheer delight of embarrassing him.

That morning, however, the war being over more than a year, the younger man was back at his job with the firm from which he had gone for military duty. And his job now included the responsibility of hiring men for junior executive positions.

Somewhere near ten o'clock an applicant was ushered into his office who was seeking a job. When the eyes of the two men met, each discovered that their position of a few years earlier was completely reversed. The hard-boiled officer was begging for a job from the junior officer whom he had ridden so brutishly.

And the gentleman proved that he was still a gentleman. The braggart was given his chance!

MEMORIES HAVE LONG LIVES

When Joseph's brothers stood before Joseph, and when the major stood before the second lieutenant a third party entered into the transactions to make them very intense and very terrible.

That third party was Memory!

Some poet has said that "he has the strength of ten men who knows his heart is pure," and he could have added that "he has only the strength of one-tenth of a man who remembers that there was a time when he was less than a man."

So many years had elapsed since that day the 11 brothers had dumped Joseph into the pit. It is quite possible that some of them had almost forgotten the circumstances. And there was no little in the prime minister to remind the shepherds of the conceited youth with the fancy coat!

But a thousand taunting memories swarmed to the support of their accusing memories when Joseph's brothers realized that the powerful man on the throne had been the silly youth bragging in the wheat field, and later sobbing from the pit.

There is a simple principle which is so very simple that its tremendous significance is apt to be overlooked.

We are making the memories today which will arise to curse us or to save us tomorrow.

And each man makes his own memories. No one makes them for us.

TAME MOOSE

CARROT RIVER, Sask. (CP)— Alex Green, who farms six miles southeast of here, is raising a young moose calf which he reports is quite tame. Mr. Green found the abandoned moose and took it home to be fed on milk.

RAWDON

Sine P. School Teachers, Pupils View Seaway

RAWDON — The teachers and pupils of the Sine public school and the fourth line public school took a bus trip recently to the Seaway.

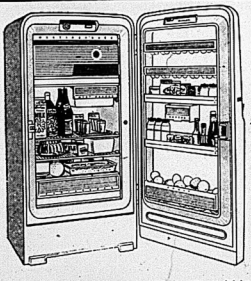
The group ate a picnic lunch at Long Sault Look-out and viewed the building of the dam at Cornwall they were taken on a conducted tour by the Hydro officials. They were first shown a movie to give them an idea of what they would see along the St. Lawrence Power Project, which is 2,300 feet long and will be named in honor of the late Robert Saunders.

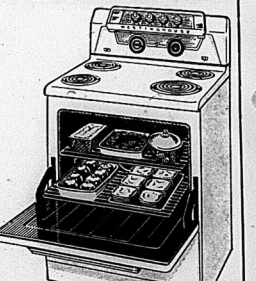
The group watched a house being moved to its new location at Iroquois. The new Eisenhower Lock, which is under construction, was also viewed.

Those from the Sine school who attended were Mrs. Clayton Tummon, teacher, and her older pupils, as well as Mrs. Ray Sine, Mrs. Russell Maxwell, Mrs. W. F. Kellar, Mrs. John Matherou, Mrs. Frank McGee and Mrs. James Johnston.

From the fourth line school were Mrs. Gladys Sine, teacher, and her older pupils, also Mrs. Bruce Murray, Mrs. Gordon Richardson, Mrs. Donald Drewery, Mrs. Kenneth Mumby, Mrs. James Barron, Jr. and Mrs. John Ryan. The group thoroughly enjoyed the trip.

FOUR-LEGGED DUCK





MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — A duck with four legs has hatched at the Moose Jaw hatchery. Jim Luther found a two-week-old duckling with four legs, the two deformed hind legs growing from Mrs. Kenneth Mumby's the bird's middle.

★ MEET THE REAL JOHN DIEFENBAKER

The 1951 Buick screeched to a stop. Grabbing his shotgun from the back seat, the lean, greying driver skidded out from behind the wheel and charged off over a fence in hot pursuit of ducks. Later, when the pressure of his job began to crowd him, he rapidly cleared his desk and headed for a far north fishing shanty. The man? Canada's new Prime Minister. In the coming issue of The Weekly Globe and Mail, Staff Writer Clark Davey presents an intriguing insight of the John Diefenbaker the public doesn't know.

★ Charlottetown — Birthplace of Our Nation

As the crowd waited, Sir John A. Macdonald signed Charlottetown's golden visitors' book. He paused at the column reserved for occupation, then slowly added the words "cabinet maker." On the eve of Dominion Day, native Maritimer David MacDonald revisits Charlottetown, the treasury of this nation's history, and tells of a people who still think of their home as destiny's island. Staff photographer Harold Robinson embellishes this holiday treat with color photographs in Saturday's Weekly Globe and Mail.

★ It's Curtain Time at Stratford

The curtain's about to go up on the Shakespearian festival at Stratford —and the man who will spin magic in the round is Michael Langham. Staff writer Betty Lee goes to the backs of the Avon to find out what sort of man Langham is. John Kraglund reports on the Toronto high school teacher who starred at Stratford as a valet and now directs Canada's foremost festival of music. Don't miss the Stratford news in The Weekly Globe and Mail.

★ Douglas Jung — the Man Who Laughed Last

They said it was a joke that the young Chinese-Canadian should run against the nation's Defense Minister. But Douglas Jung, the political unknown, had the last laugh. He not only ran, but won — and handsomely. Douglas Collins examines the record and ambitions of a man who trained for his days in the political arena by working behind Japanese lines as an allied agent during the Second World War.

★ Dictators Are Popular with the Portuguese

Portugal is perhaps the only country in the world that's happy with a dictatorship. But the big question is—what will happen when the long regime of Antonio Salazar comes to a close? Staff writer William French, in a report from Lisbon, assesses the political problems facing a country that considers communism a problem word for other nations. Look for this absorbing feature in The Weekly Globe and Mail.

★ Starts Saturday — First Enthralling Section of "The Sacrifice"

Now, for the first time in any Canadian newspaper, The Weekly Globe and Mail proudly presents the pick of the best-seller list — The Sacrifice. Written by 28-year-old Adele Wiseman, this powerful, poignant novel of Jewish life in Winnipeg took seven years to complete. Awarded the Governor-General's Medal, The Sacrifice has been hailed as a truly great literary achievement by critics the world over. Serialized in four parts, the first section of this important Canadian book starts in this Saturday's Weekly Globe and Mail.

ALL NEW COMIC SECTION

Next Saturday, The Weekly Globe and Mail is featuring a completely new comic section. From this issue on, the comic section will be a self-contained, 16-page tabloid. You'll follow the adventures of your old favorites—Vic Flint, Nero Wolf and others—more easily in this new comic section. And with a grand total of 18 strips, you'll be meeting a whole host of new characters . . . Priscilla's Pop, Chris Welkin, Fordinand, Big Ben Bolt—get acquainted with them all in the coming issue of The Weekly Globe and Mail.

SALT HARVEST TIME IN COLOMBIA

A view of the salt beds at Manaure on the northern coast of Colombia where more than 2,000 Guajura Indians and their families take part in the annual salt harvest. As far as the eye can see, thousands of mounds of salt are piled up in the huge salt beds. The salt is brought ashore, put in bags and used for domestic and commercial use. The salt has comp from sea water that has been evaporating for months. The women blacken their faces and exposed parts of their bodies with "Pal-Pal," a liquid made from tree bark, to protect them from the tropical sun.

DESERONTO

District Fire Department to Stage Parade

DESERONTO — The local volunteer fire department is looking forward to a gala time this Saturday afternoon. According to reports, the parade to be staged at 7 p.m. will be one of the best held in Deseronto in many years. Already they have been assured of the attendance of several of the neighboring departments with several pieces of apparatus. It is also hoped that some of the departments from across the border will be present. As far as is now known there will be three and, perhaps, four bands in attendance. One of the most interesting bands of the district, the Miniature Band from Picton, will be present and is sure to delight all who witness its performance. Also attending are the Napanee band which recently won a prize in a contest at Peterborough, and the famous Lion's Club Boys' Band from Trenton. There is also a possibility that the Belleville Pipe Band will be present.

After the parade there will be games and various other amusements in the town park.

This is the first attempt in a great many years to bring together the fire departments of the district. If the attempt this year is successful arrangements will be made to make it a yearly event and add competitions of various kinds. Already there is a promise of one cup for the competitions.

DRIVE CAREFULLY!

The following public-spirited concerns have sponsored this advertisment in order to make motorists realize the importance of careful driving. Keep your car in A-1 driving condition and make sure you drive carefully at all times.

"For Our Children's Sake"

Follow These Rules for Safe Driving

- Be doubly careful near schools or where children play. Children don't realize the danger and may take chances. That's why you, the driver, must take extra care.
- Slow down. Speed is dangerous at any time — doubly dangerous when visibility is cut by rain, fog or darkness.
- Keep lights and windshield wipers in good condition during rainy or snowy weather. You have to see danger to avoid it.
- Keep your car in top mechanical condition. Use chains when roads are slippery.
- Obey traffic laws. Know the traffic laws wherever you travel and don't break them.
- If you drive, don't drink — if you drink, don't drive. Remember, death takes no holiday.
- Be a courteous driver. Yield right-of-way even when it should be yours. It's better to stay alive than to be dead right.

Feeling High Among Strikers, Men Who Have Gone Back To Work at Murdochville

MURDOCHVILLE, Que. (CP)—An air of lethargy hangs over this Gaspe community. Tension and worry etch the faces of families trying to subsist on strike allowances.

Residents of this valley town high in the Shickshock mountains have been in precarious financial position since the beginning of a strike at Gaspe Copper Mines Limited, the community's only industry.

The strikers say they've been "getting by" since the walkout was ordered March 11. Their strike pay is enough to buy food but there is no room in the budget for other necessities such as clothes.

300 IN TOWN

About 300 of the 1,000 men who went on strike live here with their families in attractive, modern homes rented from the company. More than half the strikers were from scattered communities along the Gaspe coast and they returned to their homes shortly after the walkout began. About 200 left the district to seek now jobs.

Feeling is high between strikers and men who have gone back to work. People who were close friends no longer speak to each other.

Strikers lounge around their homes or pass part of the day at union headquarters playing cards and checkers or just talking.

Almost always the conversation swings around to money.

Typical of the striking miners are Jules Richard, 36, and Raymond St. Laurent, 36. Both live in homes rented from the company. Neither has paid any rent since the strike started.

ENOUGH FOR FOOD

The Babins have nine children, ranging in age from two to 12. Before the strike Jules cleared $63 for a 48-hour week after his rent at $40 a month was deducted. He now receives $43 a week from the striking United Steelworkers of America (CLC).

"It's enough to eat on but that's all," he says. "We haven't paid our rent because we can't. So far the company hasn't done anything about it but I don't know how long that will last."

Mrs. Babin is more concerned about her children than the rent.

"Clothes are what worry me," she says. "Some of the children have been getting by on the clothes they had when the strike started. But I don't know what we're going to do when we have to start buying new things."

The St. Laurents, with five children between two and 10, get $33 a week strike pay. Raymond says he cleared $63 weekly after rent before the strike started.

PREDICTS LONG STRIKE

Both said they are determined to stick out a lengthy strike.

"This strike isn't going to end tomorrow," said Mr. St. Laurent. "I think it's going to be a month or two yet but I think we'll win."

Mr. St. Laurent, who served five years in the army during the Second World War, was bitter about intervention of Quebec Provincial Police in the dispute.

"There wasn't a bit of trouble before they came," he said. "Not even a pane of glass had been broken.

"Then the police were sent here and trouble started. A company oil tank at Mont Louis was blown up and there was a scuffle on the street and four people were hurt.

"I don't think any of this would have happened if police hadn't come. We're not criminals."

PAYING FOR CAR

In addition to the overdue rent, Mr. St. Laurent has to make monthly payments on a car he bought before the strike. He hasn't made a payment since the strike started.

"The union arranged to pay the interest for me and have the payments deferred. I can't hope to keep up the payments on the strike pay I get."

Mr. Babin and Mr. St. Laurent said strikers who live in other Gaspe villages have a chance to supplement their incomes.

"A lot of them were fishermen before the mine opened here," Mr. Babin explained. "Others were construction workers. They can go back to their original trades and pick up extra money. But here in Murdochville there's only the mine."

Both the St. Laurents and Babins like Murdochville although they find the long, cold winters difficult.

"Whoever built these homes apparently had never lived through a Gaspe winter," said Mrs. Laurent. "The walls are like paper and a big part of our money has to go to keeping the house warm. It costs about $250 for winter just for heat."

"But we want to stay despite that," she added. "I just hope we get this strike settled soon."

"Don't worry, Mr. Jones, he's quite harmless, except if anyone were to lay a hand on me he'd tear them limb from limb."

Twins Spend Last Day With Foster-Parents

TORONTO (CP) — The three-year-old Maat twins, centre of a legal battle for their custody almost since the day of their birth, Thursday spent their last outing with their foster-parents at a summer cottage on Sturgeon Bay near Victoria Harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Repton who nursed the boys since they were a few days old only to have the Supreme Court of Canada decide Wednesday they must be returned to their natural parents, took them to the cottage about 18 miles northwest of Orillia Wednesday night.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Trudy Maat, mother of the twins, Roland and Reinhold, said she was happily waiting for their return.

Mr. Hepton said he would return to Toronto with the boys to meet Dublin, the Heptons' lawyer, made arrangements for the children turned over to the Maats.

Case of Stateless George Hanna Reconsidered

OTTAWA (CP)—Acting Immigration Minister Fulton says the case of stateless Christian George Hanna is being reconsidered by the new Progressive Conservative government.

However, he said Thursday, no decision has been made as yet on whether the 23-year-old man without a country will be allowed to remain in Canada or be deported to a Canadian citizen.

"The file is on my desk for decision," he said.

Former immigration minister Pickersgill on last March 27 in the Commons that Hanna, now unemployed in Victoria, would be left "undisturbed" for the time being. He made the statement at a time a British Columbia Supreme Court decision declared invalid a deportation order against Hanna.

Hanna arrived in Vancouver last December aboard the Norwegian freighter Gudveig. Because his country would accept him, he had been a virtual prisoner on the vessel since he stowed away at Beirut, Lebanon, 15 months earlier.

Decision Causes Panic Among Families

MONTREAL (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada's decision restoring two boys in Ontario to the custody of their natural parents is causing panic among adopting families, a Montreal welfare official said Thursday.

Mrs. Muriel McRea, director of the Children's Service Centre, said:

"The whole structure of adoption agencies is based on the right of the natural mother to decide whether to keep her child or not. We never try to hurry this decision or to coerce the mother in any way.

"Now the decision is made, however, the rights of the adopting parents must be considered and, if the natural mother can change her mind on the eve of adoption and inevitably recovers the child, there is no security for adoptive parents."

Hormones Found Key to Resistance To Diseases

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Hans Selye, University of Montreal scientist, has produced evidence that disease-producing agents remain dormant in the body until the hormone balance is disturbed.

Best-known for his book on the effects of stress on the human body, Dr. Selye Thursday described his experiments at the ninth international congress of rheumatic diseases. He said his work makes it clear that in certain diseases it is of no consequence that the patient has the disease in his body as long as the hormone balance is maintained.

Hormones are types of internal secretion that pass into the blood stream and stimulate organs to action.

He said it therefore was not always necessary to remove the cause of the disease to prevent the onset of the disease. It may just be necessary to restore hormone balance.

"It's not like killing bacteria to eliminate the cause of the disease," Dr. Selye said. "You can treat the disease by changing the body's disease susceptibility."

Dr. Selye produced bone overgrowth in animals by giving them an excess of sweet pea flour, and caused heart attacks in rats and mice animals by giving them an excess of vitamin A. Then by administering cortisone or hormones, he brought both bone conditions back to normal.

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of highways announced Thursday that North Shore Construction Company Limited of Montreal has been awarded a contract for $538,702 for work in the Brockville district.

The contract covers structural work, grading, culverts, granular base and hot-mix paving for a distance of 1.27 miles on the interchange of Highways 401 and 29 to the North Augusta Rd.

Liskeard Construction Limited was awarded a contract for $235,- 000 for grading that will be used on Highway 11 near Kapuskasing.

Other awards, all for crushed gravel, included R. H. Jennison, Grand Bend, $19,250; Lickard Construction Company, $21,570 and $13,380; L. H. Owens, Cochrane, $22,950, $22,700 and $17,190; M. J. New Terminal Being Proposed MONTREAL (CP)—A multi-million dollar marine passenger terminal for Montreal is in the "preliminary discussion" stage, G. S. Anderson, assistant port manager disclosed Thursday.

The project, he said, has been the subject of meetings between officials of the national harbors board and passenger lines coming to Montreal.

The proposal parallels a current $57,000,000 expansion of the harbor's cargo-handling installations, to be completed with the St. Lawrence Seaway project late next year.

Montreal's two-way passenger flow last year totalled 142,828 and is expected to be considerably greater this year.

Minor Accidents Show New York's Railways Vulnerable if Attacked

NEW YORK (AP)—A staggering succession of railway tie-ups in New York this week tried the patience of homebound commuters —and waiting wives—as seldom before.

But more than that, the disruption raised the question of how vulnerable the rail connections of the continent's largest city would be in event of an enemy attack.

The traffic evenings in a row of dozens of outbound trains with as many as 27,000 commuters were delayed up to two hours. Twice, morning inbound trains were delayed up to 45 minutes.

In each case, the cause was minor—a fire in the wiring of a locomotive, an engine failure, or a slight derailment. But that was enough to cause widespread "behind them, and require painstaking rerouting.

If these mishaps can cause so much delay, what would happen if an enemy bomb fell on the railroads?

New York, for all its size, has only two major railroad stations: Grand Central Terminal and Pennsylvania Station.

Inside Manhattan are 116 tracks—but they merge down to four outside the terminal to carry all New York Central and New Haven Railroad trains entering or leaving New York.

Trains stalling in this four-track bottleneck invariably cause other trains to stack up behind them.

"If a bomb were dropped on the tracks going up Park Avenue we would have to shut the doors of Grand Central Terminal," a New Haven official said. "Everybody is

SAYS CASE SHOULD BE TRIED IN JAPAN

Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi (centre) of Japan tells newsmen in New York that it is "most desirable" to settle the case of army specialist William Girard according to the status of forces agreement between the U.S. and Japan. Court action has blocked the government's attempt to hand the soldier over to Japanese authorities for trial. He is accused of killing a Japanese woman on a U.S. artillery range.

New Round of Steel Price Increases Begins Monday

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A new round of price increases in the steadily penetrant steel industry—begins Monday.

U.S. Steel Corp., biggest steel producer and traditional industry pace-setter, Thursday announced it will increase its basic prices about $6 a ton.

Other steel firms are expected to make similar price adjustments. However, Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp called the $6 increase inadequate.

Although steel products vary widely in price according to grade and shape, the average composite price will be an estimated $146 a ton. It is the sixth boost in as many years. Last year the industry raised prices $850 a ton.

The increase came just one day after President Eisenhower said inflation might become a "real danger" unless management and labor show restraint in wage and price boosts.

Officials in Washington had anticipated a much higher increase, possibly as much as $12 to $14 a ton. Most of them took the attitude that the increase might have been worse, but all agreed that will be inflationary.

Clifford F. Hood, U.S. Steel president, said the increase is necessary to compensate for a company-estimated 31-cent hourly package increase effective Monday for the firm's production workers under a three-year contract with the United Steelworkers.

Pay raises will "bring the corporation's average hourly employment cost for wage employees organized in steel production to about $2.33 per hour—a record high," said Hood.

Consumers now can look for the probability of higher prices on numerous items involving steel.

Chief among industries directly affected are automobiles, construction, oil and appliances. It's likely that many firms in these industries also will increase prices.

Poland Marks Anniversary of Poznan Riots

POZNAN, Poland (Reuters)—Workers, soldiers and government officials today observed the first anniversary of the Poznan riots which liberated Poland from Stalinist rule.

Ten-day western industrial town where 53 persons were killed in the rioting, special masses were held in all Roman Catholic churches. Memorial services were held all over Poland.

In Poznan, delegates from factories, offices, army and police took part in wreath-placing ceremonies at eight cemeteries.

Wladyslaw Gomulka, Polish Communist leader, who swept to power after the riots, has agreed that the anniversary be observed as a family tragedy, and newspapers said propaganda was marked by "calm and restraint."

The workers taught the government a painful lesson and the wounds are still fresh and aching. The trade union newspaper Glos Pracy says.

Prominent in the crowds here were the men of the Cegielski works, whose strikers started the disturbances that led to the storming of the jail, the attacks on police stations and the pitched battles of the security police headquarters.

Today's demonstration was against the low standard of living, wage cuts, and unjust taxes—grievances now admitted by the party and government to have been genuine. Since then, wages have gone up 30 per cent.

CLAIMS 200 LIVES

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — The Asiatic influenza epidemic has claimed 200 lives in India and has nearly 500,000 persons since it began here about six weeks ago.

Two Witnesses Invoke Recent Court Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Senate witnesses seized on a recent Supreme Court decision Thursday as grounds for refusing to say whether they were Communists when they had access to official U.S. government messages.

The two, appearing before the Senate internal security subcommittee, are Howard V. Trautman and Salvatore A. Testa, both of New York and both members of the American Communications Association.

Their testimony produced these results:

1. They were suspended from their jobs as automatic telegraph operator and radio operator, respectively, by RCA Communications, Inc.

The company said it acted in line with policy "to guard against subversion and to maintain protection for its employees and property against possible espionage or sabotage."

2. They stand set up what may be a guideline for others. Instead of relying on the constitution's Fifth Amendment protection against self - incrimination, they cited the First Amendment and the Supreme Court's June 17 decision in the John T. Watkins case.

3. Senator Pat McNamara (Dem., Neb.) mentioned the possibility of a trial before the Senate—which has sent people to jail in the past for contempt—rather than in the courts.

THE FIRST TIME

This was the first time witnesses in such open committee meetings have invoked the Watkins decision, one of several recent ones by the high court which took aim at a storm of debate.

In the Watkins case, the court held there is no congressional power "to expose for the sake of exposure" and that instructions to an investigating committee must spell out that power, jurisdiction and purpose with sufficient particularity.

Watkins, a labor organizer from Rock Island, Ill., had been convicted of contempt of Congress in such a refusal to identify some of his past associates when he conceded he had been a Communist. The Supreme Court threw out the conviction.

USE TEAR GAS

OTTAWA (CP) — County jail guards used tear gas Wednesday night in a prison riot.

Police said that Lucien Bertrand, 22, of Ottawa smashed about 80 panes of glass, a number of tables and chairs and ripped a piece of piping off the Carleton Bank of Governor Carl Bradley ordered the gas. Bertrand was taken to a psychiatric ward for treatment.

GETS THREE YEARS

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Phillip C. Nellis of Ingersoll Thursday was sentenced to three years in Kingston Penitentiary for the armed robbery of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at nearby Port Stanley April 1. Approximately $2,000 was taken.

Conflicting Views on Russia's Intentions Feature Opening Phase of London Parley

LONDON (CP) — A conflict of views over Russia's intentions has been a feature of the opening phase of the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

Prime Minister Nehru of India feels broadly that Russia—despite events in Hungary—is still groping slowly toward a more Liberal approach in world affairs.

Prime Minister Menzies of Australia disagrees. In a blunt speech spiced with sarcasm, he demands proof of any Soviet change of heart. For one thing, how about a Russian gesture on German reunification?

Most of the other eight prime ministers, or deputies, more or less support the Australian view.

The parley is reminiscent of the last conference of Commonwealth premiers exactly a year ago. Then India, supported by Ceylon's Prime Minister Solomon Bandaranaike, pleaded for a greater effort to try to understand Russian problems. The other representatives warned against placing too much dependence on what seemed to be a "softer" Russian foreign policy.

WANTS FORCEFUL REPORT

Menzies, something of an elder statesman at Commonwealth conferences, is seen as leading the pace. He wants the final communique, issued next week, to be vigorously worded. He also can't subscribe to the general sentiments, perhaps there should be more clarity report.

Canadian Premier John Diefenbaker has also criticized Russia.

It is understood he condemns Russia's tactics of subversion and infiltration. Why, he asks, cannot Russia and the neighboring countries live in harmony, as Canada and the United States have for so many years?

South Africa has attacked Communist attempts to penetrate the African continent. Pakistan strongly upholds the Baghdad Pact as a barrier to Communism. India, however, believes such pacts are among the chief causes of tension.

India thus appears somewhat isolated in her views on the cold war, though she can undoubtedly count on Ceylon's support.

Nehru thinks the time is ripe for a new psychological approach to Russia. He agrees Hungary was a setback to the greater moderation that he believes is becoming apparent in Russia, but thinks it was only temporary.

The majority of premiers want to see something tangible from Russia, and regard Hungary as a sign of Russia's true intentions.

This majority attitude can be weighed against the careful optimism about the progress of disarmament talks expressed at the conference. British officials are said to feel Russia genuinely wants some agreement on halting the arms race partly through fear of American nuclear superiority.

'Diefie' Little Nervous About Meeting Queen

LONDON (CP)—When it comes to royal protocol, Canada's new prime minister takes his tips from Australia.

Menzies boy in London, Prime Minister Diefenbaker was a little nervous about meeting the Queen in audience at Buckingham Palace.

Take three paces forward, they told him, bow, take three steps back and wait for the Queen to speak first.

The ritual sounded rugged, so Diefenbaker consulted Australian Premier Robert Menzies, an old stager at Commonwealth conference.

"Nonsense!" snorted Menzies. "Be as informal as you like. Throw the rules away."

Diefenbaker did, and got along splendidly. The Tuesday meeting lasted 40 minutes, delaying the luncheon reception for a scheduled engagement.

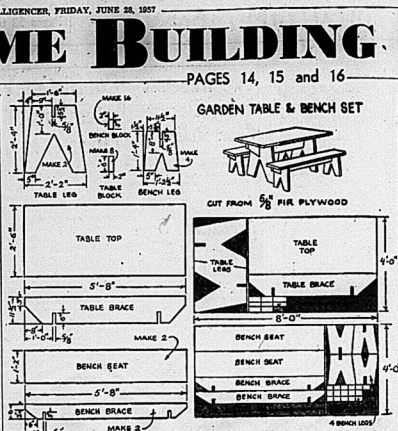
Table and Bench For the Patio Are Easily Made

Simplicity is the keynote in this useful garden table and bench set. The handy outdoor set shown here is simple to build and simple to fold away for storage in the winter months.

Because of ability to withstand sun, rain and rough usage, fir plywood is excellent material for garden furniture. The handy panels eliminate old fashioned "lumber" and make construction easy. On the way home from work a handyman can pick up two panels of ¾ inch fir plywood and with nothing more than a saw and hammer, plane and chisel, this useful table and bench set can be completed that evening.



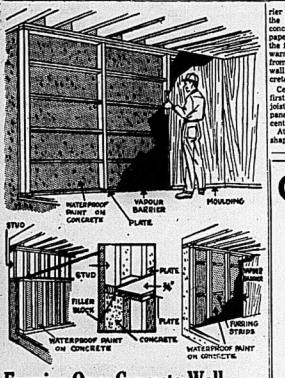
LAY OUT PLAN

The entire cutting plan is first laid out on two sheets of plywood. With a sharp crosscut saw the various pieces are shaped then planed and sanded. Be sure to leave sufficient space between each part to allow for the saw cut and finishing of all edges.

Care should be taken in cutting the notches. The rigidity of the table and benches depends upon a snug fit where the legs and braces interlock. Cut the notches slightly narrower than ¾ inch and file to correct width. Use a half inch chisel to make the cut across the bottom of the notch.

Place the table top face down on the floor and after fitting the legs and braces together, centre this unit upside down on the inverted top.

Mark the location of the eight positioning blocks (one on each side of each leg next to the brace.) Glue and nail these blocks in place. This method of assembly makes the table easy to take apart for storage and carrying.



The assembly of the benches is the same as the table. If the bench seems too wobbly, the legs and brace may be glued and nailed to the bench seat.

After a thorough sanding with fine sandpaper, the finish can be left with the natural grain of the wood showing or the set can be painted in solid colors.

"Wiped-down" finishes are easy to apply and very attractive. The trick is to use a good interior white undercoat, tinted with the desired shade of pigment and thinned out to show the grain of the wood. Brush this mixture on smoothly, then wipe off with a clean cloth. Follow this treatment with the regular shellac, and then finish with a coat of flat varnish.

Framing Over Concrete Wall Solves Basement Paneling

If you are planning to build a room in the basement it is a good idea to look to the future and plan your space with the possibility of more rooms in mind. A little planning now can forestall a lot of remodelling headaches when you decide to add another room or so.

Chances are, whether you build one room or several, you'll run into the problem of what to do about attaching framing to a concrete wall.

FIR PLYWOOD PANELS

The easiest and most economical way to build a basement room yourself is to frame up the room for fir plywood panelling. Methods of overcoming some of the problems involved will be considered here.

Before you proceed to "furr-out" a concrete wall for panelling as shown above, it is good practice to liberally paint the concrete with waterproof paint or similar waterproof compound.

DRILLING HOLES

By star-drilling holes in the concrete, then plugging the holes with wood, one can attach "furring" strips of 1x2 inch lumber on which to nail the fir plywood panels. Furring strips can be attached horizontally, 16 inches on centre, with vertical blocking 4 feet on centre.

Better air circulation where there is possibility of dampness can be achieved by attaching complete stud frames (instead of the furring strips) to the concrete wall as illustrated above.

Where no pipes are in the way, whole stud walls, or sections of them, can be made on the floor and tipped into place. In this case the stud wall need not be attached to the concrete but can be anchored to joists and floor plates.

A method of framing up the projection formed by a partial concrete wall is also illustrated. This method retains the shelf formed, where the outside wall rests on the concrete foundation. The room will here could, of course, be furred-out with stud framing so as to be flush from ceiling to floor with the shelf eliminated.

When installing stud framing, put frames in so there is no dead air space behind the panels. Small blocks to keep frames half an inch from the wall will do.

Once the room is framed and squared up with plum bob and level, it is a good idea to have electrical wiring done. If heating or ventilating is needed, now is the time to provide for it.

BARRIER PAPER

Before fir plywood panels are nailed to the frames, vapour barrier paper should be applied to the framing that is attached to concrete walls. The vapour barrier paper goes between the studs and the fir plywood panels. It prevents warm, moist air from the room from passing through the cold concrete wall behind.

Ceiling panels should be put on first, to strapping attached to the joists. It is best to apply ceiling panels outward from a ceiling centre line.

At this stage the room takes shape quickly with the 4x8 foot fir plywood panels covering 32 square feet of wall at a time.

PAINT IS GOOD FOR BRICK HOUSES

Although brick often is used for exterior house walls because it calls for a minimum of upkeep, tests have shown that when such walls are painted they actually become cooler and less humid in summer as well as being sealed against moisture absorption and seepage.

Sow Pansies in Summer, You'll Wear 'Em in Spring

In addition to being one of the garden's most brilliantly colored and easily grown flowers, the summer-planted pansy offers you a chance to be the first in your neighborhood with fresh flowers next spring.

Now is the time to plant seed for that early spring harvest of beauty. Pansies are generally classed as annual flowers, but they really are biennial. They lie dormant through the winter, with little care, in a cold frame or sheltered place.

The plants will hold their green leaves all winter and bloom as soon as the earliest spring flowers are out. If grown in the shade, with faded flowers removed promptly, they will bloom all summer.

It is easy to start a flat or two of these lovely flowers each year. Seed may be sown as late as August 15 in moist weather. Let the spading a third sharp sand, a third peat moss, and a third sifted top soil. Cover the surface with a half-inch layer of sphagnum moss, and broadcast the seed in this, with a little more to cover them. Keep moist until the seeds germinate.

The moss will prevent damping-off, a fungus-disease which is dangerous in hot weather. Let the plants grow out in the open until fall. Then if you have a cold frame put the flat in it and cover with leaves for the winter.

Lacking a cold frame, set the flat in a protected corner, and cover. It is better to transplant the seedlings, setting them seven to eight inches apart in additional flats, but if you sowed thinly, this can be skipped and the plants left to winter in the original flat.

When the garden soil has been prepared in the spring, move the plants to a portion of the border which is on the shady side of a building. They may not grow as fast as first but are more dependable in hot weather.

Pansies like these, sown now, will give you a gardenful of bloom on your neighbors next spring.

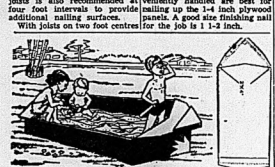
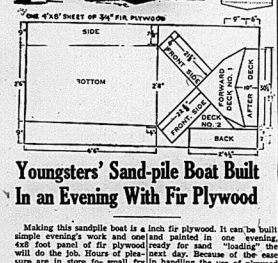
Panel Ceiling of Room First When Finishing With Plywood

Paneling a new room in the basement or finishing a roughed-in room in the attic is a job most handymen are prepared to tackle.

If you plan to panel both walls and ceiling it is best to put on ceiling panels first. A few tips on how to handle fir plywood ceiling panels are illustrated here.



First, blocking will be needed at the top plate where walls join the ceiling joists. This 2x4 blocking placed between the joists will provide a nailing surface at the perimeter of the room to which ceiling panels can be attached. Blocking between the joists is also recommended at four foot intervals to provide additional nailing surfaces.



With joists on two foot centres and blocking on four foot centres, the 4x8 foot plywood panels will then meet on solid nailing surfaces.

Handling fir plywood ceiling panels is often a two man job. Shown here is a simple T-bar which will be of great assistance. A cleat nailed to the top plate of the wall will also make the job easier.

A bench made of sawhorses with a fir plywood panel laid on 2x4's makes a solid stand from which to proceed. The handle of the T-bar should be approximately one inch longer than the distance from the bench to the ceiling.

Nails as small as can be conveniently handled are best for nailing up the 1-4 inch plywood panels. A good size finishing nail for the job is 1 1-2 inch.

Youngsters' Sand-pile Boat Built In an Evening With Fir Plywood

Making this sandpile boat is a simple evening's work and one 4x8 foot panel of fir plywood will do the job. Hours of pleasure are in store for small fry who sail off into the unknown of the backyard.

The boat shown here was sawn from a single sheet of 3-4 inch fir plywood. It can be built and painted in one evening, ready for sand "loading" the next day. Because of the ease in handling the use of plywood

Your Roof Takes On New Importance

Color, Texture, Pattern Of Shingles Set Style

Roofs are given more serious thought by homeowners and home builders today than ever before. A roof always has had to keep a house dry and remain tight as long as possible. Nowadays, color, texture and pattern have entered the picture.

Architects and decorators have come to realize that a roof, being the largest single area on a house, can dictate the exterior colors for the house. Furthermore this matter of color has a functional value in insulation. Especially since air conditioning has become so popular, the ability of summer has become important.

Designers say that light, bright colors on a roof make a house seem taller than it is. So they recommend these colors for one-storey houses.

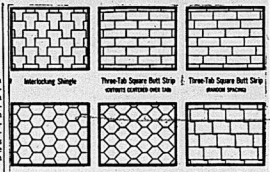
Engineers say that a white roof is the coolest in summer. But they also found that a black roof can be the warmest in winter.

Reroofing gives any owney of a gabled house a chance to change and improve the exterior styling of his whole house. Asphalt shingles which are now the most popular roofing material, for houses, can be had in such a wide range of colors that the homeowner can satisfy any color preference.

GRANULES PROVIDE COLOR

The ceramic granules which coat this type of roofing give both color and texture to the shingles. They are firmly imbedded in the base material so that even if some may wear off, the color and texture remains for the life of the roof.

So the five points to consider, if you want to put a new roof on your house, are: (1) Color and texture, (2) roof pattern, (3) weight of the roofing material, (4) shingling over the old roof covering, and (5) application techniques.



The relation of the shingles, one to the other, form a design on a roof. Many different designs are possible, varying with the size and shape of the shingles as well as in the manner in which they are laid .By finding out what shapes are available and also the different ways the shingles can be laid, the homeowner can pick a design that best suits his house.

VARIATION IN WEIGHT

The homeowner has a choice of shingle weight. Asphalt shingles are made from 135 pounds to 350 pounds per square (the amount needed to cover 100 square feet). The heavier roof is more durable. The higher expense is justified in the longer life of the roof.

Old roofing material should not be ripped off before new roofing is applied if the roof deck is sound. This means that the deck must hold the weight of the new roofing plus the weight of the roofers who do the work. Also the deck must provide firm anchorage for the nails that will fasten the new roof through the old.

Much of the effectiveness of a roof depends on the workmen who put it on. A homeowner's best insurance is to deal with roofing contractors who have a good reputation in the community. In addition to this, the prudent homeowner will read the directions for application that come with each bundle of shingles. He will better understand the roofing job he is paying for.

A CHARMING WESTERN ranch home, K-400 is frame house with ledgerock used right of the entrance. Mom will be pleased with the breakfast room (see floor plan inset above). It has space for child's play area. Another play area is the enclosed breezeway.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

The architects kept Mother in mind when they designed the two homes pictured today. Each has features that are of special interest to the homemaker who has to watch youngsters while she hustles about chores.

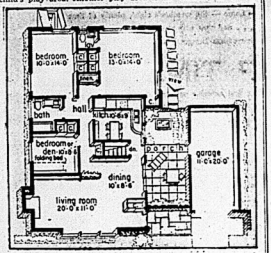
That's easily managed in Design K-400. Since a woman spends a number of working hours in the kitchen, the architect thoughtfully made the adjoining breakfast room large enough to house a play area for children.

That's for indoors.

Outdoor Play Spot

Outdoors, a breezeway, cut off from the street, provides another safe play spot. A side door from the living room gives Mom a chance to check if the children seem unusually quiet—a sure sign trouble's brewing.

Living and dining room make an open L-shaped area. The dining room's star attraction is a planting solarium that runs across the back wall under the ceiling-high picture window.



Closet space is excellent in the bedroom wing. There are two bedrooms, plus a dual-use room which could serve as bedroom, guest room or den. If used as a den, this area, separated from the entrance hall and living room by a folding partition, could be thrown open to allow more space for entertaining.

Two Rooms in One

The bath is split so that it's actually two rooms in one. The lavatory, accessible from the breakfast room and back door, is separated by a door from the bath and vanitory section.

The house, which comprises 27,508 cubic feet, has a full basement.

Mother will like the kitchen set-up in Design K-418, too. In addition to being efficient, this busy room overlooks an enclosed garden and porch, making it easy for her to keep an eye on the kids.

IN K-416 (below) kitchen overlooks play yard, making it easy for Mother to watch the youngsters while she does her housework.

Possible Third Bedroom

The house is another two-bedroom plan with a dual-purpose room that could be used as a third bedroom. There are two baths, one centrally located to serve all areas of the house, the other in the master bedroom.

The living room, at front, is 20 feet long, has a huge fireplace and a lovely picture window. At back, it merges with a dining area planned close to the kitchen.

The home has a full basement and comprises 20,000 cubic feet.

LONG AND LOW, K-418 is just a little over 46 feet wide. The brick wall next to garage screens a porch from the street view. The spectacular picture window, left of the entry, and the planting box beneath it, lend an air of importance to the home design.

LOANS

They're SO EASY TO GET . . . So Simple To Arrange — You'll Wonder Why You Waited To Make The Improvements You've Been Wanting!

Sills' Budget Plan

. . . LETS YOU MAKE HOME IMPROVEMENTS EASILY—WITHOUT STRAINING YOUR POCKETBOOK.

Many home owners have never heard of a lumber yard home improvement loan. Of those who have, many are so hazy as to what sort of projects can be financed with this plan, that needed repairs and renovations and changes are simply put off and never get done. Many other people don't know how to go about making the necessary arrangements for a loan and give up in frustration. We hope that this folder will clear up these misunderstandings and show you that it is easy and inexpensive to get a Sills Home Improvement Loan.

Here's Everything You Need To Know!

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

HOW DO I ARRANGE FOR CREDIT?
All you have to do is fill out a simple application form. All transactions are confidential and no co-signers are required.

WHAT ABOUT DOWN PAYMENT?

WHAT ARE THE CARRYING CHARGES?
Carrying charges vary depending on the number of months you choose to pay. Whichever plan you select, though, you'll see that our interest rates are lower than those charged for any other commodity you might buy on time.

WHO HANDLES THE CONTRACTING?

However, Sills personnel are experienced in working with the contracting trades and suggest that you take advantage of this experience by allowing us to make the necessary arrangements. In this way you are guaranteed of a quality job, at reasonable prices, with a minimum of inconvenience to you.

IS EVERYTHING HANDLED WITH ONE LOAN APPLICATION?
Yes. This plan not only includes materials supplied by Sills, but also those of other suppliers and trades such as plumbers, electricians, painters, masons, carpenters, etc.

ARE THERE LIMITS AS TO AMOUNT AND TIME ALLOWED FOR PAYMENT?
Yes. The minimum credit is $100 and the maximum $3,000. The repayment plan provides for equal monthly payments over various periods, ranging from 6 to 36 months. After the cost of your job has been determined, a payment plan to suit your budget is worked out.

CAN I DO THE JOB MYSELF?
By all means! The same loan arrangements are available to "do-it-yourselfers" and to give you a hand, we will rent you specialized tools to help you do a professional job. Here are just a few of the tools available . . . tile cutters, linoleum rollers, glue spreaders, hand staplers and spot nailers, power saws, power sanders, etc.

Magee Shoots Practice Round Six Under Par

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Amateur Gerry Magee of Hamilton had never seen the St. Catharines golf and country club course when he teed off Thursday to practice for today's Ontario Open.

What's more, he's been avoiding tournaments this spring because of business.

His score for 18 holes? A 63, eight under par and six strokes ahead of pro Clarence Kesselring, defending champion and three-time winner.

Most of the 169 entries in the medal play open played Thursday to get in shape and learn the course. Many say the course will be easy—if the wind is right.

Moe Norman of Kitchener, Canadian amateur champion for the last two years, also scored a 69 as he prepared for his first tournament as a pro. Murray Tucker, the Toronto Rosedale pro who won the Ontario PGA tournament at Scarboro a few weeks ago, had a 67 and Vancouver's Lyle Crawford, picked by Canadian champion Al Balding as the man to beat, had a 70.

OVER PAR ONCE

Magee topped par only once. He dropped a 25-yard wedge shot on the par four second for an eagle two, and scored seven birdies and nine pars to make up his total.

It's expected he and Doug Sanders, Canadian Open champ from Miami, Fla., will attract one of the largest crowds when they tee off late today. Sanders said he came around in "about even par."

The field will narrow to the 50 low scorers after today's 18 holes. Thirty-six holes will be played Saturday. Amateurs still in the running for Ontario's Willingdon Cup team will play the full 54 holes.

Orioles React To Richards 'Play, Clowns'

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore "clowns" are putting on quite a sprint in the American League, in case you haven't noticed.

An exasperated manager Paul Richards caustically blamed the slide of his Orioles to within 3½ games of the cellar just one month ago on their "playing like a bunch of clowns."

Since then, the club has won 18 against 12 losses and now is within 2½ games of fifth place and out of fourth.

They've acted more like ringmasters than clowns in the month of June. They've won three out of four games from New York Yankees and five out of seven from Chicago, the league leaders.

Detroit also has lost a series and Kansas City two to the high riding Birds. Only Detroit and Cleveland have been able to take a series from Baltimore this month.

SERIES WITH TRIBE

Orioles, running hot with a four-game winning streak, start a four-game set with Cleveland tonight. Detroit and Kansas City were unable to score a run on Orioles in the last 32 innings. And only one opposition batter walked in that span.

In his moment of milf last month, Richards announced "if it's at all possible, I'm going to make wholesale changes."

He wasn't quite that drastic. But he did acquire outfielder Jim Busby, utility infielder Billy Goodman and pitcher Ken Lehman and recalled outfielder Joe Durham from the minors.

Orioles have looked so good that Bob Nieman, last year's leading hitter for Baltimore, isn't certain of being able to break into the starting lineup. He's ready after being hobbled for two weeks with a pulled hip tendon.

WITH STAMPS AGAIN

CALGARY (CP)—Lynn Bottoms 23, Calgary-born halfback, has signed for his fourth season with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union. A graduate of Calgary junior ranks, he scored five touchdowns last season and has played defence twice in Shrine all-star games.

Sisters Lead Women's Open Marlene Shoots 6 Over Par

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP)—The unusual situation that found sisters sharing the lead in the 12th women's National Open golf championship also found a bunch of very tough tournament competitors chasing them in today's second round.

Marlene Bauer Hagge, a 5-3, 110-pound girl who gets amazing results with a weird-looking, looping swing, and her older sister, Alice Bauer, a blonde who is an inch or so shorter and a few pounds lighter, were all even at 72, one under par, after Thursday's round. They accomplished the feat mainly by clever approaching and clever putting on the tough 6,346-yard Winged Foot course.

The course gave plenty of trouble to Marlene Stewart Streit, the girl from Fonthill, Ont., who now lives in Toronto. Marlene, who won the U.S. women's amateur championship last year, had trouble on five holes and ended her first round with a six-over par 79.

ONE STROKE BACK

Only one stroke behind the Bauer sisters was Gloria Armstrong, a power-hitting 180-pound pro from Oakland, Calif., who shot a matched par with a 37-36—73 round. Gloria never has won a championship but has been getting into the money regularly this year.

Two strokes back were Betsy Rawls, who won the first USGA women's open in 1953 and has walked off with top money in three tournaments this year, and Betty Dodd of Louisville, Ky. At 75 were Betty Jameson, a former National amateur and open champion and a pro since 1945; Betty Hicks, another experienced pro, and little Jo Anne Prentice of Birmingham, Ala.

After today's second round, the field will be cut to the low 40 and ties for the final 36 holes on Saturday.

Musial Reaches Sixth Place In Homer Race

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Stan (The Man) Musial of St. Louis Cardinals hit his 360th career home run Thursday night, tying Ralph Kiner the former Pittsburgh Pirates wallloper, for sixth place in the all-time major league list.

It was Musial's 17th of the season, coming with a man on base in the first inning of a 6-4 victory over Philadelphia that kept Cards in the National League lead.

Only Babe Ruth (714), Jimmy Foxx (534), Mel Ott (511), Lou Gehrig (494) and Ted Williams (427) have hit more than Musial, who began the year in ninth place. He already has passed Johnny Mize, (359) and Joe DiMaggio (361) this season.

Only Williams is still active among the top five.

Tommy Holmes New Manager Montreal Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tommy Holmes takes over as manager of Montreal Saturday with Royals buried deep in the International League cellar and showing little ability to rise any higher.

The former Boston Braves star outfielder and manager was named Thursday night to succeed Greg Mulleavy, who left June 16 to become a coach with Brooklyn Dodgers.

As of today Royals are four games out of seventh place and 23½ games back of the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs after splitting a doubleheader with the second-place Richmond Virginians Thursday night.

HARRIS EFFECTIVE

Vees thumped the lowly Royals 10-1 in the opener but Montreal came back to win 6-0 behind the effective hurling of Billy Harris. The split enabled Leafs, whose game with Columbus was rained out, to hold its first place by a half-game. Buffalo moved in closer with a 4-2 decision over Miami as did Rochester, which turned back Havana 2-1 with Lynn Lovenguth hanging up his sixth straight pitching victory.

Homers by Len Johnston, Harry Bright and John Jacisk paced Richmond's 12-hit attack of Jackie Collum to his first win since his first game. Johnston's homer was good for three runs, and Chili's two, Jacisk's blast was a solo affair. Danny Schell also contributed two doubles and a triple.

GETS THREE SINGLES

Vees could do nothing with Harris' pitches in the nightcap as Jimmy Williams led Royals with three singles and Harry Schwarz man drove in two runs, with a double.

Bill Serena's two-run homer in the ninth provided Bisons with their margin of victory after Ray Herbert had pitched hitless ball over the last 3 1-3 innings in relief for Karl Drews.

Lovenguth, who lost seven of his first eight decisions, fanned seven batters, walked only three and had a shutout until Oscar Serra hit a home run to lead off the ninth.

TOUGH BREAK

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Pitcher Bill Fritz broke bones in his foot colliding in a collision at first base in the season-opener of the city softball league.

He returned to action Wednesday night, his foot still in a cast, and after shutting out the opposition banged a single in the last inning to drive across the game's lone tally.

Bill's brother, Chuck, was sent in as a pinch-runner. Chuck broke his leg sliding into second.

Durelle Gets Empire Title, Wants 'Big One'

BAIE STE. ANNE, N.B. (CP)—Canadian light heavyweight boxing king Yvon Durelle learned Thursday he's been awarded an British Empire champion, but he says he isn't surprised.

In fact, he was unconcerned as the British Boxing Board of Control's decision to recognize him as Empire champ on the strength of his second-round knockout victory May 30 in Moncton, N.B., over Gordie Wallace of Brantford.

Controversy raged before the Moncton fight about whether both titles were at stake or only the Canadian title, held by Durelle. The BBBC said Wallace would have to defend his British Empire title but Canadian officials said only the Canadian title would be contested.

"That's good, but that's not the one I'm after," said the fighting fisherman from Baie Ste., Anne. Asked "What one are you after?" he replied: "I want the big one."

He said he will know early next week if he will be able to get a world title bout against Archie Moore or if he'll have to settle—temporarily—for a return match with Tony Anthony. Durelle battled Anthony to a 10-round draw in Detroit June 14.

G. K. Garnett of Saint John, foreign co-ordinator for the Canadian Boxing and Wrestling Federation, said there was controversy over which title Durelle and Wallace fought for at Moncton last month "but there is now no doubt. Wallace couldn't compete for one without competing for the other."

Harry Sheppard, Wallace's manager, said at Montreal he plans legal action to restore the Empire title to Wallace.

"I'm getting a lawyer in London to take civil action—it has been done before—against the Empire championship committee of the British Boxing Board of Control."

Sheppard contended the Canadian federation sanctioned the Durelle-Wallace fight as a Canadian title bout only and the Empire crown was not at stake.

He said he doesn't yet know what will happen concerning a bout scheduled between Wallace and Mike Holt in South Africa Aug. 31 and billed as for the Empire championship.

Many Records Likely Smashed In Track Meet

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP)—Athletes from all parts of Canada go to the post today in the fifth annual Canadian track and field championships amid forecasts that a batch of records will be smashed. Sponsors of the meet in this city across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal expect a lot of new marks to be set in the junior and juvenile competition.

"We have a terrific field in the groups under 18 years," said meet officials. "There is depth in almost every age class."

The largest number of entries are from Ontario and Quebec but Western Canada and the Maritimes also will be represented by their best track stars. A nine-man Oxford-Cambridge team will add international flavor to the meet.

FAVORED IN LONG RUNS

Two Western Canadians now running for the Hamilton Athletic Club—Dave Kyle of Estevan, Sask., and Gordie Dickson of Calgary—are expected to battle it out in the distance events. They are entered in the three and six-mile events.

A strong squad of Toronto runners and hurdlers has been entered in the two-day event. Hans Moks is rated the man to beat in the javelin throw and Reg Jones is favored in the middle distance events.

Jack Parrington and Dick Harding, two top-ranked sprinters, will also compete.

Some of the best competition is expected in the junior class. Among those favored are Stan Levenson of Toronto and Stu Cameron of Saskatoon in the sprints and quarter-miles; Jim Irons of Toronto in the half-mile, mile and two miles and Juris Terauds of St. Lambert in the javelin throw.

A NICE GUY GOES!

Mack "Red" Carson is leaving town, temporarily at least, and possibly permanently.

The pea-pickin' redhead is shaking the dust of his boyhood haunts from his feet for the distant pastures where the "lettuce" grows greener and larger.

Red, who has been associated with the Canadian National Railways in a clerical capacity for the past fifteen summers, has accepted the position as general representative of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees.

In other words "Ole Sorrel Top" has exchanged his mask-and-pad, skates-and-whistle for a brief case.

He starts the new job on the first of July and will be absent for approximately three months on his first safari around the territory. If "Red" likes the job—and vice versa—he will move his family from his native city. However "Red" won't lose any seniority with the "road" if he decides to come back.

Sport in this city and district is going to miss "Red" Carson. A versatile athlete and coach of more than passing ability, Carson has contributed a great deal to sportdom hereabouts since he tossed away his pablum spoon and grabbed a baseball bat.

He played on many Belleville baseball and softball teams since he dropped his toddling pants, and his flaming thatch topping the diamond white sweater has been seen in many a district hockey arena.

He "talked" sport sometimes better than he played it. He was a fighter both as a player and as a coach. He would argue for his alleged rights at the drop of the hat and many players of the city can vouch for the fact that "Red" never let them down while he was masterminding the club.

"Red" was a "diamond" athlete, although he loved hockey and other forms of recreation. His hockey ability was much that he was stamped with offers from National League scouts, but that did not prevent him from absorbing a thorough knowledge of the game. The same with baseball and softball.

Unlike some players, "Red" recognized the fact, when the time came that he was through as an active participant in the sports he loved so well. He quit at an age when he was still comparatively young, as far as sports go. He will be 38 next week, and a lot of "old pros" are still playing under the impression they are as good as they were ten years ago, at ages far exceeding that of "Red."

But the roots were deep. There was no cutting the ribbon cleanly. So "Red," always a student of sport, decided to join the ranks of the officiating corps. He had the necessary regulations. A keen eye, a broad mind, the gift of quick repartee and above all a fine sense of humor. His nimble tongue and fire-station lophist often made him the butt of hecklers. Yet he never made an enemy in the far-flung district where he officiated, both as umpire and referee or linesman.

We recall an instance after "Red" had umpired a baseball game in Wellington. An irate lady fan of the lakeside village called this department with the warning "Tell that blankety blank redhead if he ever shows his face here again he'll be dumped in the lake. We don't care how many fish die."

The next week "Red" was back in Wellington behind the plate. An hour after the game he was the guest of the lady fan at a tea-party in her home.

He played with several city softball and baseball teams, but his most notable contribution was that with the Columbian Squires junior softball team when they won the Ontario title. "Red" will never forget that game. They called him all kinds of names that day.

Another of "Red's" outstanding sports efforts was the organization of the Belleville District Umpires' Association a couple of years ago. The organization is flourishing and thanks to its efforts the calibre of officiating hereabouts has been improved to a marked extent.

Fritz Von Erich, 368 pound Teuton terror, will direct his bloodbusting manoeuvres at the sturdy frame of Farmer Boy, versatile grappler from North Carolina, in the feature match on tonight's wrestling program at the Memorial Arena.

Von Erich is one of the most capable villains in the game. The giant German is adept at bowling over his opponents with smashing drop-kicks, crushing bodylocks, or his devastating knee-drop. To go along with these skillful methods the crew-cut Von Erich employs a brutising, battering attack that has left many of his victims helpless on the mat.

Minor Baseball

Knights of Columbus edged CNRAA 4-3 in a thriller last night in a bantam baseball fixture.

Each team scored twice in the first and once in the fifth but a single by the K. of C. in the third made the difference. In the top of the sixth Fraser's great catch by Joe Irvin of pinch hitter Terry Thompson's sure homer saved the game for the Knight's. CNRAA loaded the bases earlier with none out but Bill Moreton speared a drive to start a double play and preserve the slim margin.

Earl Ward fired a neat three-hit victory for K. of C. He fanned five and walked seven.

Jim Muir was the loser, allowing six hits, whiffing four and walking seven.

All the winner's hits were one-baggers, divided among Earl Ward, Joe Irwin, Kerry Soden, Bill Moreton, Casey Soden and Terry McCabe.

Blaker slashed a double in a losing effort with Doug and Fisher getting singles.

McDaniel Whips Phils 6-4, Braves' Buhr Beats Brooks, Early Wynn Blanks Yanks 2-0

By ED WILKS

New York Giants are making a stab at living up tee their name.

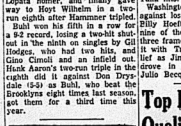
Although only sixth in the hectic National League race, Giants have towered over their opposition in the last 16 games, winning 13 of them. Half their 12 victories have been over the favored Milwaukee Braves and the Cincinnati Redlegs.

And they've been doing it with only .300 hitter (Willie Mays, .317) and just two pitchers who have won more than they've lost (Ruben Gomez, 9-5; Al Worthington, 7-4; and Ray Crone, 4-2).

Mays and southpaw Johnny Antonelli, both leftovers from the 1954 pennant team, and rookie Valmy Thomas led the way Thursday night as Giants moved within 3½ games of fifth place with a 7-2 victory over Redlegs, who fell from second to third.

St. Louis Cardinals retained first place, by a half game, as young Von McDaniel, the $50,000 bonus righthander, won his third in a 6-4 decision over fourth-place Philadelphia. Milwaukee took over second, beating fifth-place Brooklyn 2-1 on Bob Buhl's four-hitter.

Pittsburgh defeated Chicago 5-4 in 10 innings on an RBI triple by Dick Pendleton, who had been one of Pirates' six hits.



Mays unloaded his 12th home run, with a man on, in the first against loser Don Gross and Giants ran seven batters in the second with Thomas, sharing the catching job with Wes Westrum and Ray Katt, knocking in two runs with the first of his three consecutive singles. Giants, who have taken four of six from Redlegs in their surge, totalled 12 hits, including Whitey Lockman's solo homer. Ex-Brave Bobby Lockman, who drove in five runs in Wednesday's 17-7 romp, was hitless, fanning four times.

Antonelli, bothered by injury and on a starter-relief basis according to manager Bill Rigney's pitching whims, squared his record at 6-6, hanging on through two rain-caused delays for a six-hitter and his first complte game since April 26.

Stan Musial and Ken Boyer slugged two-run homers for Cards with Boyer's the clincher in the seventh. Musial's 17th of the season—the 399th of his career for a sixth-place tie with Ralph Kiner in the all-time major league list—came in the first to start nine-game winner Jack Sanford on the way to his second defeat.

McDaniel, the 19-year-old who is now 3-0, gave up his first run in four appearances when Gran Hammer's single and Ed Bouchee's double ended his shutout string at 19 2-3 innings in the third. The kid also was tagged for a Stan Zagata homer, and Eddie Grady gave way to Hoyt Wilhelm in a two-run eighth after Hammer tripled.

Buhl won his fifth in a row for a 9-2 record, losing a two-hit shutout in the ninth on singles by Gil Hodges, who had two hits, and Gino Cimoli and an infield out by Hunk Aaron's two-run triple in the eighth did it against Don Drysdale (5-5) as Bobby Thomson of Brooklyns eight times last season, got them for a third time this year.

ENTER REGATTA

MONTREAL (CP)—More than 115 boats from Ontario and Quebec have been entered in the St. Lawrence Valley Yacht Racing Association's annual three-day regatta beginning Saturday on nearby Lake St. Louis.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston rookie third baseman Frank Malzone—once hausted by injury and tragedy—today has the American League agog over his feats at bat and infield.

The fancy-fielding Malzone has risen from obscurity to lead the league in hits (62) and the Red Sox in runs batted in (44) and doubles (18). His .324 batting average is second only to Ted Williams' on the club and seventh best in the league.

Typical of his play this year, Malzone drove in five runs on four hits including a two-run homer Thursday as Boston swept a doubleheader from Chicago, 4-3 and 9-2.

In other games, Cleveland's Early Wynn blanked New York's their first shutout 2-0 with a four-hitter leaving Yankees and Chicago in a first-place tie.

THUMP TIGERS

Detroit banged only a half game fourth-place edge over Boston after a 7-3 thumping by Washington in the only game scheduled.

Life was not always thus for the 27-year-old Malzone. In 1950 he broke his ankle and the doctor who set it said he would never play ball again. But he came back and then spent two years in the service.

In the winter before the 1956 season, Malzone married a child. Frank got his chance at third base with Boston at the season opened and in the first game with the Athleticsbe .155 and was shipped to San Francisco.

He found himself there after almost another month and finished the season with a .295 average and held Seals together as clean-up batter.

Billy Pierce was the victim of Malzone's homer in the second game Thursday as he suffered his fourth in a row for a 10-6 record. Mike Fornieles won for the third complete game in three starts since switching from Baltimore. He's 5-2 with six saves.

A one-hit, four-run first paid off in the opener, as Red Sox cut a string of seven successive losses to White Sox. Frank Sullivan won his first relief help. Jack Harshman failed to finish the first, giving up a single, three walks and hitting a batter.

Wynn and Tommy Byrne, both 37, had a contest race at that but the Tribe righthander grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Al Smith walked to second on a wild pitch, went to third on a fly and scored on an infield out by Bill Williams' second single came ahead of Bobby Avila's triple in the fourth and Larry Doby's single Wynn, now 10-8, struck out nine. Gil McDougald had two of the Yank hits.

Washington had a 6-0 lead against loser Pete Ryland when Billy Hoeft as Scnators cracked nine of their hits in the first three frames. Camilo Pascual won it with Truman Clevenger's relief help. Eddie Lemon homered and drove in two runs along with Julio Becquer.

Top Drivers Qualify for Big Road Race

MONZA, Italy (AP)—Top American and British racing car drivers qualified for a 179-mile-an-hour target today as they qualified for the 500-mile International Monza race. The trials determine the first positions for what may be the world's fastest race scheduled to start Saturday morning.

Ten American drivers, including most of the best from the Indianapolis 500, and three British aces led the field as pre race activity approached a climax.

Only one American driver has qualified for the 1957 Grand Prix sons of Van Nuys, Calif., who turned in a time of 160.598 m.p.h. in his Agajanian Special Thursday.

Fighting Bass, Muskellunge Await Monday's Onslaught

TORONTO (CP)—The last big opening date in the Ontario anglers calendar falls Monday, July 1, opening day of the bass and muskellunge season in most of the province.

Officials of the fish and wildlife division of the Ontario department of lands and forests decline to hazard a guess as to how many anglers will be attracted by one of the most popular opening dates of the year.

"Just figure they'll be out in every direction by the thousands" said one official.

For both species, the closing date comes Oct. 15.

Bass anglers will find a new wrinkle in their catch rules this season. Two years ago the limit was six a day and any minimum length 11 inches. Last year it was six a day—the first six caught. This year it's a plain six a day and doesn't need to be the first six.

MAY BE CHARGED

The fishing regulations don't specifically say so, but an official said that this year small fish may be returned to the water. But if an angler persists in one he badly lured it is likely to die he may be charged with allowing game fish to spoil.

The catch limit for muskellunge is two a day, with a minimum length of 28 inches. This is the same as last year, when years ago the minimum length was 30 inches.

There are some exceptions to the general July 1-Oct. 15 open season for both bass and muskies. For both fish, the season is open June 25 to Dec. 15 in the St. Clair River, Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River; and July 1 to Dec. 15 in Lake Erie and in the Niagara River between Lake Erie and Niagara Falls.

BASS SEASON

The bass season is open June 8 to Dec. 15 in Northwestern Ontario boundary waters, except to Lake Superior.

First All-Girl Crew Brings Power Craft to Belleville

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The first "All-Gal" power boat crew to negotiate the trip from Niagara Falls, N.Y. to Belleville via the Erie and Oswego canals arrived in port here Wednesday.

Jimmy Captain Bligh" Holcombe, wife of Larry Holcombe, past commander of the Niagara N.Y. Power Squadron, skippered the distaff crew. The only male aboard was the skipper's four-year-old cabin-boy son "Hollery".

"Cap'n" Jimmy brought the "Bateau Cinq" a handsome 42-foot Flying Bridge Cris Craft beauty, safely to anchor at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club where the maiden voyage got under way.

And the bright blonde skipper and her crew of six lady marines did it the hard way. But in a manner and example of seamanship that drew the plaudits of lock attendants en route and members of the United States Coast Guard.

Members of crew, wives of officials and members of the Niagara Power Squadron included Pat Korth, Melba Lexo, Nora Jugle, Fern Moran, Lorraine Shaffner and Ellie Cain.

Accompanying the "Bateau Cinq" was another unit of the Niagara Squadron, the "Happy IV," a 32-foot trunk cabin Richardson cruiser. "Happy IV" however, was taken over at Oswego for the lake crossing by the mates of the speedier craft.

The "Happy IV" was shepherded through the canals by actor Captain Tee Hangerer. The crew consisted of Mary Smart, wife of the guru Squadron Commander Lorne Smart, Alfo Perry and Doty Shaw.

HAD FINGERS CROSSED

Both lady skippers put their craft through the nineteen locks of the two canals with the usual assortment of steering. They "walked" their boats into position without "scruffing a bobsider or a collision mat." Lock attendants and coast guardsmen were amazed at the skill of the lot. What they didn't know was the lady marines were shaking at the knees at times, with all fingers crossed.

Said Cap'n Jimmy, "What we didn't know was that our troubles were only starting when we left the docks at Oswego and headed out into Lake Ontario, destination, Belleville and the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron."

The temperature read 65 degrees when the craft headed out into the lake at five o'clock Tuesday morning. They were scarcely off shore when an "elevator" fog set in. First it was cold and then down. Visibility, the blonde skipper said, was never better than three miles.

They sailed on into the fog at a logged speed of ten knots or more or less. They lost sight of "Happy IV" and when the fog lifting conditions were forced to navigate by instruments.

"Everyone had a chance at the wheel," the skipper said, "it was the first time some of the girls had ever steered a craft but they came up with a highly creditable performance.

"We knew we were fairly well on course, or we'd take a mile. As it was, we ended about a mile to the eastward, although over the radio telephone "Happy IV" wanted to know if we were putting in to Rochester."

FOG WORRY EVERMY

The water was calm with a slight ripple and there was no wind to speak of. The fog, however, was the girls' worst navigating enemy and land-downs were hard to locate. "At one time," Cap'n Jimmy said, "I had the whole darn crew at the rail looking through binoculars in an effort to spot a landmark."

Reaching Canadian waters Cap'n Jimmy successfully navigated "Bateau Cinq" through the Welland Canal and the inland waters of the Bay of Quinte, up the Adolphustown Channel to dock the more or less familiar landmarks of the Belleville harbor and the Yacht Club hove into sight.

Dropping anchor, the gals sighed with relief. "It was a great experience in which we gained a lot of valuable seamanship education," was the consensus.

As for Cap'n Jinny, "I know now why the men skipper the boats. There's a lot more to it than spinning a wheel. As for me, I'm back to my old job as a galley slave."

Incidentally Cap'n Jinny and a crew of four are the guests of the handsome Ron Keel Trophy presented to them at the last Rendezvous.

"We are overcoming the difficulties caused by the differences between Canadian nautical miles and American statute miles now and we are going to do our best to win the Ron Keel Trophy again, although we look for some pretty stiff competition from the Canadian squadrons," said Jinny.

"Bateau Cinq" and "Happy IV" are two of a large flotilla of American power boats representing different squadrons which will be here for the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron's two-day rendezvous starting tomorrow.

Husbands of Cap'n Jinny's crew, most of whom are officials

Dow Finsterwald Takes Lead in Western Open

DETROIT (AP) — With a six-under-par 65 to shoot for his first day's work in the $25,000 Western open golf tournament, young Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., still found some room for improvement as the 72-hole test moved into the second round today.

"I'm not complaining, mind you," said the boyish-looking 27-year-old who ranks third among golf's money winners, "but I was all over this course—and my chipping could have been a lot better."

Finsterwald's 65—one over the course record at Plum Hollow Golf Club—gave him a one-stroke margin over former national amateur titlist Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex.

There were 56 scores that matched or bettered par, 35-36—71, and 24 golfers were in the below-70 group for the 6,892-yard layout.

Top Canadian was Stan Leonard of Lachute, Que., who shot 37-33—70 gave him a fifth-place tie with six others. Rudy Horvath of Windsor had a 36-36—72 total and Doug Sato of Alberta, the third Canadian entry, had 74-42—76.

Right behind the stocky Maxwell with 67s were Bill Casper of Rapids, Calif.; Max Evans of Rochester, Mich.; Ken Venturi of San Francisco, Calif.; and Doug Ehring Babe Lichardus of Hillside, N.Y.

Pointers Bounce Back to Rout Frankford 15-3

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Point Anne Cementmen turned what appeared at first to be one of their toughest fights of the season into a rout with ten runs in the eighth inning last night to trounce Frankford's Bata Shoemen 15-3.

Vic Hurst hurled excellent ball for the first six frames, allowing the Cementmen only two hits. He had a 1-0 lead until the fifth when the loop leaders tied the score.

Then Burtt began to tire, loose fielding also hurt his cause as the Cementmen started the march to their 12th victory in 14 starts. Burtt and D. southall gallery. They plated four in the seventh for a 5-1 score. A two-run homer by playing coach Cliff Austin put the Shoemen back in contention however, in the top of the eighth.

Jim Faulkner, who had taken over from Burtt in the seventh, walked John Batchelor to start the slaughter. Ted Batchelor then singled and Wardhaugh singled and in came Bob Hunter, Faulkner and Batchelor. Both in the outfield. He pitched to five men, got one out, walked one and allowed three singles.

That was all for Hunter and he was relieved to the outfield with Faulkner coming back to pitch. He lasted for just two batters, walking Ted Batchelor to load the bases and then Batchelor's triple. In came Batchelor and Jerry Ivy. Ivy rifled one man before a single, walk, double and another walk batted in Ivy for his second attempt of the inning. A force play retired the side but the Shoemen still loaded finally ended the inning. Sixteen men had come to the plate.

The result was that Faulkner and Hunter had both been to twice and Burtt once in the same frame; they had been rounded for ten runs on nine hits, had walked four and had received sloppy support from their mates.

Doug Hull had bagged a double and single, Wardhaugh had two singles, Bob Hull a single and a walk, John Batchelor a triple, Ted Batchelor, Jack Elliot and Pat Gilmour singles and Jerry Ivy a double.

Jackie Wardhaugh's homer, which shipped by Hunter in the outfield when he left, scored three for the winners in the seventh. Green singled and home the fourth. Doug Hull scored when Bob Hull's infield marker. Wm Burtt's two-bagger and Harold Baker's single scored the first Frankford's data tally.

Bobby Hull stoned the losers on the mound in the fourth victory of the year. He whiffed two and walked one.

Norm Austin's two homer tip deep left was the big Shoeman batting effort. Harold Baker singled twice, Burtt doubled and Hunter singled.

Burtt was the loser, charged with six runs off seven hits.

Point Anne collected a homer and two singles and Doug Hull with two doubles and a single paced the winners. Bob Hull and Pat Gilmour had two hits with each for the Batchelor boys thers, Pete Green and Jack Elliott Sr. Dave Jones was walked twice.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — A sloppy track and rainy weather slowed horses at New Woodbine Thursday as they prepared for a big racing weekend.

Carr Hatch's Mr. Brief, a likely starter on Monday's $25,000 added Dominion Day Handicap, pulled in length and a half ahead of E. P. Taylor's Scherzo in the feature six-furlong Richelieu Stakes to score his fifth win of the season. Mr. Momus, another Dominion Day starter, finished third.

Jockey Avelino Gomez, signed to ride E. P. Taylor's Chopadette in the Dominion Day Handicap, kept his winning streak alive with victories on Dortwin in the fifth, Hellgate in the seventh and Realm of Fancy in the nightcap.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—The heavily favored entry of fleet Marshlah and Moonlighting, racing in the silks of Mrs. John D. Hertz, Jr., is smashing one-two in the $22,500 Westchester Stakes for two-year-old colts at Hollywood Park Saturday.

Backed down to 1-to-6 in the betting Marshlah, ridden with Johnny Longden aboard, won by eight lengths over his stablemate Moonlighting, almost two lengths in front of Cowboy Book.

The time for the 5½ furlongs was 1:03 2-5.

King Ranch's Beam Rider scored a nose victory over Countermand in the $10,000 Classified Handicap at Hollywood Park, N.Y.

Beam Rider, four-year-old ridden by Willie Boland, stepped the 1¼ miles in 1:46 4-5.

Two lengths back of Countermand came Mr. Al L.

Kwong, James Football Duel Highlight of Grid Season

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — It has become almost automatic the last two years for Edmonton's Normie Kwong and Jackie James, leading Canadian football player in the country, to stage might be a little different this season.

Back in the game after a two-year stay with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Kwong, 29-year-old ex-Penn, driving Winnipeg Blue Bomber quarterback, James didn't set the NHL on fire but he can really go in a football uniform.

Barring injuries, the battle for the outstanding Canadian title between James and Kwong should be interesting, of course, but there are other candidates, notably Bobby Simpson, pass-catching end with Ottawa Rough Riders, but the honor has been wrested from Kwong twice in the last two years and voted outstanding Canadian.

James, 26, turned to pro hockey with the Leafs after the 1953 football season and Kwong, who played in Canadian pro football, grabbed the headlines when he signed a $25,000 a year no-cut contract with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union. Kwong proved he was worth it when he voted outstanding Canadian.

GOLFERS DOING WELL

Don't be surprised if Canada's two leading golfers in the tournament trail—Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Lachute, Que., and Al Balding of Toronto — clean up close to $50,000 this year. Right now their total earnings are very close. Oct. 10-13 and the $4,175-Canadian Professional Golfers' tournament at Peterborough, Oct., July 16-17.

Both could add considerably to their income in three big Canadian tournaments next month—the $29,000 open at Montreal July 4-7, the Canada Cup Open at Hanover, Ont., July 10-13 and the $4,175-Canadian Professional Golfers' tournament at Peterborough, Oct., July 16-17.

Special cash prizes for outstanding Canadians are offered in the Montreal and Kitchener tournaments.

Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit, Canada's ace lady golfer, added American amateur championships among her string of golf titles, defeating Mrs. Barbara Romack Gail Harvey of Toronto. "She's a tremendous competitor at any age," Marlene said after beating the youngster 6 and 5 in the Orlando Open last week.

"She is short off the tee but plays the ball very good shots on the greens," she added.

Marlene recalled that she defeated Miss Romack in the Ontario Open when she was 16 years old. The former was the last out in the first round. The next year she won the title.

Seven Aussies Advance in British Tennis

WIMBLEDON, England (CP)—Seven Australians, including defending champion Lew Hoad, advanced into the fourth round of the Wimbledon tennis classic in sizzling action Thursday.

The United States men and six women also reached the fourth round but Canada's only entry under a sweltering sun before 25,000 spectators.

Hoad, top-seeded, appeared lackadaisical as he defeated John Barrett of England 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, but he put on a brilliant display of shots from time to time.

Sharing his leadership of the dominating Australians was Ashley Cooper, who accounted for Mc. He defeated Robert Hallfet, of France 6-0, 6-4, 6-2.

Two top contenders, Vic Seixas and Budge Patty, and the top-seeded Australian Trabert, racing New York, spearheaded the U.S. contingent.

Seixas downed Kosei Kamo, Japanese Davis Cupper, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3. Patty, Memphis, Tenn., Californian, Myron Franks 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

In the women's singles Shirley Bloomer, Britain, defeated Jill Hetherington, Canada, 6-4, 6-4. Mrs. Betty Pratt, Jamaica, defeated Miss Daphne Seeney Pascoe, South Africa.

Miss Gibson, seeking to become the first Negro to win a Wimbledon title, defeated Mary Hellyer of Australia, 6-4, 8-6.

Besides Hoad and Cooper, Australian winners included left-handed Neal Fraser, Don Candy Mervyn Rose, Roy Emerson and Mal Anderson.

Pedder Swims Bay in Less Than 8 Hours

Tommy Pedder successfully swam the Bay of Quinte yesterday in the 16-mile route from 12 O'Clock Point to the Belleville bridge, in 7 hours, 56 minutes.

The 44-year-old, 5 foot tall Belleville Sardinaire never looked better as he stroked a steady 54 to the minute all the way. Tommy stopped four times for nourishment during the swim, consisting of tea, honey and calvium. He strolled off at the Murray Canal 8 15 a.m. and reached the bridge at Belleville at 3.11 p.m. He took it fairly easy all day and did not exhibit any slimzel. Tommy figures he is good enough for another five years of swimming yet.

Cincinnati and Milwaukee each has three starters, according to the current voting, with New York and St. Louis one each. McMillan, of course, is threatened from two sides and two of Milwaukee's leaders, second baseman Red Schoendienst and third baseman Eddie Mathews also have competition. Schoendienst is about 11,000 behind Cincinnati's Johnny Temple and Mathews' lead over Cincinnati's Don Hoak is just 11,400 votes.

Only votes that reached Frick's office by midnight Thursday night will be counted but the final totals are to be known today.

Stan Musial, St. Louis first baseman, leads all National League players with a total vote of 76,959. The second man is right fielder Hank Aaron of Milwaukee with 57,784.

Backbiting and Petty Gossip Too Much for Jerry Lewis

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Comedian Jerry Lewis is joining the evacuation from Hollywood. Why? Because he doesn't like the backbiting, the petty gossip of the movie town.

Jerry has had his share. His lengthy split with Dean Martin caused much bitterness. Now he and his wife Patti want to rear their family in an atmosphere away from the movie world with its constant yakity-yak about pictures, picture people and nothing else.

"I'll come to Hollywood twice a year to make pictures," Jerry vowed. "The rest of the time I'll live in the east."

Walt Disney gave the press a rundown on his future projects at Disneyland and all agreed with him that they'll be fascinating—"if I can get the money." He explained his philosophy about financing: "Money is something you use to make something with, but you can't make something if you don't have money."

He also told why the park holds so much fascination for him: "Always when I finished a picture, there was something final about it. I had to reach an end some time and send it out. I hate to see it again because I always find things I would like to do better."

"But the park is never finished. I like to roam around at night and find things I can improve and make more fun. I hope I'm never through building Disneyland."

There's just no stopping The Drunkard, (which is staggering into its silver anniversary July 6. Imagine it—8,700 performances! Both of the show since it opened here in 1933!

The ancient melodrama, first produced by P. T. Barnum, now is played in a delightful musical version, The Wayward Way, but audiences still love to hiss the sly villain and cheer the down-trodden hero. The show has expended eight heroes, six heroines and five villains during its monumental run.

The closest long-run champ is Life with Father which managed 3,224 performances in New York.

It took a lot of nerve for Richard Widmark to switch from tough-guy roles to play the mincing, cowardly dauphin of St. Louis. It's a fine performance, proving what his fellow actors have long contended: The Widmark is one of the town's best actors.

Bob Hope does his best emoting to date in Sea James, a witty treatment of the life and times of Jimmy Walker. Robert may some day match Bing's Oscar if he keeps this up.

AT THE McCARTHY — Pretty Kathryn Grant tells star Audie Murphy she loves him in Columbia Pictures' action-packed "The Guns of Fort Petticoat", now at the Odeon, McCarthy Theatre with price by Technicolor. Co-star feature is Barbara Hunter. Hall and Lew Gren in "Paratrooper."

Edward R. Murrow Makes Pertinent Remarks About TV

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Edward R. Murrow will present a filmed interview with President Tito of Yugoslavia over the CBS-TV network Sunday.

Following the program, held at Tito's summer home, there will be a live panel discussion of the Yugoslav leader's remarks in an attempt to set them in the perspective of international tensions. The special 90-minute telecaste will be broadcast by CBS radio Sunday night.

There was criticism of CBS for not having an immediate commentary after the celebrated Khrushchev interview. The idea of a quick panel is interesting also in the light of suggestions that the United States and Russia exchange TV programs.

This development in television journalism lends special interest to an interview with Murrow appearing next week in the July issue of Television Magazine, a trade publication, in which he says it's time for America's advertisers and broadcasters to take stock.

"It might be helpful if those who control television and radio would sit down a bit and attempt to discover what it is they care about," Murrow told the magazine.

"That they have a great belief in the power and future of these instruments is certainly the case. But if television and radio are to be used to entertain all of the people all of the time, then we have precisely done so in discovering the real opiate of the people."

Murrow believes that popular entertainment must constitute a substantial portion of TV. But if the mass-appeal thesis is carried to an extreme, he feels, the prestige of the medium will be lowered—and even its commercial credibility in effect.

"If this is taking place, and I think that is exactly what is happening, then it seems to me the medium may begin to change again. For sponsors may start to look for something more than it is providing.

"Perhaps the answer is that so-called public service programming has got to get better. It must be done with more imagination, and achieve greater appeal. I think it can be done."

Another answer might be found, he believes, if "the sponsor of an entertainment, show might contribute a 'tithe' of his program time for informational material."

Thus, for example, an electronics manufacturer might turn over three or four minutes of its network program to someone who would explain—not in technical—the acute national shortage of scientists and suggest ways of helping to solve the problem.

"I don't believe that televiseon has even begun to tap the possibilities that lie in the field of reality. It may be that fiction, which is the staple of TV, may have also demand that things be done more dramatically close to life. It is not the complicated thing which necessarily works best in TV, but the simple. I am convinced, for instance, that there is nothing more effective on the TV screen than the individual with something to say."

Col. Nickerson Accuses Wilson Of Grave Errors

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—Col. John C. Nickerson Jr., Thursday accused Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson of "grave errors" in cutting the U.S. army's guided-missile program.

"These are grave errors which greatly diminish our over-all combat powers—they are errors not likely to be balanced by corresponding Russian errors," added the 41-year-old field artillery officer in a defiant statement directed at Wilson.

Nickerson testified in his own defence in the third day of his court martial at nearby Redstone Arsenal, where the army has developed its 1,500-mile intermediate range ballistics missile, the Jupiter.

Nickerson climaxed a 10-year-long interservice feud by using secret data in a fight to save the JRBM program for the army after Wilson turned it over to the air force.

"I am as far out on a limb as I can get," Nickerson said. Then he accused Wilson of ignoring expert advice and bowing to pressure from the air force, the aircraft industry and Congress in his Nov. 26 memorandum et declasion.

In his memorandum, Wilson limited the army to a 200-mile missile range in the Jupiter and turned over the long-range program to the air force.

Japan-Based U.S. Jets Make Training Flights Over Korea

SEOUL (AP) — Supersonic American jet fighter planes ranged over South Korea today, one week after the United Nations Command announced it was bringing in new arms to match the Communist military buildup in North Korea.

But the United States Air Force quickly announced that the jets, craft—banned by the 1953 armistice—would not be based in Korea. They would fly over on "training" flights and return to their Japanese bases, landing in South Korea only for refuelling or in emergencies.

The first of the new planes sighted were four faster-than-sound F-100 Super Sabre jets, which flashed over Seoul shortly after noon.

Flights of other modern fighters and bombers were expected later.

The U.S. Air Force announced that "all types of aircraft now in use in the 5th Air Force command in Japan and are or will be flying the skies and using the airways of South Korea."

FLIGHTS ROUTINE

The announcement emphasized that the flights were "of routine training nature" and said the planes "flying these missions were not assigned to Korean bases but were using these bases as needed in their training."

Word that the new planes would continue to operate from their Japanese bases came as a surprise. Previous UN Command statements had indicated that the planes would be based in Korea so they could retaliate quicker in the event of a Communist attack.

There was no immediate reaction from South Korean officials, who have been urging that atomic weapons be given to their forces as well as to the Americans in South Korea.

A U.S. Air Force spokesman at the big American base near Osan, 70 miles south of Seoul, explained that the only routine contact between the air force in Korea and the Japan-based planes would be "directional" and for navigation and weather information.

FOR FAM ILIARIZATION

This seemed to indicate that the flights over Korea were designed to familiarize the Japan-based pilots with the Korean terrain and conditions over the peninsula, and to work out an air-ground liaison which would operate smoothly in the event of renewed fighting.

The UN Command told the Communists last Friday that it was yielding the provision of the 1953 armistice prohibiting the introduction of modern arms into Korea because the Reds had consistently violated the ban.

At the time Washington sources said the new equipment would include planes capable of handling atomic weapons. They added that ground forces would not now be given atomic-capable arms.

CNIB Advisory Committee Holds Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — A meeting of the Campbellford Advisory committee, The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Isabel Tatham.

Several new members were introduced and added to the committee. Present were the following: field secretary (CNIB) Peterborough, Mr. S. Caruk; chairman, Dr. D. M. Smith; treasurer O. Hunt; secretary, S. O'Sullivan; directors, Mrs. I. Tatham, Mrs. R. Lillie (Home and School) Mr. P. Coughlan (Lions) and Mr. Bill Murray, Legion.

Mr. Caruk, the field secretary from Peterborough for this district, opened the meeting by giving an interesting and enlightening talk on the magnificent work being done by the CNIB in the rehabilitation of the blind. As he himself is blind, the field secretary is able to understand the tension and strain which often accompany the sudden loss of sight, and therefore in a position to recommend the most valuable service for each particular person.

A special trained teacher, being partially blind herself, teaches the sightless in the use of many games, appliances, of work — leatherwork, knitting, use of machinery and typewriting. They may learn these at home free of charge, or go to the CNIB residence in Toronto or Brantford to learn whatever they desire, also free of charge. He also stated that 40 per cent of the blindness in Canada could have been prevented if proper care had been taken. Thus he would like to see a blindness prevention committee formed to deal with this problem. He also told the board that he was anxious to have a visiting committee formed to deal with the personal problems of the blind in this town, where there are 19 cases.

One thing he greatly deplored was the fact that the CNIB in this district have been running in the "red" for some years. Last year the campaign brought in $735.85 and $1,800.75 was spent in this area. The sightless people have never suffered in any way from this deficit, but it was hoped that the next campaign, which will be held in the fall, would bring better results.

The chairman, Dr. Smith of Campbellford, thanked Mr. Caruk and business was held as usual.

MMITTEE FORMED

A blindness prevention committee was formed with Miss Ruth Henry, Reg. N., as chairman, assisted by Mr. Paul Coughlan. The visiting committee was organized with Mrs. I. Tatham in charge, assisted by Mrs. R. Lillie, Mrs. H. Macmillan, Mrs. R. Taylor, Mrs. S. O'Sullivan and Mrs. Helen Hassell. A public relations committee chairmanship was given to W. G .Rutherford, assisted by Bill Murray.

The next meeting will be the annual dinner meeting to be held in September. The committee thanked Mrs. Tatham for her hospitality.

CORPSE-LADEN TIDE EBBS INTO GULF

Heavy Damage In City, District By Gusty Winds

Trees Uprooted, Power Off And Many Antennas Down

Gusty winds riding in on the tail of Hurricane Audrey, caused widespread damage in the Bay of Quinte area early this morning before subsiding apparently bearing the brunt of the damage in the immediate area.

Uprooted trees in many sections of the city caused numerous hydro interruptions while branches and television antennas in all sections of the city fell victim to the wind.

First high wind in the city came at 3.15 and from then on the breaks were numerous. Hydro men said the damage was quite general both in the city and in the rural areas.

Telephone and telegraph service also took beating with the Bell Telephone repair department reporting at least 500 calls before closure of commission in Belleville alone.

CARRIED AWAY CABLE

In Wellington the entire extension was out as a huge tree carried away the cable as well as the telephone wires. Service at Wellington was expected to be restored this morning.

In Belleville the trouble was mostly branches and limbs carrying away drop wires but cable service was also disrupted in places.

Canadian Press wire service to the Ontario Intelligencer was out for six and a half hours before it was restored shortly before ten o'clock.

"We hardly know where we are at right now," commented one hydro official this morning. "Our repairmen will be going all day."

At least a half dozen huge trees were uprooted by the gusts, at least two of them coming down across houses and damaging them to a new axis.

LATE MODEL CAR CRUSHED

A huge tree fell across a house on Station St. near Lower Henry, while another toppled across Col. Allen's house on Dundas Street. On Highland St. another tree crushed a late model car.

Trees were also reported down on Bleecker Ave. A big tree on Dundas Street just missed a car. Had it fallen in the opposite direction it would have crashed into the roof of a house where ten children were sleeping.

Top Men Going To Other Jobs With New Govt.

OTTAWA (CP)—Executive assistants and top private secretaries to outgoing Liberal ministers are moving into new jobs with the arrival of a Progressive Conservative administration.

By custom, a new minister brings in his own chief secretary, sometimes with the title of executive assistant. But lower levels of the ministerial office staffs are remaining undisturbed in most cases.

Some of the male secretaries have been under the civil service commission and are entitled to jobs at the same level as previously. Others, appointed by their ministers, have been by long-standing legislation given the rank of chief clerk at a salary ranging of $5,280-$6,000 a year. They previously earned up to about $5,700 a year.

FIND NEW BERTHS

Where most of them will wind up is not known, but a few are known to have found new berths.

Pierre Asselin, chief secretary outgoing Prime Minister St. Laurent, is staying with him in Opposition Opposition leader ing with Annette Parent, his chief feminine secretary.

George Carter, executive assistant to Health Minister Martin, has become an assistant deputy minister of northern affairs.

Erwin Kreuzweiser, assistant Defence Minister Campbell, returned to a previous job with the defence research board.

Douglas How, assistant to Works Minister Winters, took up a berth before the election as Ottawa correspondent of Life magazine.

Restrict Scope Of Court Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate judiciary subcommittee voted Friday to restrict the scope of a U.S. Supreme Court decision opening Federal Bureau of Investigation files in the defence in some criminal cases.

The committee approved a bill to permit the inspection of only that FBI information which a judge holds to be pertinent at a trial.

No Publication On Dominion Day

Monday being Dominion Day and a civic holiday, there will be no publication of the Ontario Intelligencer.

WANTED IN ONTARIO

VANCOUVER (CP)—City police said Monday they are holding a 24-year-old man wanted by police in Exner, Ont., on a charge of criminal assault. Francis Bondy of no fixed address was arrested after a complaint that a cheque had been issued, police said.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: The remains of hurricane Audrey have amalgamated in Western Quebec with a storm centre that moved eastward across the Great Lakes on Friday. With the rapid northward motion expected to continue, rain will end in southern and northeastern Ontario this afternoon.

WELFARE PURSE OPENS WIDER, HELPING MILLION

Aged, Blind, Veterans Get Bigger Pensions

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's welfare program opens its purse wider on July 1 and benefits in higher payments may be felt by as many as 1,186,700 persons.

July 1 is starting date for series of increased payments for old age pensions and assistance, allowances to the blind and disabled and pensions to veterans.

As announced in the March 14 budget they would cost the federal treasury $68,500,000 in the fiscal year ending nine months from July 1. Federal governments will shoulder a lesser amount.

The first of the higher payments won't be made, however, until the cheques come out at the end of July.

Biggest chunk of the outlay will be used to give $46 monthly, instead of $40, to the 807,000 Canadians over 70 receiving old age security pensions from the federal government. That will increase the cost of this program by $45,960,000 in the fiscal year to an estimated $430,000,000.

FINANCES AGREED

The central government also is financing a boost of about 20 per cent in provincial pensions to disability pensioners, widows and dependent parents, and more limited increases to "burned out" veterans in need of help under the War Veterans' Allowance Act. Some 235,200 now receiving payments will benefit, with perhaps 1,300 to 1,500 new beneficiaries qualifying for help.

Provincial governments were involved in the budget's other welfare proposals. Increases to $46 from $40 a month go the needy between 65-69 under old age assistance and to the blind and disabled between 18 and 70. Ceilings on allowable income under these programs—the so-called "means test"—also were boosted.

EXTRA HOLIDAYS

Eight provinces already have signed agreements to share in the increases July 1. Quebec, which has delayed signing an agreement because of a change in the federal government, also is reported here as ready to go along. Newfoundland has passed enabling legislation for its share of the boosts but provincial Welfare Minister Hefferton has said they probably won't go into effect there until 1958.

One other extension in the federal program will take effect until Sept. 1. This involves $1 monthly hikes in family allowances for children up to 16 years of age and between 10 and 12 years. There are no increases for those seven to nine years or 13 to 16 years.

The increases cover 2,500,000 families. After the Sept. 1 change there will be 1,500,000 "payers," instead of the present four; $6 monthly to age nine and $8 from 10 to 16 years.

Couple Killed

KITCHENER (CP)—Two persons were killed early today in the head-on collision of two cars. The victims were identified early as Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Carter.

No details of the accident were immediately available.

Weakened By Long Journey Audrey Messes up Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Hurricane Audrey, enfeebled by a Louisiana campaign and the long march north, messed up the Southern Ontario landscape but civil authorities said the storm aftermath didn't look too serious.

The remnants of the Caribbean-born tempest moved into the southwestern part of the province Friday afternoon with heavy rains and strong winds.

At last report, Audrey was blowing weaker over northeastern Ontario and heading into northwestern Quebec.

One of the hardest-hit areas appeared to be around Bancroft. Strong winds were still blowing at 3 a.m. Streets were littered with tree branches and other debris. Wind gusts ranged from 40 to 50 miles an hour.

At Toronto, civil defence officials said 2½ inches of rain fell between 6 p.m. Friday and 4:30 a.m. today. They knew of no household evacuations although the Humber River and Highland Creek rose rapidly under the torrential rains.

At Toronto, the Dominion public weather office said the rain would end over Southern Ontario before noon and over the rest of the province in the afternoon.

Rains during the storm brought as much as one to three inches to Audrey's route. Audrey hurled tidewaters against the Louisiana coast Friday.

90th Birthday of Canada As Nation Observed Monday

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 90th birthday of Canada as a nation will be celebrated on Monday—Dominion Day — by a population of more than 16,000,000.

When Confederation brought eastern provinces together in 1867, the Canadian population was under 4,000,000. This instantly made itself counted a great advance from the first census in 1666 which showed 3,215 persons living in the scattered settlements.

In 1901 the total had grown to 5,371,000. In 1921, it was 10,376,000 and in the 1951 census it was 14,009,000, since when it has been steadily increasing.

The metropolitan area of the nation has also vastly expanded since 1867. Confederation found the provinces up Upper and Lower Canada (Ontario and Quebec) with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Manitoba entered confederation in 1870 and was followed by British Columbia joined in 1871, Prince Edward Island in 1873, Alberta and Saskatchewan were added as new provinces in 1905, and Newfoundland—the oldest British colony — formally joined as the 10th province in 1949.

What is described as "Canada's largest and most spectacular" will be a feature among celebrations of the day all across the country. The official divisional theme of the Canadian Army at Camp Gagetown in New Brunswick, to be covered on television, involves some 11,000 men.

Other events range from regattas, sailboat races and outdoor celebrations and sports features.

The Dominion Day observance comes on Monday only by the quirks of the calendar. Unlike some other holidays, July 1 has never been shifted to the nearest Monday to provide a long holiday weekend. It was celebrated on Monday last year because July 1 fell on a Sunday.

Under existing legislation the title of the holiday in Canada is not it still Dominion Day, but overseas it's a little different. "Canada Day" has been the term used abroad for some years now. A Canadian official in London, England, remarked a year ago that "when we say Canada Day to foreigners we don't have to explain what we mean."

The day will be another dedication in Newfoundland, where July 1 is marked as Discovery Day, when Newfoundlers celebrate like other Canadians, they are especially observing the days 460 years ago on which John Cabot is recorded as making his first landfall in Newfoundland. Exact claim that Cabot's first landfall was in Bonavista Bay or at Cape Breton, N.S. Historians say this issue may never be settled, because of the lack of precise and full records of that historic voyage.

Stratford Festival Governors To Dedicate Palace Sunday

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—Will Shakespeare takes over this city of 20,000 Monday for his 8th annual summer-long reign, ending Sept. 7.

And governors of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival are to dedicate Sunday the palace in which the bard and his bold cast will recite daily to more than 2,000 persons—their new permanent theatre-in-the-round, a tent-theatre used in earlier years.

With Dame Judith Twelfth Night the festival continues this year a non-established custom of presenting in alternate performances a Shakespeare tragedy, relieved by a Shakespeare comedy.

—Montreal's Christopher Plummer, now a Broadway matinee idol, will be the Canadian prince and Dublin's Siobhan McKenna is his Ophelia. They also head Twelfth Night.

Interest is as great, however, in the festival's new home, which aims at preserving in steel and concrete the atmosphere of the original tent.'

Although not finished, its concrete-block auditorium is sufficiently advanced to enable its use.

The construction has been using it for rehearsals from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., when workmen take over. Carpenters will put the last-minute touches to the building, whose total cost is expected to reach $1,500,000.

Incorporating both the original open-stage, bowl-foundation and the apron stage, the new structure is described as giving the impression "of an immense and graceful parasol, with a fluted roof supported by a cornice and flying pennant."

A gallery, impossible in a tent, has added 858 seats to its accommodation, raising capacity to 2,- 176 seats—none more than 70 feet from the stage and non obstructed by pillars.

Visitors, who swellcreed — how ever willingly—in the tent in the

BUDGET SURPLUS MERE FRACTION OF YEAR AGO

Revenue for 2 Months Virtually Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP)—Heavier government spending has whittled the budgetary surplus to a mere fraction of what it was a year ago.

It stood at $73,400,000 at the end of the first two months of the current fiscal year, down $200,- 000,000 from the similar period last year, Finance Minister Fleming reported Friday night. It was his first treasury statement since he took office a week ago.

Government revenues in the two months were virtually unchanged from last year but in the same period defence expenditures climbed by $205,700,- 000. Biggest single item was the $100,000,000 contribution to the Canada Council to aid Canadian culture, charged against April's accounts.

Other increases in federal outlays were shown in defence, transport, public debt charges, payments to provinces and social benefits.

REDUCES SURPLUS

In May, increased expenditures reduced the net surplus for the month to $121,400,000, or $62,100,000 from last year. The May surplus followed a deficit of $48,000,000 in April.

For the fiscal year, ended March 31, the former Liberal administration showed a surplus of $282,500,000 and forecast a surplus of $152,000,000 for the current year.

What the actual surplus for the year may be will depend a lot on the future course of government spending and the rate of economic growth, which has a bearing on federal tax collections.

The new Progressive Conservative finance minister faces the problem of carrying out the campaign promises of Prime Minister Diefenbaker, particularly to reduce taxes and increase old-age pensions.

PLANS BUDGET

He said in an interview last week that he plans to bring down a budget next fall to implement the promises, aiming also at the reduction of the national debt.

To do so he would have to work all encouraging an expansion in the economy and at the same time keep a sharp eye on future federal administration spending.

In May, budgetary revenues of $1,100,000,000 were $100,000,000 from last year, increasing the take for the first two months by about $5,000,000 to $726,400,000.

Meanwhile, the federal old-age pension fund showed a surplus of $1,900,000 at the end of the first two months, compared with a deficit of $1,700,000 last year.

Leaves Estate Of Over Million

TORONTO (CP) — Printer Albert Smith, son of a poor working-class Toronto family, left an estate of more than $1,000,000, it will revealed Friday.

Besides the $1,280,868 estate goes to 10 charitable and religious organizations, nine of them in Toronto.

Mr. Smith, who died in May at his suburban Etobicoke home aged 66, left school at 12 and by 19 had bought his own printing press.

In 1932 illness forced him to sell his business. After several rounds the-world trips in search of a cure, he returned to Toronto and prospered enough successfully on the stock market.

8,000 British Columbia Fishboats Sign up for Rescue on High Seas

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 8,000 British Columbia fishboats signed up Friday to aid in ship and aircraft rescues on the high seas.

Under a new agreement, fishboats connected with the Fisheries Association of B.C. have signified their willingness to take orders from the central rescue co-ordinator, trouble, sinkings or ships overdue.

May Be 10 Days Ere Louisiana Toll Totalled

Hundreds Still Huddled In Terror on High Land

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Horse-numbed rescue workers reported 50 more bodies in isolated southwestern Louisiana coast areas today. They said the death toll from hurricane Audrey will soar far past the official count of 120.

Maj. Joe Carroll of Lake Charles air force base, who directed helicopter rescues at Grand Cheniere, told The Associated Press his 'copters were bringing in about 50 bodies from the Grand Chenieres area.

"There are hundreds of more bodies floating under the debris. As an example, in one attic we couldn't reach by 'copter, we understand there are 17 dead people."

The official toll stands at an estimate of 120, made by Maj.-Gen. Raymond Hufft, state civil defence director.

TIDE SWEEPS BACK

While the grisly business of counting bodies went on in the chewed-up area, a sullen, corpse-laden ebb tide swept back into the Gulf of Mexico, bearing seaward many victims of the 20-foot tidal wave that swept the beaches and the marshes Thursday.

"It may be a week to 10 days before the actual number can be ascertained," Hufft said.

Hundreds were injured as a ragging wall of water came out of the Gulf Thursday on the heels of Hurricane Audrey, the first of the season.

Hundreds of others still clung to 500 homeless persons in Texas and Louisiana.

Damage estimates were impossible to make accurately, but they will be staggering.

Gunman Kidnaps Deputy Sheriff When Brought in for Questioning

MADERA, Calif. (AP) — A gunman brought in for questioning kidnapped a Madera County deputy sheriff today and escaped in his car.

Sheriff Marlin Young said James F. Goldman, 39, threatened by the sheriff's car radio to kill Deputy Harry Haring, 30, if arrangements were made to stop him. About 25 police cars converged on highways and county roads but Young said that for the present "all we can do is observe."

A Madera cruiser chased the sheriff's car but stopped when Haring radioed to "get off my trail. This guy's going to shoot me."

Young said Haring brought in Goldman for questioning in connection with a gunfire brushes with the law in Fresno, Calif.

Haring found a car Friday in which Goldman was reported to have stolen it Fresno.

Police there said he held up a drug store of $100 after asking for narcotics. He was stopped by a patrolman, swore his gun first, and made off with the policeman's car.

Police said he had a collision at an intersection, abandoned the patrol car and commandeered another from a woman driver who had stopped at the scene.

Refuse Move To Disbar Lawyer

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—An application to remove a disbarred lawyer from the rolls of barristers of an estate, following discovery of a $65,738 shortage in the estate, was refused in the weekly court here Friday after Mr. Justice G. S. Thompson said he could not approve the request until all beneficiaries had been notified.

The application was made on behalf of Mrs. Alma Bilton, of Detroit, Mich., as executrix of the late Frederick Bates, Chatham tobacconist who died Feb. 1, 1956, leaving an estate of $183,564.

Chatham lawyer Glenn M. Dodman, administrator of the estate, was disbarred earlier in the week by the Law Society at Upper Canada after an audit revealed the shortage in the accounts and Kent County Judge H. E. Grosch confirmed that the shortage existed.

Gale Batters Power Craft Anchored Off Yacht Club; Three Boats Badly Damaged

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Power squadrons from the United States and Canada fretted at their wind-lashed moorings at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club this morning after weathering out last night's miniature gale.

Three power craft were badly damaged by the wind-whipped waves, a small cruiser was sunk and some small sailing craft overturned.

The "Bateau Cling," out of Niagara Falls, N.Y., owned by Past Commander Larry Holcombe, Niagara Power Squadron, was seriously damaged as was the handsome cruiser owned by Rogers Riedel of the Quinte Squadron. "Lorac II" out of Watertown was less seriously damaged but all three craft will be forced out of planned competition.

High waves battered the craft against the harbor revetment, and after a safety measure several of the boats were removed to better moorings near the government dock.

FORCED TO ANCHOR

Several craft en route here from various points were forced to anchor in Prince Edward overnight. Four are at Picton, two at then Long Point, two others from Rochester, while another, the "TeeVee" owned by the well known Channel 9 Rochester television personality, Mort Nusbaum, is anchored in the Murray Canal. Mrs. Nusbaum is aboard.

The American boats along with a number of Canadian counterparts are members of Power Squadrons which are here to take part in the second Rendezvous of the Quinte Area Power Squadrons which are here to take part in the second Rendezvous of the Quinte Area Power Squadrons.

Past Commander Lennox Smith of the Quinte Squadron, host association to the visiting power boaters, said this afternoon that this morning the scheduled, morning events were postponed until 2.30 this afternoon and if weather is not clement, he will order another postponement. The boats will be run off tomorrow if today's weather does not permit nautical operations.

PLANS SPOILED

The weather tossed the well-laid plans of Quinte Squadron Rendezvous committee. This includes Lieut.-enant Commander John Grant, second-in-command of the Fleet, Commodore of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, who offered the full facilities of his association to the visiting and local power boat men and their ladies and Margo Smith, in charge of ladies' activities and a special committee of Quinte Squadronettes. Howard U. Graham is doing an excellent job as Rendezvous chairman.

The Van Valkenburg trophy which was to be presented by Ron Van Valkenburg, son of the original donor. Mr. Van Valkenburg is from Oak Orchard and a member of the "Charmar II" from Oak Orchard.

High winds were whipping the bay and harbor just before press time, although weather reports stated a sharp reduction in the wind velocity this afternoon.

It was stated the "Lorac II", owned by Mr. Riedel, and skippered by Commander Gerald Pichelman, was being pounded heavily by the waves, and was feared to be in a sinking condition.

Social events of the Rendezvous center on a dinner dance tonight in the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and a final dance and presentation ceremonies tomorrow evening.

Top ranking officials of the international power squadrons here for the rendezvous include S. Gordon McCandlish, executive vice commander Canadian Power Squadrons, and Mrs. McCandlish of Hamilton, and United States Past Commodore District No. 6 Commander Gerald J. Pichelman and Mrs. Pichelman of Watertown, N.Y. Commander Pichelman owns the "Lorac II".

Among the visiting American craft are four from Oak Orchard, N.Y. They are included the "Cabana" a 42-foot cruiser skippered by Richard Murray. Both were forced to anchor in the Trent Canal.

The Quinte Squadron craft which will take part in the Rendezvous activities tomorrow include Jack Tatham's "Ultra," Dr. Jim Forrester's "Jane," Bob Seppey's "Elvira," Ed. Quinn's "Dawn Lynn" and Tom Wrenshall's craft.

HAD A CLOSE CALL

The four Oak Orchard craft skippers and crew gave clear evidence of their international knowledge in the run across the lake in the van of the storm. They left as a group for the 64-mile run from Oak Orchard which is 40 miles west of Rochester, and with poor visibility were forced to navigate by compass. They picked up the Canadian shoreline a short mile west of Timber Point.

A number of crews are coming here by car and will operate craft placed at their disposal for the rendezvous competitions.

Squadronette [illegible] from Niagara Falls, N.Y., and other American squads will quest trophy honors in competition with the Quinte girls.

Squadronettes will vie for the Ronald Keel trophy held by Mrs. Norma Fower Squadron crew; the new BNR and Bay of Quinte trophies while mixed crews will seek the Corby's international trophy. Several sailing races will go after the Labatt Cup while male crews will seek the VanValkenburg trophy.

Hospital Board Approves Pension Plan in Principle

Members of the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital yesterday morning approved in principle of installing a group pension plan for the 61 employees of the hospital who have indicated they would like to participate in one. Although the Board approved the principle, a definite pension plan was needed and referred the matter to the finance committee to see if it would be feasible at the present time to pay out $40,000 for past service benefits. It was noted that past service benefits could be inaugurated at a later date and possibly the hospital may be able to install a plan in the near future.

This was one of several recommendations studied by the Board yesterday in the new committee room before receiving for July and August. Chairman Frank Domenico presided and present were 13 other members.

DONATES COOLING UNIT

While discussing recommendations made by the supplies committee, it was noted that a proposal to buy an air conditioning unit for the Chatterton room had been made by H. A. MacLean Haig [illegible] could not see logic in spending $350 of the institution's money to cool the room, so H. P. M. Case suggested the unit be bought as a memorial gift. After much discussion, the Board accepted Mr. Case's offer to deal with the matter. Mr. Domenico, on behalf of the Board, thanked Mr. Case in a very nice gesture. Mr. Case."

The Board authorized the purchase of 11 chairs for one machine which is urgently needed. The cost of the equipment will be between $705 and $817. Dr. J. Loynes explained that the lee-making machine presently in use is "totally inadequate" and is "unlikely to last another summer."

Six chairs, three smoking stands, two settees and two tables will be purchased for the visiting room, at a total cost of about $500.

MILK FOOD QUALITY

Hospital Administrator Kenneth E. Box recently investigated the quality of milk that was being received at the hospital. After conferring with Dr. Metcalfe, Medical Officer of Health, he learned that milk had been delivered at a temperature of 45 degrees and when it was supposed to be delivered at a higher temperature than 40 degrees. Also, a recent test showed that some of the milk was of grade 4 quality, whereas the hospital usually got grade 1 or 2.

The sitting Health officer, has been cleared up now that the Board authorized hospital milk to be pasteurized at Grills' Dairy. Cost of the operation under the new set-up will be one-half cent per pound of milk. Per month it will cost about $90 for pasteurization. The hospital receives daily 600 pounds of raw milk.

Mr. Box will discuss a contract

Oberammergau's Passion Play To Be Presented in Belleville

The original authentic Americanization of the famed Oberammergau Passion Play, as performed at Oberammergau, Bavaria, Germany for 334 years will be presented in Belleville for the first time on October 10, 11 and 12. Through the combined efforts of Consolidated Concerts Corporation of New Jersey, president, Charles E. Green, and Victor Spouse of New York, a veteran of 25 years experience in presenting the famous Passion Play drama to millions of people, Americans and Canadian will this year see the most famous of all Biblical dramas.

First performed in 1634, it has always been different from the Passion Plays and Miracle Plays given in other parts of the world, evidenced by the fact that when prohibited elsewhere it was permitted in Oberammergau. Permanent permission to produce the play was bestowed on the village in 1800, the oldest known script of the play is one written in 1662. It is believed by experts that this text is composed of two still older; one used in Augsburg in the 15th century, the other the work of Sebastian Wild written in the 16th century. The present text used was Americanized was written in the years 1810 - 1815 by Peter Ottmar "with a few additions" were made by the good angel of the village, the beloved Father Othmar Daisenberger.

STARTED IN 1634

The first performance was given at Oberammergau in 1634 and then, in fulfillment of a vow, repeated ten years since. The noted drama is performed in three parts, including a prologue of 24 tableaux. The running time of the performance is from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. with a two hour intermission at noon. Presentation is from May 15th to September 30th — a period of about 19 weeks.

For the first American tour of the New World version the producers have adapted the play for the ear alone into English. They have also eliminated all of the pageantry and additional stage scenes, so that the American version is presented in 22 scenes with a running time of 2 1/2 hours, which is customary in the American theatre.

Due to many illustrious spectators have witnessed the great production including the kings of Bavaria, Queen Isabella of Spain, German Emperor Friedrich and King Edward the 8th, Richard Wagner, Adeline Patti and many of the famous singers and actors of the world. The great cosmopolitan audiences are moved by the simple Christus portrayer of a generation ago, Mr. Anton Lang, to exclaim, "Peter, this Passion Play will constitute a basis for a more friendly intercourse between nations, as a result in a better international understanding."

CARRIED APPEAL

From the summer pilgrimage in the high Bavarian Alps to the New World is a long step, not just as in Oberammergau the Play will beckon, and Americans and Canadians will be seeing the original authentic version as performed in Oberammergau for more than 300 years. The cast presented in Belleville, will reflect the spirit of reverence that will come with varying motives — deep reverence, as in a church, or reverence as to a show. In these varied attitudes of mind will come every type, school boy and professor, layman and priest, minister and rabbi. All will be drawn by the mesmerism of the story of the Cross, for now, for the first time in American history, the story is brought to our own doorstep.

Belleville people will witness not a spectacle but an influence — one destined to last through all the days that are to come.

The ancient drama is the fulfillment of a religious vow. The story is told in an old chronicle which is preserved in the village archives. According to this chronicle, a terrible pestilence visited Germany in the year 1633, and the results of the 30 Years' War. Whole villages were wiped out but Oberammergau maintained a strict quarantine and for a time escaped disaster. Unfortunately, a poor fellow named Casper Shusler — the name being carefully preserved in the community, — who was working in a neighboring town, desired to spend the week with his family. He broke through the quarantine, carrying death and destruction with him. In 33 days nearly a hundred of the villagers had perished. In their despair, the people betook themselves to their one recourse — God. Their fervent vows were heard, but their fear was greater, and God was able to cease. So the villagers pledged themselves to a certain course,— for all time to periodically render their Passion Play, in return for their deliverance. The compact was made, and — skeptical criticism to the contrary — notwithstanding — the records state that from that day the pestilence was stayed. The following year the Play was given in fulfillment of the vow and has been ever since until the present, 324 years later, in spite of many obstacles, the vow has been kept.

BALFOUR PORTRAYS CHRISTUS

For the first tour in the New World, the play was presented in Belleville with the dialogue translated from German to English, the role of Christus portrayed by Val Balfour to interpret the part to audiences of Nazareth. Supporting parts will be portrayed by a huge distinguished cast. The producer, Victor Spouse, has spent over a century of Passion Play experience in the making of motion pictures.

Mr. Balfour's interpretation of the Christus as the most sincere and outstanding portrayal of Jesus is comparable to that of the great Anton Lang, portrayer of portrayal a generation ago."

Mr. Balfour is the 4th generation in his family to make Biblical drama his life work. In preparation for the role he now holds, he has given much attention to many of the male roles in the Passion Play. While preparing for the part of Jesus of Nazareth, he played the role of the disciple John Peter, who was known as the "Rock" by the Saviour. Laymen, churchmen and educators of prominence have expressed their opinion that Mr. Balfour achieves outstanding success in the greatest and most difficult role an actor can undertake.

The Rotary Club of Belleville are to be highly commended in making the world's greatest drama available to all those in Belleville. Information for advance reservations may be obtained by writing to The Secretary of the Rotary Club of Belleville.

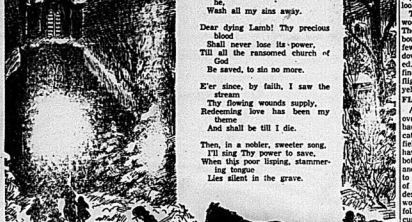
Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

THERE IS A FOUNTAIN



There is a fountain filled with blood,
Drawn from Immanuel's veins;
And sinners, plunged beneath that flood,
Lose all their guilty stains.

The dying thief rejoiced to see
That fountain in his day;
And there may I, though vile as he,
Wash all my sins away.

Dear dying Lamb! Thy precious blood
Shall never lose its power,
Till all the ransomed church of God
Be saved, to sin no more.

E'er since, by faith, I saw the stream
Thy flowing wounds supply,
Redeeming love has been my theme
And shall be till I die.

Then, in a nobler, sweeter song,
I'll sing Thy power to save,
When this poor lisping, stammering tongue
Lies silent in the grave.

Half a dozen years before Americans drafted and signed the Declaration of Independence, two Englishmen formed a literary partnership which was destined to yield some of the world's most beautiful and precious hymns.

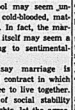
One of the partners was the Rev. John Newton who was serving a curacy at Olney, England to which he had been ordained in 1764. The other was William Cowper, one of England's most brilliant poets and men of letters, whose life had been blighted by repeated attacks of mental despondency and who had come to Olney for a change of scene.

The pastor and poet became inseparable friends and when, about 1770, they embarked on their hymn-writing venture, the collection of religious verses which they turned out together became known as the "Olney Hymns". When the volume of songs was finished, Newton penned a preface in which he explained that the hymn-writing had been undertaken "to perpetuate the remembrance of an intimate and endeared friendship". Undoubtedly it was also intended to occupy Cowper's mind and so help him escape from his melancholia.

Cowper, who was born at Great Berkhampstead, England, in 1731, was the son of a clergyman. His father was chaplain to King George II. His mother died when William was scarcely six years old. Even as a child, it is said, the poet-to-be suffered occasionally from the mental disorders which were to bring so much unhappiness in his life in later years. To these attacks of the spirit of gloom the "Olney Hymns" had begun. Cowper passed through the greatest mental crisis of his career. He made several vain attempts to take his life and then, when he had recovered from his obsession, he was so overwhelmed by the realization of God's protecting love and care that he wrote his famous verses:

"God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform:
He plants His footsteps in the sea;
And rides upon the storm.

Deep in unfathomable mines
Of never-ending skill,
He treasures up His bright designs,
And works His sovereign will."



Cowper lived for many years after that and through them all he found solace in his poetry and in his friendship with John Newton. In the last 25 years of his life he wrote some of his finest and most enduring hymns including "O For a Closer Walk With God," "Jesus, Where'er Thy People Meet," and "There Is a Fountain Filled With Blood."

The last hymn, which appears above, has been criticized by some for its graphic imagery, but nearly every critic has found an answering defender. Dr. Ray Palmer, author of the immortal hymn, "My Faith Looks Up To Thee," regarded Cowper's hymn very highly. James Montgomery, another eminent hymnist, called it "a lyric of high tone and character and rendered awfully interesting by the circumstances under which it was written."

A Lift for Living

Symbols of Our Way of Life

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

In the marriage service of my denomination there comes a point where the ring is about to be placed on the finger of the bride and sometimes of the groom also. The ring is handed to the minister who blesses it with the words: "The wedding ring is the outward and visible symbol of an inward and spiritual bond which unites two loyal hearts in endless love."

Such a symbol may seem unnecessary to a cold-blooded, matter-of-fact mind. In fact, the marriage ceremony itself may seem a needless yielding to sentimentality.

Some may say marriage is merely a social contract in which two people agree to live together. For the sake of social stability and property rights, let the agreement be registered. Isn't that all that is necessary? Why the ceremony of vows and rings and altars?

Because life is more than a cold-blooded, matter-of-fact business. Life is a blending of fact and dreams, of cold blood and hot blood. Marriage is a union for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health. VOWS AND SYMBOLS

And, therefore, in our high moods we make vows and use symbols which help to sustain us in our lower moods. Symbols, ceremonies, anniversaries serve to reinforce love and hold families together.

So is it in the life of nations. Our flag is only a piece of colored cloth! Yet who can measure the influence of that emblem as school children stand to salute it and citizens turn to gaze at it as they sing our national anthem?

What would happen to our morale if we removed all symbols, all shrines, all monuments from our national scene?

Why does the British Commonwealth of Nations feel it so important to have a Queen, surrounded by those fabulous jewels which quicken the imagination and warm the hearts of the trapper in Saskatchewan and the farmer in South Africa? Is it because men need outward and visible symbols of inward and spiritual bonds.

Symbols and ceremonies and anniversaries deliver us from the dead monotony of existence as mountains lift a landscape from wearying loveliness into interesting peaks which catch the first glints of the dawn and hold the last lingering rays of the setting sun.

Yes, life needs its soul-stirring hours and red-letter days to lift us out of our routine habits; and then we preserve these high moments by symbols and ceremonies.

And in the course of history certain symbols have been elevated to the status of what we call sacraments. A sacrament is the outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace."

THE LAST SUPPER

But I believe I speak for all groups when I say the Lord's Supper is so central to the whole sacramental system that when the layman hears the term "sacrament" he almost instinctively thinks of the Last Supper.

That Supper symbolizes the love of Him who gave His life not merely for His nation or His friends but for all men everywhere.

And so as we Canadians come to celebrate our nation's birthday on July 1, let us lift the day above the chronic level to the spiritual level. Let us not spend the holiday just racing over our roads, strewing them with wrecked cars and broken bodies. Let us salute our flag, gratefully remembering the brave men who fought under it.

And let us all be reminded how the love of God heals the wounds of war. American patriots fought against England for their freedom in 1776. Now Britain and America stand side by side in the struggle for a free world.

Americans in blue battled Americans in gray in the 1860's. But recently I assisted in unveiling the bust of General Stonewall Jackson in America's Hall of Fame on the campus of New York University. One of the persons present in the receiving line was a descendant of General Phil Sheridan.

Fifteen years ago America and Japan were locked in deadly combat. This summer Premier Kishi of Japan visited President Eisenhower to put, as he said, "Japanese-American cooperation and partnership on a permanent and more solid basis."

Truly, there are symbols of a divine love at work in our world.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

DISTINGUISHED BY BLIGHT

Do you imagine that all birds fly in the same way? Then you have never given this matter your attention. Their manner of flight is so very different that it is possible to identify many species without getting a silhouette in seen, and that from quite a distance. Learn a few characteristics, and you will find them most helpful when trying to distinguish between birds that are much of a size, especially if it is dusky or you are looking into the sun.

Take, for example, a downy woodpecker and a song sparrow. The flight of all woodpeckers is bounding, because they rise for a few wing beats, then fly slightly down hill with wings almost closed. Could you recognize a goldfinch by its extremely undulating flight or would you take it for a yellow warbler?

FLAP AND SAIL

A red-tailed hawk wheels about overhead; a marsh hawk, its bent back wings aiding you in identification, beats up and down over a field hunting for prey. Cooper's hawk and the little sharp-shinned both progress by quick flapping and sailing alternately. And, come to think of it, the peculiar flight of a spotted sandpiper might be described in somewhat the same words: a few quick wing beats, followed by a short sail on down curved wings. The sparrow hawk, tiny member of the Falcon family, desires along, then hovers over an intended victim with swiftly moving wings. A kingfisher also hovers, then drops; but the quick descent is into water to catch a fish, and its flight is very characteristic, as it flies with uneven wing beats.

You might take a herring gull for an osprey if you saw the gull in certain phases of its changes with the seasons and with the years. Then, it is not the different way of travelling. The gull flaps gently, the osprey sails at a height. Ducks, grebes, geese, and ducks fly with rapid beats of their small wings swiftly and strongly, progressing in a straight line, or a long curve without any short deviations. A green heron is known by the downward blend of the wings.

The long wings and general appearance of swallows and chimney swifts are most confusing for the amateur birder, although actually they are totally unrelated. But swallows of all kinds "rock and roll". First they seem to lie on one side, then the other. They progress in a twisting manner, expertly the opposite way from loons. Swifts bore their way through the air with nearly continuous beating of the wings.

QUICK CHANGE ARTISTS

The other day, anent bass fishing, we had occasion to comment on a deplorable difference of viewpoint between the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests and the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity as to the status of the Quinte district as a bass-fishing area. Since the Department of Lands and Forests mentioned us kindly, while the Department of Travel and Publicity ignored us, we naturally took the former Department to our bosom.

It therefore grieves us deeply to discover so shortly after the start of this love affair that the Department of Lands and Forests, too, is not without its flaws. And, once again, it is the bass which threw the spotlight on the Department's faults. Bass must be the Canadian substitute for Senate investigating committees!

Here we have the Department of Lands and Forests, in a news release dated June 25, explaining the primary reasons for the removal of the size limit from bass last year. One reason, says this release, was that "many bass lakes located near populated areas are so heavily populated with bass that stunting has occurred." Then it continued: "In the second place, careful observations have shown that when bass that did not meet the size required by the regulations then existing were hooked and returned to the water, most of them did no survive. It was believed that only expert anglers had skill enough to extract a barbed hook from the mouth of a fish without doing it serious injury. Because of this, it was felt that it would be advantageous, economically and biologically, to permit these bass to be retained by the angler."

Now this may make sense to the reader, and it made sense to us, too — for half an hour.

Then over the wire came a Canadian Press despatch from Toronto. It read: "The season for bass fishing in Ontario opens next Monday with the bag limit unchanged at six with no size limit. However, the fish and game division of the Department of Lands and Forests said today that instead of keeping the first six fish he catches, as required last year, an angler may throw back into the river any small fish. The only proviso is that a fish may not be thrown back if it is considered likely to die."

On June 25 the Department said the size limit on bass was removed because "most of them (small bass) hooked and released did not survive."

On June 26 the Department decides to permit small bass to be released providing they are not "considered likely to die."

It places its faith on the ability of the average angler to accurately estimate a fish's chances of survival. Yet on June 25 it is said that "only expert anglers had skill enough to extract a barbed hook from an undersized fish without doing it serious injury."

If the average angler cannot extract a hook without killing a fish, what chance is there for the average angler to estimate accurately the injury done to the fish?

Come, come, boys, let's be logical.

Incidentally, if a small bass hooked in season and released is likely to die, is not a small bass hooked and released out of season also likely to perish? And, if so, might there not be some merit to the plan adopted in some U.S. states, also reportedly played with over-population of lakes with stunted fish, under which there is no closed season?

If, on the other hand, a closed season is imperative to protect the bass during the spawning season, might it not be best to prohibit all fishing before July 1 in waters where bass predominate?

SERVES PILOT RIGHT

Robert Lee Bartling of Lockhart, Texas, has been charged with taking a pot shot at a U.S. Army liaison plane, damaging it. Our sympathies are all with Mr. Bartling.

His weapon was a .410 shotgun. Now a .410 shotgun is the smallest smoothbore made. Its killing range for ducks is considered to be not more than 35 yards. No statistics are available on kills on planes, but the killing range on a reasonably healthy plane should not be more than that of a duck. Mr. Bartling says the pilot was buzzing him for the third time when he fired. We think Mr. Bartling was surprisingly slow on the trigger. Our own feeling is that any pilot of a military plane who comes within 100 feet of a pedestrian is asking for anything he gets on the very first pass. Our advice to Mr. Bartling is that he throw away that .410 and equip himself with a 10-gauge magnum five-shot autoloader, that he throw away the three-shot plug and that he chock the magazine full of rifled slugs.

FAITH

Faith is the abiding trust
That God is merciful and just.
Nor what no reason he can find
It keeps man patient and resigned.

What good is the display of dread
Or rings of rare design?
The one who wears them fails unless
The spirit's just as fine.

When I have done my final task
And judgment must be made
I wonder will they think to ask
At just which church I prayed?

By height and size, the names we bore
On earth we all are known,
But men and women must be more
Than pounds of flesh and bone.

Can Satisfy Curiosity

By Arthur Blakely in the Montreal Gazette

With the Conservatives for critically tabled office, they'll get their first peak at many secret and confidential files which have been accumulating during the 22 years that the Liberals have been in office. There are known to be hundreds of instances when the government has declined to produce correspondence — to speak only of that — about which the Conservatives have manifested an all-consuming curiosity.

A good deal of this has been involved have long since become ancient history. But even ancient history is revertible from time to time.

The official files which will come into the possession of the Conservatives won't, of course, be every single one of them, they were, say a week ago.

There are rules and precedents governing the custody and transfer of official documents. But in fact most files that are honored quite as much in the breach as in the observance.

Cabinet Ministers are regularly to leave behind them, when they depart office, only whatever public documents may have been in their possession during their term of office. This is for the purpose of maintaining the principle that all public transactions which had occurred, for the benefit of successors.

But the archives of departments are rarely left intact by departing ministers.

* * *

Private letters, for example, are regarded as the property of the outgoing minister even where they have something to do with affairs of state. Who decides what is private correspondence and what is official? Well, in practice, no one other than the outgoing minister.

Effect of this curious division of documents is that only rarely does a new Cabinet Minister relish in the discovery of a letter, memorandum or file, exclusively his own, beginning:

"Dear Sir: Many thanks for your interesting contribution to our fund for the improvement of the mentally deficient party. By the way, I have made inquiries and find that there exists a distinct possibility that that contract about which you had been inquiring may be available your way ——."

If correspondence of that fascinating kind does turn up, it's the exclusive product of the departing minister of the minister. There have been instances of the kind which caused Cabinet Ministers lived to regret.

But not all of them take a chance. William Lyon Mackenzie King carted away tons of personal material when he surrendered the Prime Ministership and the Liberal leadership in 1948.

* * *

While it's all over and done with now, it's not unlikely that the Conservatives would be interested in examining some of the documents still on hand which relate to the Conscription crisis.

For that matter, the Bren Gun affair still awaits a definite study. So does the Hong Kong

And just what was the exact wording of that British message which was read to Did Oliver Lemble in the Dieppe landing arrangements?

How much is left of the official files by way of documents bearing directly on the Russian espionage revelations in 1945-46? Published material about this was interesting enough. Documents which have never seen the cold light of day could be more so.

There are some Conservatives who have never forgotten the Currie Report, bearing on the strange transactions of the Army Works Services.

Ministers who insisted that they'd never engaged in any correspondence with CBC chairman A. D. Dunton aren't likely to leave any lying around loose. But documents relating to the Trans-Canada Pipeline Project could be of great interest to many Parliamentarians. As could those bearing on the Norman case.

And just how sternly did Ottawa tick off the British Government during the Suez crisis? Is Sorsel still Solon Lee's right? Or is Mr. St. Laurent' Bernard Heron? Or — the government may know the answers to at least some of these questions. Though whether it's anything publicity or not, is another question.

'Weavers' Dangerous

Hamilton Spectator

Although Illegal, passing on the right is become fairly common usage on four-lane highways. And the announcement in March that the provincial legislature was preparing to permit such overtaking appears to have encouraged the habit and suspended prosecutions. Now Queen's Park is having second thoughts about allowing unlimited use of the practice and is rightly concerned over its application on two-lane roads.

The increase in built-land russing has been demonstrated on Hamilton's suburban streets, particularly when outside lane traffic moves slowly in preparing to make a left-hand turn at an intersection. It has also shown the danger resulting from the spread of "weavers" who bulldoze their way on to an inside, right-hand lane to gain a few futile yards.

Premier Frost has indicated the most reasonable course — that right-hand passing, as it start, should be confined only on a limited basis on four-lane highways. Such action would be a privilege on clearly-designated roads; and on other streets the law against inside passing must be enforced to curb the alarming enthusiasm of the "weaver."

Strength for The Day

BOTH OR NOTHING

Modern man wants to get rid of hell but he doesn't want to get rid of Heaven.

Strange, isn't it, that he leaves himself and us in this position of painful unbalance. For it would appear reasonable that if there is no hell, there is no Heaven. If we have no hell, we have to have a hell, and if we have a hell we must have a Heaven.

Why? Because if God is a righteous God, He must be just and justice must operate throughout the whole of His creation. It is all very well to talk about the reward of doing good but how about the reward of doing evil? A just God will certainly reward righteousness but He ceases to be a just God unless He punishes unrighteousness. We cannot have it both ways.

We cannot have our cake and eat it. We must throw the whole idea of reward out of our thinking—we cannot have both just half of it. Good rewarded means evil punished. The one implies the other.

Man, by thinking, cannot get hell out of the area of reality in which he lives. His conscience observes against the whole idea of divine punishment because he cannot look down deep in his heart that it is ethically sound—ethically necessary.

No Heaven without hell. No hell without Heaven. Both or nothing.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SOMEONE

What a lonely, dark and dreary world this would be if we lived it all with no one to give it a little warmth, none to care whether we were happy, not a single one to share our joys, and none to declare his or her love for us!

Even the loneliest human beings for some understanding, companionship. We need at least one Someone in our lives to be us useful and normal, even if we have to invent such a one! In Nature you rarely see one part of animal without others as co-workers and companions. How familiar is a herd of cattle happily feeding in a field! If one moves on the rest follow.

Thoreau, the New England naturalist and writer, made few friends and preferred to be alone and to wander the fields and country about Concord, in preference to meeting with someone. But his example was not common. He was a thinker and observer and made a good companion out of himself. He wrote that Emerson would look strange and funny behind a wheelbarrow!

Most of us wish for Someone to help share our joys, sorrows and triumphs every day. We want to keep one be but a single person. In an entire lifetime we can rarely boast of more than a few real friends and — but that solitary one seems always necessary. We must do something about the overflow of love in our heart. God meant it that way! It is like a fuel there is a Someone near at hand when I most need counsel and understanding, someone in whom I have trust and confidence. I am not alone in this. Somewhere there is a Someone! God has been that Someone to millions!

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

And I Thought I Had All My Marbles

A year ago, the eminent Dr. John H. Burkhart announced, in an open letter, that "The American Medical Association, after attempting to appeal to syndicates which handle this material" (that is, Personal Health Service, by William Brady), "and having met with failure in this attempt, has resigned itself to wait until disease comes to it, just for reward."

The announcement shook my morale more than I like to admit. Haven't you noticed how ladylike most of the stuff in this column has been lately? For instance, instead of calling people "poor geeks," I have taken to calling them "poor souls" and instead of calling medical students "ethical quacks," I refer to them simply as "trick specialists."

On the other hand, every night when I say my prayers and thank the Lord for having let me live another day, I have to ask Him to forgive me for chuckling just can't help chuckling about my death watch my erstwhile colleagues are keeping on me.

You see, what with my morning rolls, functionally efficient (for some my income my dentist's), three afternoons a week gambling on the bowling green, lifelong dietitians, and daily dietary supplement (minerals and vitamins), I'm counting, the Lord willing, on pounding away here for a good long time.

Big as 35 Elephants

National Geographic Bulletin

The biggest animal ever known to exist still bulldozes through the sea — but not, perhaps for long.

It is the much hunted blue whale, a monster that can grow more than 100 feet long and weigh 150 tons. Its bulk equals 35 elephants and is more than twice the weight believed attained by the largest dinosaur.

Blue whales are able to reach their great size because the water, denser than air, supports them. On land their own weight would push the internal organs and kill them.

These whales get a big start in life. Newborn babies are up to 25 feet long. The females nurse their young in the water, pumping as much as 200 pounds of milk into each in a single day. The milk is rich, like a cow's, but extra rich in minerals, proteins and fats.

* * *

Eight months after birth the calf is grazing on solid food. It is then 50 feet long. It swims through concentrations of a shrimplike creature called krill, its mouth agape taking in water, krill and all. Then the whale swoop closes and the water is forced out through filters of whalebone — an important source of income for whalers in which weighs 3½ ounces corset stays.

A horny structure, whalebone hangs like a thick fringed curtain from the sides of the whale's mouth. The tongue forces out the water, leaving the krill behind. Then the huge hopper — caught in the whale-bone. As much as a ton of these creatures may be found in the whale's stomach.

The whale couldn't eat anything much larger — its throat is but six to eight inches in diameter.

* * *

Tremendously strong, the blue whale can push its bulk through the water at speeds up to 25 miles an hour.

One, harpooned off Alaska, towed a 90-foot whaling vessel at six knots for more than eight hours. Much of that the boat's crew spent in reeling in the speed astern.

The blue whale was once a great deal more plentiful than it is today. Overhunting for oil, fertilizer and whalebone has thinned its numbers.

Each year, however, whaling fleets from Scandinavia, Russia and Japan go to the Antarctic waters, where whales are now most plentiful, to search out the blues and their smaller cousins.

* * *

Under international treaty, each year's catch is limited. In the season recently ended, the quotas permitted among all the whaling nations was 14,500 "blue whale units." Each unit is either a blue whale, two fin whales, two and one-half humpback whales or six sei whales.

Although the quota has been decreased in recent years, the number of the big blubbery blues has fallen.

Conservationists fear that unless killing is further reduced, there may come a day when the hunting ships will find no quarry.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the current bulletin of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, Dr. J.R. Dymond states the case of life and death in nature very pliably.

"A pair of robins in this latitude," he writes, "usually nests twice. If each nesting produced four young and all survive, there would be eight young to go south in the two old ones in the fall. If all ten, five pairs, survived and returned in spring, and each pair reared two broods and each brood fifty to go south the second fall, and 250 in the third.

"This doesn't happen. We know it can't happen. There would not be food or space enough for so many. On the average over a period of years, the population at most species appears to remain nearly the same, going up and down from year to year, but remaining nevertheless.

"The chief causes of natural mortality are predation, starvation, disease and unfavorable weather. By reducing predation, populations have been increased, but if the food supply will not support the larger population, starvation or disease favored by malnutrition usually results.

"So long as natural conditions obtain, animal life is in balance with its environment — not a fixed balance, but a balance swinging between one limit and the other, always tending towards but never reaching a steady state.

"It is important to contemplate the fact that most of the young hatched in the world must die before attaining maturity, but this is the way nature operates. Were it not so, animals die is easy — being killed and eaten by others, or dying of starvation, disease or unfavorable weather. But accepting the facts of life leaves a world of many vain hopes and wishes.

"There are always a providing for the survival of more young appear possible. The first is to improve the habitat so that it will provide a living for more of the kind we favor. The second way is to remove some of the adults through hunting, trapping, or fishing. This will increase the number surviving, but will enable some of the young to live longer."

Dr. Dymond, professor of biology, is a charter pioneer member of both sportsmen's and field naturalist's organizations in Canada, and speaks to both types of audience with a full understanding of their bias.

Roadblock Brings Death

Baltimore Sun

When a known killer is racing his car along a road at 100 miles an hour in an attempt to escape the police there is not much question that he must be stopped at all costs. A roadblock, even if it may mean death for the criminal, is the only way that is clearly ordered.

On the other hand, the speeder who has made an unwise decision to try to outrun the police has little another category. True, he is a potential killer so long as he is careening along at 80 to 100 miles an hour. But the police problem is a different one. It is not to bring him in at all costs.

Rather it is to reduce his speed so that he doesn't kill either himself or others as a roadblock is the way to do it?

That is the problem Baltimore county police and their armed a speeding car along Eastern boulevard. They decided on roadblocks as the aid of another police car, which was placed across the road, was the way to deal with their particular case.

The speeder died in a flaming crash to present his car bouncing along on its top for almost 1,200 feet.

We offer no judgment on the wisdom of this particular decision. But it does recall the serious question of when this is the right way to deal with the situation and when it may produce a greater tragedy than it is designed to prevent.

Surely this device is the kind that ought to be used only when police are sure they have it under control, when they are driving the speeder will be aware of the blockade he faces, of the fatal crash if he doesn't stop. Roadblocks are not to be used as traps for the unwary, but as a last resort when all else has failed.

Nine Weather Ships Patrol

Saint John Telegraph Journal

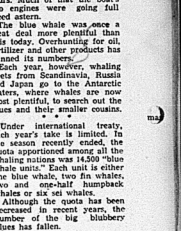
They appear in the news occasionally. But in the everyday activities of the International Civil Aviation Organization's North Atlantic Region they maintain their patrols at sea for months on end without much to break the monotony.

Their main purpose is to provide surface and upper air weather information for meteorologists forecasting and broadcasting it to aircraft flying across the Atlantic and service as communications links in the world network consists of nine ships, or stations, each of which occupies a 10-mile square area in all kinds of weather.

But the job is not quite so monotonous as it sounds. For the annual report of the weather ship service discloses that during 1956, 47 people were saved from the sea by these craft.

As part of their regular duties these same ships carried out with 40,449 aircraft and 6,631 ships.

Sign of Sanity



London Free Press

A patient in a British mental institution won more than $2,000 in a football pool. That is in itself not surprising, for sanity has no particular place in such contests. But the winner refuses to leave the institution, pointing out that he has few requirements and they are now being met, while if he left his present shelter he would have a great many false friends who would quickly relieve him of his fortune.

We can't help wondering on what grounds he was committed. Most of those who buy tickets are crazier than that.

The Face on the Stamp

Composer of Nature's Own Music

By Nicholas Mika

Far to the north is a beautiful wild country, Norway. Deep fjords cut into the rocky land and tall dark spruce trees whisper eternal songs. Here, in 1843 he was born. Bright and colorful like a Persian carpet. The people there are happy and love to sing and dance. But with the long cool winter nights melancholy comes into their hearts. Their songs are touching and tender and reflect their deepest emotions.

It is from this country that come the well-known, bewitching melodies of Peer Gynt. How often have you heard them on the radio or in concert halls! The man who composed this music loved his country so much, that he wanted to give the world a glimpse of its beauty and charm. He knew that only a few travellers would admire his homeland, but with his songs he could tell everyone who wanted to listen about the wide sky climbing spruce, the glittering lakes in the snow-covered mountains and the emerald-green, never freezing fjords.

Rarely is a man so possessed with music as he was. Born in the seaport Bergen in 1843 he learned to play the piano from his mother at the age of six. As much as he loved music he hated to practise. And just as much did he hate to study at school. He was a dreamer and wanted to become a preacher, a poet or a musician. When he finally decided to devote his life to music he refused absolutely to study so passionately that he nearly exhausted his strength. He studied in his own country as well as abroad. Many talented teachers left their impressions on him; but his greatest master was the wild and beautiful nature of the North, the forests and streams, the creeks and lakes and the blue sky above the dark woods. Nature composed his immortal music for him, he only had to listen quietly.

When he remembered the sagas of the giants and gnomes that his mother had told him, he composed the "March of the Dwarfs." The colorful and manifold customs of the peasants of his country found their echo in his many compositions. His world was built from a thousand dreams and he preferred to live in it rather than in the realistic one. His melancholy melodies were little understood at first even in his native land. He was never rich, money meant nothing to him. Norwegian stamps in 1943.

but he possessed something that many of us overlook, — a never ending joy in beauty.

He composed hundreds of beautiful songs. One of them is "I Love You," was written in the flame of love for his charming cousin Nina. When he proposed, however, the girl's parents shut the door in his face and told him that he was crazy. He had nothing, was nothing and wrote music no one wanted to hear.

Well, they were wrong. He was soon invited to Paris, London, Copenhagen and other cities to give his concerts and the Peer Gynt suite made more and more enthusiastically received. He had a sign on his door saying that he could not receive any visitors before the late afternoon, or else his admirers would not let him in peace. And peace was all he wanted. Fame and success and with his music he was content. He asked to be buried quietly at his estate, but his country men ignored his wish and paid him the honor that he well deserved.

Today he belongs to the best-loved composers of the world. The great Norwegian who revealed the nature in all its changing moods in his music was Edward Grieg.

Garden Notes

Gardenias at Rose During Summer

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

When this chill arrogant barks "At ease!" the garden will be easy, but does not fall out of line. July and August is the time to stand easy in the garden, but don't fall out of line completely.

Pest control, feeding and watering must still be carried on. However, there are more relaxed ways of doing these chores than the methods we employ in spring and fall.

Take pest control — you may have been using one type of spray for rose black spot, another for aphids, pyrethrum for this, derris for that and bordeaux mixture for other garden troubles. All in all you have quite a collection of jars and mixing pails. Look for one of the new all purpose sprays. One that will control fungus diseases and sucking and chewing insects. One that contains copper sulphate will take care of the worst fungus spores. Malathion is more effective than D.D.T. in controlling more than 200 insect pests.

EASIER TO USE

All purpose dusts are easier to use than liquids: e.g., just as effective job if used at two week intervals. The main objection here has been that the gardener also gets some of the dust unless the air is still. The newer packages of all purpose dusts are designed to put more distance between the operator and the dust, but if you buy the dust in large quantities or by the bag, you can get a dust gun with a long nozzle. This is a type especially useful in dusting the underside of the leaves. If the weather becomes muggy and mildew or aphis threaten to take over, an extra dusting is a matter of minutes. Dewy foliage will hold the dust better than dry plants. Plan to rise a little early and get the dust on while plants are still damp in the morning.

Feeding and watering can be a combination job if you have a siphon. In fact a siphon will give uniform applications of insecticides, weed killer or fertilizers. There is one type which is attached to the nozzle of the hose rather than at the faucet. Chemical is mixed with water in pail, siphon hose and weight are dropped into solution and nozzle pushed into nozzle. 2,000 square feet of soil can be covered without lifting pail.

ONCE A WEEK

One good deep soaking a week is a must if you would keep your plants growing. A light sprinkling every evening can do more harm than good. This coaxes the roots to the surface in search of moisture. Turn the hose on slow having placed the nozzle on a piece of board and allow the water to run for an hour. The soil will be soaked to approximately six inches deep. Move to another section and repeat. A soil soaker hose, made of canvas will do as fine job with far less effort. This hose comes in 12 to 50 foot lengths. A 20 or 30 foot length of garden hose is less costly and less clumsy than the longer length. Coil soaker hose down on the watering chore. Apply it soon after a rain, while the soil is still moist, but not soggy. Dig lightly around plants to cut off any weed seedling which may have started before applying mulch.

Peat moss should be spread at least two inches deep on sandy soils. Half that will do on heavy clay soils. Grass clippings are good if you think they can be spared from the lawn. Apply a thin layer and allow to cure before applying another layer.

Wedding Plans Disrupted Day Before Ceremony

PICTON — Wedding plans of John Ryell, 23, and Miss Gwendoline Leyshon, 21, were disrupted the day before the ceremony was to have taken place, when both were injured in an auto accident, Friday afternoon.

Miss Leyshon, who had recently come from Wales to be married here, was seriously injured but will recover. Her injuries include a fractured pelvis in three places, lacerations on the leg, and salivery

Ryell, a consulting engineer with the Lake Ontario Cement Co. here, suffered shock and cuts on the arm and chest.

Scene of the accident was almost opposite Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

The couple were driving south on Highway 14 (Bellville-Picton) when it is believed a tire blew out. The car skidded a big maple tree on the passenger side, rolled over and came to rest on its side over a fence. The couple were thrown out. So badly was the car wrecked that police consider it a miracle that they escaped instant death.

Dr. K. B. McQueen is attending the injured.

Ontario Provincial Police investigated.

Your Car

New Cars Need Special Care

By EUGENE MILMOE

Break-in techniques, gas and oil grades and service schedules recommended by the car maker are important to the 1957 car owner, but for full care we should dredge all information about his new model.

Take tires, for example. The new, smaller sizer must work harder; thus, more than ever, it's considered poor practice to drive at high speed before treads have a chance to warm up.

The routine job of changing lubes calls for some precautions, too. On some models, the bumpers cannot be used as jacking points.

One factory advises there is greater danger of radio damage on their 1957's if the engine is started while the radio is playing. Others list new cautions and procedures for push-starting automatic transmissions.

To drivers with new fuel injection and torsion suspension models comes special advice: Don't have these systems serviced by anyone but a factory-trained mechanic.

S.E. asks: "What could be the reason for the unusual noise and vibration I still have when I am being driven? As I increase my speed the unusual noise (which may be described as a whirring sound from underneath) increases. A mechanic has looked out on, but I still hear the noise. Can you help me?"

(A) Have your range check for worn universal joints, the most likely possibility.

From C.I.: "Last weekend I cleaned and regapped the spark plugs on my 1954 sedan. The next day I noticed the engine had suddenly developed a slight miss. I removed the plugs again, double-checked the gaps and replaced them, but the miss is still there. I have checked and adjusted my own plugs for several years without difficulty. Do you know what why I'm really baffled about this."

(A) Did you try new plug gaskets? Quite often, the old ones must be replaced because they have been forced too much to provide a tight seal

H.M. writes: "My engine does not start easily. It also misses, especially at low speeds. After two mechanics diagnosed the trouble as a weak spark, I had the following replaced: points, spark plugs, condenser, ignition coil and battery. So far this hasn't made any great change so I hope you can suggest something."

(A) The ignition switch might be the answer. In any case a weak spark if it's not working properly.

From A.T.: "I have a 1954 convertible. In 1956 I bought a new battery, tail pipe, muffler, convertible top motor, kingpins and new brake lining. I took several 1,000-mile trips with no trouble. What kind of trouble should I expect and what should be checked before leaving on such trips this year?"

(A) The best insurance is to let your garage give the car a thorough physical: e.g., inspect, service and road test. It's the only way to determine whether the car's true condition and needs.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

Be careful about your driving—be sure about you rear.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Don't Let Family Make You Retire Only You Can Make This Decision

By THOMAS COLLINS

No matter how good the arguments are, no matter who makes them, don't retire from your job or business until you have to. Or until you yourself choose it.

Children and relatives can be paternalistic and persistent in urging you to quit, and if you're not careful you can spoil the mature years of your life.

"I think I was flattered into retiring," John H. Wheeler told me a few nights ago. We had met in a motel just off the turnpike near Toledo, Ohio. He and his wife were headed back home to Texas after a tour of New England.

"I had a pretty good wholesale jobbing business. I had it built and done all right through the years. I had one salesman for my territory, but sometimes I had to step in and help him, he got overnight. I worked . . ."

On his fifth birthday his three children began urging him to sell out and quit. He had done his share. He had enough to live on. He and mother should be free to enjoy a little living. To travel. To stop worrying about sales.

"My children didn't want a thing out of me," he remembered. "They were just trying to suggest what was best for me. Or so they thought . . ."

WIFE JOINED IN

Finally his wife joined the children. She wanted to go to New England and buy some antiques. Every time he was away overnight, or something went wrong at the office, she asked him why he didn't go on and quit. Even the family doctor joined the chorus.

"I was just flattered into it. Everybody wanted me to do what they were sure was best for me."

So he sold out. And he had nothing to do with his time. He's never body who told him to quit did. His children were so busy they could never be only once in several weeks. The doctor was too busy to even call. He felt like a fool. He had never suspected she had so much housework to do, always right where he was going to be.

"I don't blame them. I love 'em all. I blame myself for listening to them. A man ought to know when enough sense to know what is best for himself. If I'm dead sure I'm relf be flattened into a sterile existence where he has nothing to do but miserable, then it's his fault."

Mr. Wheeler was happy with his wife, but as all he knew it is highly doubtful that he will be as happy with her all the time as he would if well-meaning people had paid more attention to their own wishes and needs.

THREE SETS OF URGERS

And the same is probably true with you. If you're retired, then you can go before you have to, three different sets of people may urge you to go.

(1) Fine, splendid children who are satisfactorily settled and comfortable to you and who aid their own vanity by telling friends they have "had to make old Dad take it easy."

(2) Selfish children or their spouses who have figured they can take over your business or estate. Or who have other reasons for urging.

(3) Your own loving but possibly misguided wife who sees the breakfasts she won't have to cook without the lunches she will have to . . . who has some other information that makes her sure you will live longer if you quit . . . or who wants to make a tour of New England.

You can't get a license to be stupid at age 65. So don't act like you've got one. It may be that to quit is the smartest thing you ever do if you can quit. But you decide it. You're smart enough. You haven't been lived so long if you weren't.

The Sentinel has been a daily since last Oct. 2.

HEAVY DAMAGE

Several trees and hydro poles were reported afire as high-tension wires broke and fell to the limbs. Firemen were called out on several occasions for blazing trees and poles.

Pleasure craft tied up at the Belleville Yacht Club also took a severe beating with two costly sinkings. Many others suffered heavy damaged as the high winds took their toll.

Streets in all sections of the city were littered with the debris of the storm. Hundreds of volunteer crewmen had a big day afield cleaning up the mess.

COOLER WEATHER EXPECTED

Weather forecasters at the Trenton RCAF said the windstorm which struck the city this morning earlier than was expected with the cooler air mass expected to arrive until later in the day.

Heavy rain fell across the province during the night, ranging from two inches reported in the Toronto area to Rainfall at Belleville was 1.76 inches, from yesterday afternoon until this morning.

At Trenton streets were strewn with small limbs and other debris and hydro and telephone crews were out to repair service broken by falling branches A hydro pole on Dundas street was destroyed, while the big sign on top of the Trenton Cold Storage was toppled over.

For the second time within two weeks windows at the new Loblaw store addition on Pinnacle street were broken. Shortly before ten o'clock an exceptionally strong gust smashed an 18-foot-long section of plate glass, and carpenters were hurriedly called to erect planks and brown-paper to replace other windows against the wind.

MAY BE 10

Pestilence, the invisible lead-maiden of a widespread death, threatened the water-logged land. Tens of thousands of dead cattle and wild animals lay bloating in the hot sun and oppressive humidity that followed the 105-mile winds of the hurricane.

STORM LIKES IN OHIO

The hurricane moved inland Friday morning. It moved northeastward across Louisiana and on through Mississippi into Tennessee. It finally died in a gush of rain over the Ohio valley.

Many victims lost a chance to save themselves because they did not expect it to hit before nightfall. Others underestimated the strength of the storm.

Hardest hit were the coastal parishes. Hardest hit by the one-two punch of wind and waves was Cameron Parish, about 30 miles south of here and in the extreme southwestern corner of the state. Although larger than Rhode Island, the parish has a seasonally fluctuating population that runs as high as 10,000.

100 DIE IN CAMERON

About 100 persons were believed to have died in Cameron in the parish. Most of them in the little county seat Cameron. Dozens of fishermen, where about 1,000 persons live on a small flat coastal island.

The hurricane hit Cameron almost head on, battering about two feet of its buildings.

Holly Beach, a resort community west of Cameron, was all but wiped off the map.

The water stood 12 feet deep in Cameron after the tidal wave had spent its strength.

Sets of only one record of corn, rice, figs and oranges were ruined by the hammering of the hurricane itself.

The actual passage of the storm was followed by a period of placidiate alarm. The death toll at first seemed unbelievably low. Cameron refugees, singly and in groups, wet, shoeless, hungry and unconscious for clothes on their back. With them were tales of horror. Tales of death at pastries hiding their nakedness.

The tales gasped out a grim description of the wall of water that engulfed the coastal areas, a mantle of death across their land. For a time there seemed little doubt that the death toll might be in the thousands.

SHOCK SHOWS ON FACES

Terror was shock and horror and pathos etched deeply in the lines of the survivors' faces. Stephen Crochet, one of the men relating details of his own escape, Suddenly he turned to look at him..Ha broke. He sobbed: "I lost four kids and everything I have."

Mrs. J. B. Gibbs told of watching her husband and two children swept to their deaths in the swirling flood water near Cameron. She said a wall crashed in-law drifted on planks to a ridge where they found refuge, together with dogs, hogs and wild animals which had found refuge there.

A mud-stained five-year-old girl found another refuge in the gymnasium of Mc-Neese-State College at Lake Charles, a refugee center. She was sipping milk when her mother ran frantically in. Her eyes looked wildly about. "Baby, baby," the woman cried as finally she found the little girl and clutched the little girl.

The Week's News

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The leaders of 10 Commonwealth countries met in London and heard a call from Canada's new prime minister, John Diefenbaker, for a conference on trade problems.

Diefenbaker said he hopes Commonwealth finance ministers will visit Canada late in September to decide "when, where and whether" a full-scale Commonwealth trade meeting can be held.

The finance ministers will meet in Washington Sept. 24 to 27 in connection with International Monetary Fund discussions and the prime minister suggested they then go to Ottawa.

Meanwhile, the Commonwealth statesmen, representing Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon, the new independent state of Ghana, and the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, made a forward-looking study of Russian policies, disarmament, the spread of communism in the Middle East, the Baghdad Pact, and the Far East.

DISARMAMENT HOPES

The Western and Communist powers appeared to get a little closer in the course of the London disarmament talks.

A United States proposal for supervised disclosure of armed forces disposal, of non-nuclear weapons received general approval from Russia, Britain, France and Canada.

The formula would affect only one phase of the disarmament problem. The United Nations subcommittee also is seeking ways to halt nuclear tests and cut the size of armed forces.

The question of a reunified Germany, among other things, stood in the way of full agreement.

KOREAN PROPOSAL

Korea was in the news again. The Communists called for an international conference, and withdrawal of foreign troops.

North Korea, backed by Communist China, made the move shortly after the UN command said new weapons were being taken to South Korea because the Communists had violated an armistice pledge against such action.

The Red proposal was made during a session of the joint military armistice commission. The UN command said it was not a proper subject to be discussed at a military conference.

SHAH VISITS CANADA

There were signs of tough tactics in Communist China.

The Tse-tung, chief of state, promulgated new rules for the national police, indicating new troubles may be brewing because of internal criticism in high quarters. Premier Chou En-lai told critics to behave because they may be classed as "enemies of the people" if they continue needling the regime.

TWINS' RETURN

The Supreme Court of Canada ordered that twin boys, aged 3, be transferred from the foster parents they've known since birth and restored to their natural parents. The court, setting out the basic principle that parents are entitled to the custody of their children, said the boys should live with Herman and Trudy Mast, a Dutch immigrant couple living in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hepton 'of Cookville, Ont., sorrowfully preparing to part with the boys, said they would never again adopt children. The Dutch couple changed their minds after putting the babies out for adoption at birth three years ago.

SPUTNIKS ROCKETS

Canada's new aircraft carrier Bonaventure received her name, port, Halifax, for the first time and received a warm welcome. The 20,000-ton Bonne was delayed a half-hour by the fog while entering harbor.

Among those attending a welcome to the flattop, which succeeds the earlier Bonaventure, were Lieutenant-Governor Allistair Fraser of Nova Scotia and Rear-Admiral F. E. S. Bidwell, Atlantic Coast flag officer.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

How can you make out of a room, a weekend thought to see June out and July in? We are going to try.

The date was June 26th, last Wednesday. The scene was a courtroom in the County Building, Belleville. In the beginning, the Canadian coat of arms looked down on the empty bench, and across the well to the public gallery. We were about thirty people sitting where the public sits. We were just people of the common mould at a casual glance, pretty much the same as men and women anywhere. But for twenty-four individuals there was a difference, an intangible difference. Maybe the difference was emotional, maybe it was in their hearts, maybe it was a mixture of sadness and great joy. Whatever it was, and it could have been any or all of these, it was a great beginning from a long journey to a future of hope in Canada. In a few short minutes Canada would have twenty-four new citizens. Mrs. McCaw called the court to order with the traditional oyez, oyez, oyez and God Save the Queen. Judge Anderson entered from his chambers to take his seat on the bench.

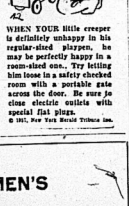
It was an unusual court. It is unfortunate that more Canadians are unable to attend one. There might be a great deal more understanding here for TV. There is drama. It is solemn drama. It is quiet drama. It is beneath the surface in the quiet depths of each individual's aloneness in the community of citizenship with all its responsibilities. Yes, it could have a fresh awareness of our blessings and freedoms by witness by presentation of citizenship court to the people.

Mrs. McCaw calls the new citizens by surname in front of the stand before the bench. Judge Anderson asks them to read after him their renunciation of allegiance to any foreign state or sovereign. Then he has them read after him the oath of allegiance to the Queen of Canada and to abide by the laws of Canada.

The plaintiff has come to us bringing his or her suit before the bar of Canadian citizenship. Canada the defence has rested its case finding the applicants worthy and asks the plaintiffs to accept the verdict of a charge of responsibilities from that moment on to their freely adopted native land. As Canadian citizens our new neighbors take upon themselves the task of being forever on the defence for Canada.

When the whole group has taken the oath of allegiance Judge Anderson in the name of Canada addresses our fellow citizens. Quietly, seriously, solemnly and with dignity he welcomes our new fellow Canadians, reminding them of their duty to their new country and their opportunity of sharing the finest from their native cultures. We sat in on an interview with Judge Anderson during the probationary period of a couple of applicants and we know how deeply serious he is about the obligations of citizenship. He is patient, considerate, helpful and very serious.

Following the remarks from the bench, Judge Anderson called on several native born Canadians to address words of welcome to our new friends. He then invited anyone from the group who had just become citizens at the letter as well as the spirit to say a few words. Four individuals expressed their gratitude to Canada; their deep sincerity was obvious. It would be easy to lend yourself to excessive sentiments and go overboard, but it would be impossible to put into words how vividly the feelings portray the truth of the old adage "familiarity breeds contempt." We who are born in freedom and plenty, forget, or accept indifferently, the benevolence of the accident of birth. An abundance of words could add nothing. We wish more Canadians could be present at the unusual but impressive ceremony when our new neighbors become Canadians.



Judge Anderson rises, retires to his chambers and Mrs. McCaw dismisses us.

As we left through the door, we looked back and our glance fell on the Canadian coat of arms standing silently on guard in the room which gave us food for thought for Dominion Day weekend.

And so with the thought that on this Dominion Day weekend we might all dwell for a moment on the obligation of standing on guard for Canada — the old one, the new in equal degree, T & T remembers the room which gave us today's column.

Here Are Best Dining Spots For Consistently Fine Food

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

There's a sign on a tiny highway luncheonette in Wisconsin reading, "Duncan Hines never ate here; he probably couldn't find it either."

There are lots of places in which neither Duncan Hines nor we nor whoever wrote your most treasured gastronomical guide ever ate, whether for lack of aloof space or other reasons.

Thus it is with a certain amount of apology that we list herewith our 55 favorite restaurants.

You will find places in most guides that may not be listed here. There are two possible reasons: Either we have found the place overrated, the victim of its own popularity; or we've simply never been there. It's to this latter group we apologize for not being in a position to name them.

On the other hand there are places listed before you may not find in any guidebook. That's all right; we still like them, and think you will.

All we vouch for is that the food at these restaurants has been consistently exceptional — and that means everything on the menu — hot, freshly prepared, imaginatively cooked, deftly served and pleasantly surrounded.

MEET HIGH STANDARDS

You'd be surprised how high a standard that is to live up to. That's why there are only 55.

California — Beverly Hills: the Lanai Room of the Beverly Hills Hotel. Probably the best roast beef on the continent.

Colorado — Denver: the Old Navarre.

Connecticut — Hartford: the Hearthstone; Honiss' Sea Food; Pippie's.

District of Columbia — Washington: Fan and Bill's

Florida — Miami Beach: Sherman's Aztec Hotel; Chatelaine Room, Chateau Motel; Mona Lisa Room, Eden Roc Hotel; the Embers; Rascal House.

Hollywood — Hickory Foods.

Georgia — Atlanta: Leb's.

Illinois — Chicago: Henrici's; the Prime Rib in Sheldon Chase House Grill; Bergdoff's.

Louisiana — Baton Rouge: the Lanai; New Orleans: Antoine's; Kolb's; La Louisiana.

Massachusetts — Sturbridge: the Publick House.

Michigan — Detroit: the Old Wayne Club. Fenton: Giles' (probably the fried chicken you've been looking for). Holt: the Country Kitchen (vast quantities of farm-style dishes served at what often turns out to be a community table). Marshall: Win Schuler's.

Minnesota — Minneapolis: Charlie's; Murray's.

Missouri — Kansas City: Brent-on's; St. Louis: Rugori's; Schlesthorst's.

New York — Buffalo; Chateau; Suburban Inn (Williamsville). New York City: Lindy's; House of Chan (best Chinese food on the continent); Cafe de la Prix, St. Moritz Hotel; Le Pavillon; Chambord; 21 Club; Steak d'Oliver; Oliver's the Castle. Syracuse: Luigi's (possibly the best Italian food to be found). Casa Lorenzo; Martin's; Tubbert's.

Ohio — Cincinnati: Caproni's.

Pennsylvania — Philadelphia: Bookbinder's.

Texas — Dallas: Vick's. Houston: Maxim's. Beaumont: Beaumont Hotel.

Virginia — Richmond: the Richmond Auto Court Dining Room.

Montreal: La Tour Eiffel (unsurpassed gourmet dinner every Thursday!); Ruby Foo's; Cafe de la Paix, Hotel de la Salle. Toronto — Larry's (one chef, one waiter, no menu, but Canada's most dazzling array of appetizers and side dishes with dinner).

For those who are interested, the best sandwiches are at the Gaiety Delicatessen on New York's Times Square, and the best hot dogs in town's on Coney Island.

And while we're at it, a bow to a gentleman named Howard Johnson (that's his name, too) who has scattered restaurants throughout the United States which, if they do not often offer distinguished food, frequently serve by far the best in many areas. Rarely is such consistency achieved in so large a group.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE'S "TOO OLD!" SHE DOESN'T WEIGH 70 lbs.

Many a wife, as she reaches middle age, goes through the experience of wondering if her husband will be interest in her because she's no longer as young as she used to be.

Some wives have their worst fears realized by seeing their husbands turn from them to a young woman in an attempt to recapture the romantic thrills of their own youth. Other women, whose husbands are more mature, find that youthful romantic thrills are no longer missed because of the devoted companionship between their husband and themselves that has deepened and grown richer through the years.

One of the less fortunate wives writes me that she is being replaced in her husband's affections, after a marriage of 21 years, because, as he put it, she's "too old." Needless to say, her replacement is a much younger woman. The couple has one son and one daughter, both under 20, and both busy with their own interests, so that most of the time the wife and mother sits home with only the figures on the television screen for company.

Desperate in her loneliness, she wants to know if there's any way she can triumph over her rival and defeat from which she suffers as a result of her childish and irresponsible husband's neglect.

"How is it possible," she asks, "for a woman of my age to compete with a young woman of 23?"

What I would suggest is that she stop worrying about how she can compete with her husband's new interest and concentrate instead on filling her own life with new adventure.

The idea I have in mind has three steps.

The first is that she take an inventory of herself and find out if she could have been letting herself go in regard to her looks. Even if she hasn't, it may be that she might bring her hairdo up to date, get some smarter clothes and, in general, pep up her appearance so that she seems more alive and interesting.

Then, second, after she has finished the smartening-up business, she might consider getting herself a job. Since her children are past the age when she needs to be home most of the time on their account, and since they are old enough to be absorbed in their own activities, there would seem to be no reason why she can't do this.

It would give her a brand-new interest in life and also bring her in some money of her own.

In case she doubts that a 44-year-old woman could get a job, let me assure her that, even if it may take a little more research than if she were 20, for instance, there are far more opportunities today for mature women than there ever have been before. There are, moreover, people who can help her evaluate her skills and abilities and advise her on where they would be salable.

Third, I suggest that she join a club or two where she'll make new friends and find new opportunities for relaxation and diversion.

Above all, I advise her to try being as indifferent to her husband's conduct as she possibly can. Let her see to it that she's so busy having good times on her own that she gives him no chance even to find her sitting home alone. Let her be pleasant to him, and refrain from quarreling with him, but never let her resort to pleading, weeping or begging for companionship. Better to be just a little aloof for awhile.

If she's clever enough to follow out this program, she might find herself turning into such a youthfully alive and companionable person that, so far from losing her companionship, better to be just a little aloof for awhile.

If she's clever enough to follow out this program, she might find herself turning into such a youthfully alive and companionable person that, so far from losing her companionship, better to be just a little aloof for awhile.

YOU'RE TAKING A MASCULINE FOIBLE TOO SERIOUSLY

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm a young woman of 22 and very deeply in love with a young man of 26.

He's asked me to marry him and I want to do so, but, while he is a very kind, considerate and understanding person, he has one fault that greatly troubles me. This is that, every time we're together, he seems to notice every woman we pass and speak admiringly of the pretty ones.

I've never made an issue of this, but it does hurt and humiliate me, and I'm wondering if it might break off with him, as I'm afraid it might, if this might make trouble for us if we married.

—Miss H.M.

Dear Miss H.M.:

Don't you think you may be making a mountain out of a molehill?

Most men enjoy looking at other women and commenting on the pretty ones, even though they may be sincerely devoted to one particular young woman. It's just one of those habits common to males, and a sensible woman simply laughs it off, maybe teases her man about it a little on occasions, and doesn't let it disturb her.

Of course if this young man's

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

HOW TO KEEP LITTLE GIRLS COOL AND COMFORTABLE

A little girl's skin should be as carefully protected from the sun as her Mother's.

Big girls have more than their share of summertime beauty problems. Hair must be kept in condition; skin, ditto. Coiffures must be kept from wilting and, with the thermometer on a constant rise, there are so many extra grooming chores — extra showers if one would keep daintily fresh 'round the clock, extra laundering of clothes and to keep them spic and span. And, of course, there must always be consideration of diet and exercise — both of which should be on the lighter side when the temperature rises.

There's the matter of exposure to the elements, too. Big girls must be ever on the alert against sunburn, windburn and the effects of salt water if they're beach addicts. Well, little girls face these same problems, too. The only difference being that, bless their little hearts, they don't know it. So it's up to us to take care of them. Here then, a few Summer beauty tips for all the pretty Mamas who want their little daughters to grow up pretty, too.

Remember that when they go to the beach, youngsters need protection from the sun just as grown-ups do. When Mom slathers herself with sun lotion, she should see that the kids are well oiled. For Mom, a lotion that offers lasting protection is the best — especially if it's the kind that doesn't need to be re-applied after each dip in the water.

Little girls' bathing suits should also be considered. Give yours a cool coiffure. If hair's curly, have it cut short for the summer. If it's straight, let it stay long, but do it up in pigtails or a pony tail.

As far as cleanliness is concerned, it's apt to be more of a problem in summer when kids can scamper about, make mudpies and other such projects. From a health standpoint, frequent tubbings are recommended (either after Sabbath day or Sunday); the hours most convenient for the treatment they wish to serve; the list of guests to be invited. Occasionally a group of ladies gives a bereavement tea, usually a "surprise," and although this is not incorrect, it is, in my judgment, not as satisfactory as the heartwarming housewarming given by the new householders themselves.

2. Any afternoon hours you consider the most convenient for the majority of the guests are right to choose.

UNUSUAL PROBLEMS CONCERNING HER WEDDING PLANS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married soon, and would like your help on a question very important to me. Since I was ten years old I have been living with my mother and stepfather. My real father lives in another province, and I haven't seen him since I was ten years old. My stepfather is more of a father to me than my real one. I would so much like to have my stepfather give me in marriage. Would this be proper?

2. In the newspaper announcements, do I have to use the word "stepfather"? I would prefer not to, I use my real father's name, as, because of my age at the time of my mother's marriage to my stepfather, I have not been adopted by my stepfather.

3. Would it be proper to have my wedding in the city where my fiance lives? My family has just recently moved from that city, and all our friends are there.

— J.D.D.

1. I judge that, since you have not even seen your father for so many years, he will not be present at your wedding. And on all the circumstances, it would be entirely proper for you to have your stepfather give you in marriage. Or you might like to consider having your stepfather escort you up the aisle, and then have your mother give you in marriage.

2. Do you mean the announcement of your engagement? If so, in your circumstances, the announcement may be made in your mother's name only: "Mrs. Paul Smith, (or Address) announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Janet Dorothy Browne," etc.

3. This would be a most exceptional procedure, but if you and your family decide that this plan would give most convenience to the majority of those most concerned with the wedding I am quite sure that the reason for the locality-change would be understood and accepted.

THANK-YOU NOTE FOR SHOWER GIFT OF MONEY.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a bride-to-be and recently, when I had a shower given for me, I received many cards which contained money. Please tell me how to write a note thanking these people for the money they gave me, as I can't see that I'll get this money toward buying things for a new home, for I'll be living with my in-laws. — T.H.

Your thank-you note for these shower-gifts of money might be worded something like this:

Dear Marie:

Very how kind you were to give me such a thoughtful gift at the shower. It was most generous of you, and I am most appreciative. As you know, Bill and I will be living with his family for some time. We are starting a special fund toward furnishing our future home. When that happy time arrives, Bill and I will buy something lovely for our home as your gift to us, and you must promise to come at once to see it.

With love from us both, and deepest thanks.

Affectionately,
Therese

NEW HOUSEHOLDERS ASK ABOUT A HOUSEWARMING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. So many people have told me of the many different ways of giving a housewarming that I am all mixed up. First please tell me if it is proper for me to give the housewarming when we move into our new home? Or do friends do one for us? I have always been under the impression that the housewarming serve the refreshments. Is this correct? Also is there any definite rule about how much time should elapse after the home-owners move in and the housewarming is given?

2. If we are supposed to give the housewarming, we would like to have it from 3-to-5 or 3-to-5. Are these hours all right? — J.B.

1. There are many ways to give a housewarming . . . and here are some of the ways you have been given so many suggestions! The customary plan is for the new householders to give their own housewarming, choosing whatever date they consider most convenient after they are "settled" in their new home and the house in order to show it's closest(!). This is usually considered the friendliest way because then the hosts can decide for themselves the most convenient date; and it is usually after Sabbath (Saturday or Sunday); the hours most convenient for entertaining they wish to serve; the list of guests to be invited. Occasionally a group of ladies gives a bereavement tea, usually a "surprise," and although this is not incorrect, it is, in my judgment, not as satisfactory as the heartwarming housewarming given by the new householders themselves.

2. Any afternoon hours you consider the most convenient for the majority of the guests are right to choose.

UNUSUAL PROBLEMS CONCERNING HER WEDDING PLANS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married soon, and would like your help on a question very important to me. Since I was ten years old I have been living with my mother and stepfather. My real father lives in another province, and I haven't seen him since I was ten years old. My stepfather is more of a father to me than my real one. I would so much like to have my stepfather give me in marriage. Would this be proper?

2. In the newspaper announcements, do I have to use the word "stepfather"? I would prefer not to, I use my real father's name, as, because of my age at the time of my mother's marriage to my stepfather, I have not been adopted by my stepfather.

3. Would it be proper to have my wedding in the city where my fiance lives? My family has just recently moved from that city, and all our friends are there.

— J.D.D.

1. I judge that, since you have not even seen your father for so many years, he will not be present at your wedding. And on all the circumstances, it would be entirely proper for you to have your stepfather give you in marriage. Or you might like to consider having your stepfather escort you up the aisle, and then have your mother give you in marriage.

2. Do you mean the announcement of your engagement? If so, in your circumstances, the announcement may be made in your mother's name only: "Mrs. Paul Smith, (or Address) announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Janet Dorothy Browne," etc.

3. This would be a most exceptional procedure, but if you and your family decide that this plan would give most convenience to the majority of those most concerned with the wedding I am quite sure that the reason for the locality-change would be understood and accepted.

DAINTY DRESS

BY GRACE THORNCLIFF

Blue organza is the flimsy fabric used for a delightful dress idea for a pretty young lady. The design combines neatly the tailored touch and the dressmaker look. The straight neckline is charming on the tucked bodice and the skirt is gathered centre front. A wide sash of blue and green plaid silk taffeta is attached at the underarm seams, draping to a bow with streamer ends at one side.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Question: This is a little ahead of the season.... I would like a recipe for home canned tomato soup.....something similar to the commercially canned..... so it may be substituted in recipes calling for "a can of tomato soup". Our youngest child is mildly coeliac and in working with his diet I've solved a couple of minor problems that I feel might be useful to other mothers with the same problem..... I pass them on to you to see if sufficient interest.....at one time the doctor recommended oatmeal bread.....I finally developed the following recipe which agreed with John and proved to be satisfactory as a general purpose family loaf.

OATMEAL BREAD

(Courtesy Leslie G.) Dissolve 1 teaspoon sugar in 1-2 cup lukewarm water. Add 1 package of granular yeast and let stand. In a large bowl mix 2 1-2 cups scalding water, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 cup honey, 1-4 cup shortening, 1 cup skim milk powder. When the above has cooled sufficiently (110 deg. approx.) add yeast mixture and 2 eggs well beaten egg. Then add 4 cups whole wheat flour and oats and about 4 1-2 cups flour. I knead most of the flour in and stop as soon as the dough is manageable, stiff. Let dough rise to double in size. Punch down, knead and roll out in greased loaf pans: let stand to rise and bake as per standard loaf (350 deg. F. for about 45 minutes).

Another item recommended by the doctor was junket. John, of course, is on skim milk and I've been looking for some very very soft junket—far too soft for a child to handle—and I solved this by making double strength skim milk using skim milk powder. Use 1 cup powder of milk called for I use 3-4 to double the powder (depending on the brand) and 2 cups water, and follow the directions in the package as for junket. Using dairy skim milk add 3-8 to 1-2 cup skim milk powder to 2 cups dairy skim milk. This is the double strength skim milk also helps to get extra milk into a poor milk drinker.....You'd be surprised what percentage of your recipes go into my favorite recipe file! I love to try new things and clip your column as an average of 2 or 3 times a week. Leslie G.

Corned Beef and New Cabbage (home cooked brined corned beef), Hot Herb Rolls with Unsalted Butter, Fresh Fruit Cup, Swea's Round Cake (eg Thursday), Coffee.

Answer: These discoveries of yours, Leslie, will be a godsend to other mothers with children with celiac disease. The oatmeal bread is a peach of a recipe for all of us. Thanks.

Increase or decrease the amount of sugar in the following recipe for canned tomato soup according to your own personal taste. Use skim milk powder to this mixture at the time the sifted crumbs are added. Don't be tempted to add it in advance of that or it might scorch. Gravy mix is burn. Try 1 cup for an experiment.

CANNED TOMATO SOUP

One peck of tomatoes (8 quarts), 4 medium onions sliced, 12 sprigs parsley, 2 bay leaves, 1 teaspoon peppercorns, 1 teaspoon celery seed, 4 cloves, 2 tablespoons salt, 1-2 cup sugar, sifted cracker crumbs are optional but make a condensed soup more comparable to commercial brands. Wash, dry and quarter tomatoes. Tie spices loosely in muslin bag. Heat all ingredients (but crumbs if used) and Simmer for 1-2 hour. Strain carefully. Reheat, bring to boiling point. If crumbs are used add 1 cup now and boil up again. Pour into sterilized jars to overflowing and seal at once. Adjust to desired strength with milk or water when preparing to serve. This may also be slightly diluted to make a sauce on meat, fish or vegetables.

Days and Customs of All Faiths

Feast of the Precious Blood

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Monday, July 1—To the Jews all life — the soul itself — was located in the blood, so it was but sophisticated Greeks it was located in the breath. It is with reason blood was always sacred to the Jews. Animals that were killed for food were killed in such a way those who ate them should be spared the horror of eating the very principle of life.

It was perfectly natural that this feeling should be so transferred over into Christianity, for the first Christians were Jews to whom the heartwarming traditions of their race were dear.

Today, Roman Catholics alike speak habitually of "the Blood of the Lamb" as the chief instrument of the Body and Blood of Christ. The blood of Jesus, Christian theology held, was shed for the redemption of all mankind.

Today's feast is a special one set aside by the Roman Catholic Church and State, and mechanically also separation has in most places been achieved.

But it isn't so easy to achieve it in Christians inherit a long, long background of tradition that is bound to color their unconscious attitude about so vital a matter. Behind every approach to Christianity is the Jewish faith that God is the head of the nation. In the more recent thought-patterns are the Massachusetts Puritan theology of the Lord Jesus Christ, Church of England, or the Holy Roman Empire.

Western man cannot, in spite of himself, escape the feeling that God sets the country. Americans without ever analyzing it, want their nation "under God."

Even the Episcopalian Prayer Book of Independence has provided most Episcopal churches, and many Episcopal churches, with a service today. When the Revolutionary War ended and American Anglicans became free of the Church of England, their first new Prayer Book contained a service of "thanksgiving for the inestimable blessings of religious and civil liberty."

The trouble was that many of the British-born brethren had never approved of the Revolution itself and could by no means be counted on to consider this new liberty a boon. The service was therefore dropped, in order to preserve some measure of harmony in the Church. It was not until 1928 that the present service was finally included. Certainly by that time it was safe from Tory resistance.

Although Church and State are comfortably separated in Canada, Canadian Anglicans, too, have in their Prayer Book, a number of important national days. It is called "The Form of Prayer with Thanksgiving to be used on the Dominion Day and Other Occasions of National Thanksliving."

WHAT IS MANNA?

"Ye cannot serve God and mammon," said the Lord (according to Matthew, Chapter 6, verse 24, and Luke, chapter 16, verse 13), making it sound as if "mammon" were the name of some pagan god, or at least the personification of some evil principle.

And so the poets and other writers have frequently taken this passage. Milton wrote of Mammon as one of the fallen angels that "leads his host" of evil spirits against Heaven. Others have treated "him" as the god of this world, the devil of evil, money as the symbol of the evils of greed and interference.

To be completely literal about it, mammon, or ma'amon, is nothing more or less than the Aramaic word for "something entrusted to safe keeping" — like your bank account or your investments. What Jesus was really saying was that you cannot serve God and the things you have in your safe-deposit box. There always comes a time when you have to make a choice.

Women's Institute

ROSLIN W.I.

ROSLIN — The June meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. K. Sharpe with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. D. Chisholm, presided.

A letter regarding canvassing for the blind was read. A canvass will be held later in the year.

The Institute holiday will be held at the O.A.C. Guelph, from July 29-30, and a picnic supper dinner will be held on July 3rd with proceeds for the local cemeteries.

A display will also be placed at Belleville Fair again this year.

The leader, Mrs. F. Gray, conducted the program which was opened with the Institute Code.

The topic, "The Soil and the Soul," was given by Mrs. H. Sills. She said in part: "The soil is God's greatest gift to man, and that man is dependent on the soil for life and sustenance and if cut off from it would die the same as a plant would when cut off. The soil is God's, not man's, and should be used and passed on to the succeeding generations. We should be good stewards."

Mrs. F. Meeks gave a humorous reading, "Down the Hens Begin to Lay"; Mrs. N. White, a reading, "The Farmer, a Man of Many Skills."

Mrs. F. Gray gave a paper on the topic, "Our Partner in God's Partner." She spoke of the many aspects of growth, it is in other hands, adding that life is no accident, it is a loo well-ordered for that of God's promise, "While the earth remaineth, summer and winter, seedtime and harvest shall not cease".

Mrs. F. Gray read a poem, "Life."

The leader conducted a contest. A report of the district annual held at Melrose recently was given.

The president closed the meeting and a social time was spent.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

The Experts Say

Semi-detached Houses Offer Better Living for Youngsters

TORONTO (CP) — Semi-detached houses are becoming more numerous in nearby communities, says Harry B. Toews, a Toronto builder.

Built for suburban living, two-house units are being constructed on lots having a minimum frontage of 60 feet. The houses have three bedrooms, dining room, living room, kitchen and bath. One of the selling points, said Mr. Toews, is that they are air-conditioned.

"They also have a greater appeal today for young married people as the down payment is only $1,500 with a controlled price of $10,500," said Mr. Toews.

The units — Mr. Toews calls them "duets"—have an average land coverage of 6,000 square feet compared to 5,000 square feet in a detached home. Each house has a living space of 1,020 square feet which is actually larger than the average bungalow being built now.

Today, duet builders are branching out from Toronto's suburbs to developments in the heart of the city.

"The new houses offer what young married couples want—wide open spaces for their young children and the satisfaction," Mr. Toews said.

While duets are meeting the need for moderately - priced housing, a recent survey, conducted by mortgage specialists, shows that most Canadian women prefer a split-level contemporary house.

They want basements, low-level ceilings, back exits instead of side doors, fireplaces, laundry room and extra toilet facilities. More than 85 per cent ask for garages and carports.

Trends too show demands for larger kitchens. Mother is finding out that a kitchen with room to space is a "must" with a growing family.

Family life is on the upswing authorities say. With young couples having babies faster than ever before an extra bedroom is considered a necessity.

"There's a revolution going on," says Mr. Toews. "Five years ago people just wanted a house — they didn't matter where—just a roof over their heads.

"Now, they specify a certain district with the 'right' neighbors, but development that provide all the services which includes paved roads, sidewalks, sewers and schools."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

MORE THAN HE CAN CHEW!

Manager Wren Blair of the Allan Cup champions, Whitby Dunlops, is rapidly convincing a lot of people, especially those in his own Eastern Ontario Senior "A" League that he is developing a short memory.

At an eastern league meeting held in Kingston a short time ago, Blair definitely informed the loop representatives and the press that he would play out the Eastern schedule but would not participate in the league playoffs.

He also stated that he did not intend to work the team that will represent Canada in the world hockey tournament next February "to death prior to going overseas." He wanted them in tip-top condition, "but not tired."

Now he has done a complete about-face.

A short time after making the above announcement he stated in the Ottawa Gazette that the Dunnies would meet the United tSates world tourney entry in a four-game home-and-home series, two of the games to be play in "Canada, either in Peterborough or Kingston."

His recent effort is for a home-and-home series with the three clubs that represent the western senior "A" division, Windsor, Kitchener and Chatham.

This announcement has definitely not met with the approval of managers of other clubs in the Eastern circuit. Some think it smacks of an effort to deceive the fading western group at the expense of eastern clubs and fandom. Cornwall's Ray Miron said: "I don't think Whitby should hurt us to help themselves. Nor do I think the club should try to keep the Western group going at our expense."

Miron added: "If Blair is seeking extra games he should have told us at our last meeting. He should play a full schedule in our league."

Another apparent effort to keep the wobbly Western group on its legs is seen in the statement of Reg Walton, Kingston CKLC manager. Said Walton: "OHA President Lorne Cook phoned me to get our opinion of our entire league playing a home-and-home series against the three teams. I told Kingston would favor such a proposal."

Then Walton added: "I will have to discuss the matter with Cook before making up my mind but I don't think Blair should compete in that league when he is not going to complete his own schedule in our circuit."

As matters stand now Kingston, Belleville, Cornwall, Pembroke, Whitby and possibly Ottawa comprise the Eastern loop. Last year in its inaugural senior "A" operation, the Eastern loop did exceedingly well. Transportation was a big problem but supporters ran fan support in most of the centres offset the heavy expense.

The Western division through its own suicidal fault finds itself in an extremely bad position with only three clubs on the roster. So does the NOHA. Now, either through its own efforts or those of the OHA, it wants to bolster box office by playing an interlocking schedule, as it were, with the Eastern group.

Five teams, in this department's opinion, constitutes a neat, compact loop. It worked fine last year, with a neat, compact home-and-home series. Let it remain that way. There is nothing to be gained financially from an eastern viewpoint by playing the western clubs. They are the only teams which will benefit, if any. It's a mighty long haul from Pembroke to Windsor and return.

Meanwhile, Blair, who apparently wants to flaunt his Allan Cuppers before all and sundry before going overseas should pause before he makes too many rash promises. Something besides the Eastern League and its fandom who solidly supported his Dunlops. They should have the first call.

With all five clubs in the eastern circuit strengthening to a large degree, Blair will find he will have all the opposition he needs prior to going overseas in his own league. Belleville, Kingston and Cornwall, at least, will have at least six new topflight senior "A" players on their roster, while Pembroke likely will strengthen accordingly. Blair's Dunlops might get the surprise of their lives before they have completed what he considers his duty to his own loop in an abbreviated schedule.

In tying the league record for four shutouts set by Cleveland in 1903 and by the 1935 Yankees and 1948 Indians the Orioles have strung together 41 shutout innings.

A pop fly single by Dick Donovan started in the tie-breaking run for the White Sox. Minnie Minoso his eighth but needed relief from Millard Howell. He came on in the ninth inning rain to protect the league's leading RBI hitter in a pop-up to Bob Nieman out with the bags loaded.

Says Scheme Is Impractical

TRAFALGAR, Ont. (CP)—Town planner P. A. Deacon says a plan for a giant industrial area along the border between Toronto and Niagara Falls is "impractical and not capable of implementation."

E. G. Faludi of Toronto, planning consultant to Trafalgar Township, outlined the plan Thursday at an Ontario municipal board hearing of an application by the township to rezone 900 acres of farm land near Lake Ontario, as a result of industrialization. But he recommended the rezoning for industry should be done northeast of the proposed refineries site, in a large farm area.

MR. FARMER!

Do You Own a Herd of Grade Cattle?

If you do, are you one of those persons who thought that the artificial breeding program which the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association offers is not for your herd but for Purebred herds?

Then look at these facts — 70% of the 34,000 cattle bred by this Association in 1956 were grade cattle. With rising costs of operation on the farm, it is even more important to have the best quality of cattle possible, grades or purebreds. You'll find it will be to your advantage to join the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association.

LONDON (CP)—A new athletic struggle between East and West will highlight this year's royal regatta opening July 3 on the famous Twilight course at Henley-on-Thames.

Back in strength this year after a one-year absence is a 24-man Russian contingent. Red oarsmen will compete in five events. Arbitrayed against them are crews from Australia, Britain, France, Holland, Italy, Sweden and the United States.

Canada, which knocked the Russians out of the Grand Challenge event when they last put in an appearance in 1955, is not represented this year.

Main interest centres in the Grand Challenge Cup for eight-oared shells, in which Russia will be represented by the Krasnoe Znamia club. Russia started the rowing world when she won this event in 1954, and the Kfylia Sovietov crew that pulled the trick is counted one of the finest ever to pull oars on the Thames.

In 1953 Canada's famous University of British Columbia eight eliminated the Russians in a race still regarded as a Henley "classic," but in the final the Canadians were beaten by half a length by the University of Pennsylvania.

Other entries for the Grand Challenge include the defending champion French Army crew—Centre Sportif de l'Armee Francaise—and last year's runners-up, the Three Crowns Club from Sweden. Others include Britain's Cambridge University and Leander Club crews, the Njord Studenta from Holland and two United States universities — Cornell and Yale.

The Henley regatta which dates back to 1839 is one of the great events of the English "season" and by tradition is as much a social as a sporting event. Along the banks gaily-crowded grandstands are ready for the thousands of visitors who come to watch the rowing and admire the color of the blazers and caps of the men, and the gay dresses and bright sunshades of the women.

The "straight course," first used in 1924 after much of a mid-river island had been removed to make way for it, is described as being one mile, 550 yards." The distance from start to finish is, in fact, exactly one mile, 370 yards, for boats start with their sterns on the start line and finish when the bows hit the line at the opposite end of the course. And with racing shells averaging about 60 feet in length, the actual distance rowed is that officially listed.

For the regatta organizers, the most serious problem is the rising cost of staging the annual event. A century ago most of the expenses were paid by local businessmen who benefited by the boom in trade. In 1841, they laid out £131. This year, the cost is expected to be about £25,000, but Henley-on - Thames businessmen will pay only a fraction of this cost, a good part of which is recovered in admission fees to the exclusive Stewards' Enclosure.

An estimated 10,000 persons at the first regatta, medals and cups for the winners cost £66 — the latter collection is worth more than £2,500.

WINS SENIOR TITLE

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — Veteran Al Watrous brought the unofficial world senior gold title back to the United States Friday with a spanking 8 and 6 victory over Britain's John Burton in 36-hole match on Glasgow's rain-soaked Pollok course.

Hurricane Blows His Topper Flounces Out After Signing

NEW YORK, June 28 (UP).—Challenger Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson almost disrupted the heavyweight title fight signing ceremony today when he flounced out of the room and refused a second handshake with champion Floyd Patterson, whom he fights at the Polo Grounds July 23.

The two boxers, who had been matched on May 16 for their title fight, signed official New York State Athletic Commission contracts today and each deposited a $5,000 forfeit cheque guaranteeing his appearance. Emil Lenice, the independent promoter staging his first big outdoor fight, also deposited a $5,000 forfeit cheque with the commission.

The ceremony which was staged at headquarters of the commission before a crowd of reporters and photographers, was moving along smoothly until Jackson leaped to his feet and stalked out of the meeting room.

The Hurricane, wearing a narrow scarlet "beauty" around his head in Apache style that just reluctantly shaken hands with Patterson for the benefit of the battery of photographers when one of the lensmen asked him to repeat the performance.

Tommy angrily struck the table with his right hand, said "No more handshaking", leaned to his feet and hurried out of the room.

The photographers replied for him to come back. His mother, Gertrude, finally prevailed upon him to return, with the proviso there would be no more handclasping with Patterson.

Promoter Lenice, who had estimated the host would attract a gate of $560,000 when the match was made, said today:

"The tickets are moving so fast that the gate will go way past that."

Promoter Jim Norris finally matched middleweight champion Ray Robinson for a defence of his 168-pound crown against Carmen Basilio, the welterweight (147-pound) ruler for September. He rates it a million dollar fight. Basilio of Chittenango, N.Y., is favored at 7-5.

He said it would be staged at the Polo Grounds, Sept. 16 or 17, or at Yankee Stadium, Sept. 23 or 24. The site and date will be agreed upon later.

Alice Bauer Fires Par 73; Marlene "In"

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP)—Alice Bauer overcame her jitters at Winged Foot Friday as she shook off all but one of her pursuers, Betsy Rawls, in the women's U.S. National Open golf championship.

With a 36 - hole score of 72-73—145, one under par, Alice held a three-stroke lead over her nearest rival in the big field and was eight strokes ahead of sister Marlene Bauer Hagge, who had been tied with her for the lead after the first round.

Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto matched her score of Thursday, hitting another 79 for a 158 total. She placed 20th and qualified for the final 36 holes today.

Marlene Bauer Hagge wound up with an 81 for a 153 total and was tied with three others for third place in the final standings.

Miss Bauer's 38-35—73 Friday was the only score that matched par for the 6,246-yard, par 37-36—73 course. Miss Rawls had a big chance to beat that and possibly take the lead, but her putting touch wavered on the finishing holes, where the greens had been roughened by the spikes of other contestants. She couldn't do better than 36-38—74 for a 146 total.

Thus the tournament was reduced virtually to a two-girl competition as the field was cut to the 40 low scorers and ties for the final 36 holes.

Third place went to towhead Betty Jameson, a 38-year-old pro from San Antonio, Tex., who was runner-up to Miss Bauer in the national open championship in 1939 and 1940. She carded scores of 75-76—151 to total 153.

Scores of 168 or better—an unusually high cut off point — qualified for both the Friday and Saturday rounds which is expected to provide a severe test of stamina for Miss Bauer.

Prussian Wins Over Farmer With Sammy Getting Assist

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Fritz Von Erich and Sammy Von Gorter won themselves a wrestling title last night.

Sammy who was named the judge to sit on this case and participated mayhem, also took over jury job and ended up as attorney for the defence.

Sammy, the semaphore solicitor, either unwittingly, or unwittingly came to the defence of the arch villain Erich.

He was delivering a hamlet soliloquy to one Farmer Boy, who wasn't listening, when it happened.

Von Erich, the gushin' Prussian, who owns more added shillity to disassemble the anatomy of any given foeman when on the deliverance end, had been in a bad way in the third fall.

In fact he was on the verge of admitting the nasalic "Auf Wiedersehen" when justice Gotter intervened.

Sammy was in the midst of lesson No. 3 of the Post-Graduate Course participated in by Pachyderms, to wit, "Fair Play for Displaced Persons", when Von Erich reverted to type.

While Sammy was moaning at the bar he crept up behind Farmer Boy and unleashed a savage attack without artillery warning.

The upholstered thrush from No'th Cahlina was taken by surprise. He wilted under the ferocity of the Prussian onslaught and before Sammy could refer to Lesson Number Six, the Farmer Boy was flatter than this report's wallet on Thursday.

Von Erich called on all his bag of mayhemic tricks in an early effort to subdue the Farmer. He clamped on a head - lock — pulled, choked and kicked the cotton picker finally knee-dropping him for the count in the first fall.

Trilling "Ole Man River" Farmer Boy slung the Prussian back against the ropes in a tilly for the second heat. He bounced the Baverian screw-ed of the body in a series of arm-whips that had the crowd in a delirious fizzy. When Erich finally got the asking um out of his throat he was a groggy Prussian looking upwards and onwards while the referee trotted to the dressing hayloft, the victor.

Then came the third and Sammy's dramatic undoing address that spelled defeat for the visiting Farmer.

Vincent Lopez, former world champion and a veteran of the dark ages of rassin' was disqualified in his preliminary with Patso Flanagan. Lopez not only disqualified participated in Pachyderms, to wit, "Fair Play for Displaced Persons", when Von Erich reverted to type.

Canada's Soccer Chances Slim Says U.S. Expert

TORONTO (CP)—A top United States soccer referee and manager says Canada's chances against Mexico in World Cup competition are slim.

Johnny Best of Los Angeles, here studying Canadian soccer methods, said the Canadians play a much more methodical and faster game than that seen in the U.S.

But in Mexico, he said, "not only will the Canadians be facing a team of dyed-in-the-wool professionals but they will have to contend with 80,000 or more rabid Mexican fans."

Canada, competing in World Cup play this year for the first time defeated the U.S. in its first game and now meets Mexico City starting Sunday.

Three Open Records Broken At Canadian Track Meet

ST. LAMBERT, QUE.—Three Canadian open records were broken and a host of provincial records bettered in the rain-soaked opening half of the Canadian track and field championships.

Off to an accompaniment of crackling lightning and booming thunder, the first part of the two-day meet ended in darkness settling in and rain coming alternately in sprinkles and downpours.

Under the conditions, the track and field at Lesperance Park in this Montreal suburb held up remarkably well and officials and athletes doggedly went ahead to the bitter end.

At three Canadian open records came in the juvenile and midget confiscations and two Saskatoon boys accounted for two of the marks.

Dale West, 15-year-old broad-jumper, won that event in the midget class with a leap of 19 feet, eight inches — the best he has ever done in competition. He bettered the old Canadian open mark by one-half inch. The old provincial open and Canadian native marks of 19 feet 7½ inches, were also broken.

Eugene Wedel of Saskatoon took the juvenile high jump, his winning height of five feet, 11½ inches bettering the Canadian open and native mark of five feet, 10½ inches and also the provincial open record of five feet, nine inches.

Carol Myers, husky all-round competitor for the Toronto East York Club, broke the Canadian open record in the girls juvenile class in the javelin throw. Her best distance was 110 feet, four inches — exactly one inch better than the former mark. The Canadian native and provincial open marks also fell.

Stan Levenson of Toronto East York, member of Canada's last Olympic team, won the junior men's 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat. He bettered the provincial open mark by one-tenth second.

Flat Nymphs and Spent Spinners

Many years ago, 1931 to be exact, three of us were sitting in the living room of the late Edward Singwood Hewitt's camp on the Nevercink River of New Jersey State. We, as you can well imagine, was of fish and fishing notably nymphs. Ed Hewitt produced a fly box holding about 50 patterns of artificial nymphs.

"See those?" he said. "None of them any good. Tried every one of 'em but they don't take fish the way they should. Trouble is, they're all round. A live nymph is flat. And how are you going to tie a flat nymph?"

We talked about it for a while and then came the big idea. At the fly-tying table I tied up three nymphs, using brownish-tan fur. Medium ginger hackles formed the legs and tails. Of course, the ribbing, having been wound around the shank of a number twelve hook.

Each of these little nymphs was saturated in clear lacquer and allowed partially to dry. Then, using mild pressure with small pliers, the bodies were flattened. The backs were colored dark brown, leaving the undersides the original brownish-tan.

I gave one to Ed, one to Dick Hunt and kept one for myself. The next day, under a bright August sun, all three of us did great execution among the brownish trout with these new lures.

Since then, as you know, nymphs have become standard items of equipment in almost every angler's kit. In the years that followed, you can find nymphs of every sort and description. Most of them have no relation or resemblance to anything that live or out of the water. And flat-bodied artificial nymphs still are practically non-existent.

THE GUN NYMPHS.

Naturally the question arises, how does a fellow go about obtaining flat-bodied nymphs? The answer is to tie them yourself or have them tied for you by a competent fly tyer.

Most of the nymphs that cast loose from the stream bottom and rise to the surface have a broad face are from the May-fly group. Thus, they can be simulated or suggested by one standard pattern in three shades — tan underside with brownish-tan back, light brown underside with dark brown back and gray underside with black back.

These will match the great majority of the hatches you encounter during the season.

At many times you will see the trout feeding merrily at the surface. You can't see what they are taking so you slow them some dry flies which are ignored completely. Then, when a flat-bodied well-tied nymph will bring home the bacon.

A great many of the May-fly group of stream insects go through three stages in the progression from nymph to adult fly — the nymphal stage, the sub-imago or intermediate stage, and the imago or adult stage. The final stage is usually known as the "spinner".

Unfortunately, the nymphal form of these little spinners lasts only a short time and is confined to the general area of the fast-water riffles. Exhausted at last, their mission in life completed, they fall to the surface of the water where they drift awash with their wings extend ed.

On a June or July evening the trout will gorge themselves on these little "spent spinners", and they're as choosy as they will ignore your choicest offerings of dry flies. Nothing for it but to match the hatch and give them what they want. And there is the real problem.

Countless evenings have been spent standing waist-deep in cold trout water, trying to discover the type and color of spent fly that is drifting. So one hand some good spent artificials in varying shades.

Most of the spinners are in size 12 to 14. The colors run from dark red to pale cream or white. Wings are light dun, either heavy cellophane or, better still, white or light cream hackle tips. Remember that these flies should be fished awash, so the absolute minimum of hackle should be used.

One evening two years ago the trout were busy with spent spinners, so instead of walking out into the school to see what they were taking, the trial-and-error method was used. Beginning with dark red, the entire list of colors was tried. Nothing doing.

This brought us to the last one which was pure white. We cast this white affair to 17 trout and hooked all 17. All but two of these, larger than the average, were released to the water. The eighteenth trout, too large to have his run checked with a 3X point, took the leader around a rock and that was that. Fishing came to an abrupt close with the loss of that fly.

Don't try to find good spent spinners in the majority of the sporting goods stores. Like good artificial nymphs, they simply are not there. So learn to tie yourself or have them tied by a good fly tyer. Once you have them with you, many an unproductive evening can be converted to an evening of fine fishing.

Three Canadians—Al Balding of Toronto, Stan Leonard of Lachute, Que., and Rudy Horvath of Windsor, Ont.—were among the low 50 golfers who qualified for today's final 36 holes.

Balding had 35-36—71 Friday for a total of 143. Leonard matched Balding's score for a two-day total of 139. Horvath shot 35-35—70 for a total of 143.

First-round leader Dow Finsterwald was one over par Friday and was tied with four others—Bob Hill of Rochester, N.Y., Ken Venturi of San Francisco, Marty Furgol of Lamont, Ill., and Bob Duden of Portland, Ore.—each one stroke off the pace with 137.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

Monday, July 1, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — This day's influences are not entirely auspicious for business or personal interests. However, your practical and economic sense should help greatly in solving problems which may arise. Be amenable.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — You may have to use all your "know-how" and profit by past experience to get ahead today. Don't rely on that "everything will be okay" theory. Be smart, cautious; work for your goals.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Influences somewhat negative. It should not be disturbing but could give you cause for serious thought. There may be some trying circumstances but they can be resolved if you handle them properly.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Check situations carefully in the a.m. The afternoon aspects are encouraging for important matters and usual daily affairs.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Take time to study and analyze problems and plan intelligently before going to make carefully. Stars indicate some contention. Be prepared and quietly confident, but don't worry.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — There may be some trying conditions, difficult objectives to reach — but not for long. Mark time, be alert, ready to act when better openings appear. Be cheerful, have faith; relax some.

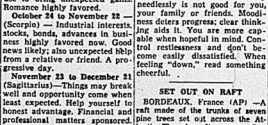
September 24 to October 23— (Libra) — At first glance this day may seem dull. But look sharply; there are hidden advantages which you can find and use to bring unexpected gains. Romance highly favored.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Industrial interests, stocks, bonds, advances in business highly favored now. Good news likely; also unexpected help from a relative or friend. A progressive day.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—Things may break well and opportunity come when least expected. Help yourself to honest advantage. Financial and professional matters sponsored. Heart interests favored.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Similar tendencies to Sagittarius today; you should be hopeful, acquisitive. Romance highly favored.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Planetary influences now warn against carelessness and unhealthy restlessness. Otherwise, the day is encouraging, should be profitable — if you put forth your best efforts.



February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Things should run agreeably if you do not go to extremes or be reckless with time, money, property. It can be a happy period if you are conscientious and purposeful.

You born today are sympathetic, intuitive, highly talented, interesting. A tendency to worry needlessly is not good for you, your family or friends. Moodiness deters success; clear thinking aids it. You are more capable when hopeful in mind. Control restlessness and don't become easily dissatisfied. When feeling "down," read something cheerful.

SET OUT ON RAFT

BORDEAUX, France (AP) —A raft made of the trunks of seven pine trees set out across the Atlantic Thursday. Its crew, Guy Gouttepirfre and Rene Lescombe, hope to reach South America in four or five months, then explore the Amazon.

Mom Whyte Says Health Offices Abandon Charges

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Bertha "Mom" Whyte, an energetic grandmother who shelters children from broken homes, Friday said county and provincial health authorities have "abandoned" her current 107 charges.

She said a private Toronto physician, who last winter voluntarily gave, fluoid, smallpox and polio injections, has been told to "lay-off" by officials of the Ontario department of health.

Dr. Cobourg, Dr. Charlotte Hirsen, chief of the Northumberland-Durham medical health unit just west of Oshawa, said "we have never refused a request for inoculation steps at Whyte Haven. The fact is we have been asked to give the injections."

She added "If we are asked, we will render all necessary medical care to the Whyte's children."

The Toronto physician Friday said that three months ago he requested the vaccine but that a letter from the deputy minister's department said that local county health authorities were authorized to give the shots. "The letter made it pretty well clear that I was to lay off the case."

Dr. Dewillet Puffer, assistant chief medical officer of the Ontario department of health, said in Toronto that arrangements for inoculating the children should be made between Dr. Horner and Mrs. Whyte.

NEW DRIVER KILLED

CAMDEN, Ark. (AP) — A 74-year-old Negro who drove a mule wagon all his life until he bought a pickup truck three weeks ago was killed Thursday when the truck left a road and was wrecked. The said Willie Jackson of Camden was 'driving by himself when he apparently lost control.

Dept. Denies Charges Made By Union Man

OTTAWA (CP)—The immigration department Friday denied that it recruited or helped recruit immigrants to work in the strike-bound Copper Cities Mines Ltd., at Murdochville, Que.

In a statement telephoned to the Canadian Press by a department spokesman, the department said its officials had in fact advised immigrants who were solicited for employment in Gaspe Copper not to sign contract accepting such employment.

The statement was prompted by reports of a protest by Eamon Park, legislative director of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), to acting Prime Minister Green. Mr. Park protested in a telegram that about 35 German immigrants were interviewed at Toronto immigration offices Wednesday by a company agent and some agreed to work at Murdochville.

65 PC of Canadian Families Now Own Television Sets

MONTREAL (CP) — Indications that Canadians have taken to television in a big way were outlined today before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

C. J. Mahoney, in a paper presented to a radio and television session of the AIEE summer general meeting, said 65 per cent of all Canadian families now own television receiving sets and in some densely populated areas the percentage is as high as 90.

Television is available to 80 per cent of Canada's population, he said.

Mr. Hayes reported that although the first TV stations went on the air in 1952, the response has been so great that there are now 39 stations. Eight are CBC owned and 31 privately operated.

He said there is a rapid spread of TV throughout the country as a "public entertainment and service" policy, directing the new television stations be built only in localities not having a TV service.

A report on school television in the U.S. as a boon to education was made by Max H. Krauss of Philadelphia, describing a closed-circuit TV installation in the school system of Hagerstown, Md. This system in eight schools used by 6,000 pupils and eventually will encompass all 48 schools in Washington County, Maryland, which has 18,000 pupils.

Another paper, which R. Brugger of the Hagerstown board of education read, told of the increased operating space, number of TV stations and operating charges in the U.S. Most elementary schools and two high schools are receiving an aggregate of 27 hours daily on approximately 510 TV sets.

Mr. Brugger said TV offers "tremendous possibilities in television education" in such ways as ease and expediency in presentation of instructional information, facility of magnification of picture information by choice of lens, and ability of the teacher to concentrate the students' attention on a fixed area.

MADOC — The members of Trinity United Church Women's Association entertained the W.A. members of Marmora, White Lake and Queensboro United congregations in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Perry Bronson, president of Madoc United Church, extended rings to the visitors and opened the meeting by reading a poem, after which Mrs. Ross led in prayer, song and prayer.

The business period was conducted and plans made for a motor trip to Wellington in July.

Mrs. W. McCoy was in charge of the devotional period and read a poem for opening, "A Prayer for Every Day." Mrs. Moore read the Bible story from the book of Job, and Mrs. McCoy presented the comments on the lesson.

The offering was dedicated by Mrs. Arthur Parker.

An entertaining program put on by the ladies was followed. Mrs. Jack Francis and Mrs. Doug Francis sang a duet, "Rugged Cross." Mrs. Ross Bell played a piano accompaniment by Mrs. D. Francis. A quintet from Queensboro, W.A., Mrs. J. Gordon, Mrs. A. Holmes, Mrs. Bob Sager, Mrs. B. Holmes and Mrs. Ross Bell, sang "Make the World A Better Place To Live."

Mrs. R. C. Jackson introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Marsh Hastings, Belleville, wife of Rev. 65 PC of Canadian Families Now Own Television Sets

MONTREAL (CP) — Indications that Canadians have taken to television in a big way were outlined today before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

C. J. Mahoney, in a paper presented to a radio and television session of the AIEE summer general meeting, said 65 per cent of all Canadian families now own television receiving sets and in some densely populated areas the percentage is as high as 90.

Television is available to 80 per cent of Canada's population, he said.

Mr. Hayes reported that although the first TV stations went on the air in 1952, the response has been so great that there are now 39 stations. Eight are CBC owned and 31 privately operated. He said there is a rapid spread of TV throughout the country as a "public entertainment and service" policy, directing the new television stations be built only in localities not having a TV service.

A report on school television in the U.S. as a boon to education was made by Max H. Krauss of Philadelphia, describing a closed-circuit TV installation in the school system of Hagerstown, Md. This system in eight schools used by 6,000 pupils and eventually will encompass all 48 schools in Washington County, Maryland, which has 18,000 pupils.

Another paper, which R. Brugger of the Hagerstown board of education read, told of the increased operating space, number of TV stations and operating charges in the U.S. Most elementary schools and two high schools are receiving an aggregate of 27 hours daily on approximately 510 TV sets.

Mr. Brugger said TV offers "tremendous possibilities in television education" in such ways as ease and expediency in presentation of instructional information, facility of magnification of picture information by choice of lens, and ability of the teacher to concentrate the students' attention on a fixed area.
